Not Many Seem To Take Radon Threat Seriously

Perhaps because it is odorless, colorless and tasteless, radon gas is not taken seriously by most Minnesotans, although radon is estimated to be second to cigarette smoking as the leading cause of lung cancer in the United States. And it isn't a problem that is a greater threat elsewhere—radon is a problem in our specific geographic area.

In fact, the entire tier of western Minnesota counties (two wide from the Canadian border to Traverse, Grant and Douglas counties on the south) has more than 40 per cent of its homes testing with radon levels above four picocuries per liter—a measurement above average for residential structures and an indicator that efforts should be made to reduce the levels.

In Pennington county, for instance, 61 per cent of the homes tested had radon levels in excess of four picocuries per liter. In Roseau county it was 63 per cent, in Marshall county 52 per cent, in Polk county 56 per cent and in Red Lake county 100 per cent. Twenty-five counties in the state, including those listed above, had equal or higher levels than Pennington county.

According to the American Lung association, radon is a radioactive gas that is found in the earth's rock and soil and is formed by the natural breakdown of radium, which is a radioactive product of decaying uranium. As radon itself decays, it forms radioactive by-products called "progeny" or "daughters" which, if inhaled, can damage lung tissue and cause lung cancer.

Invisible and odorless, radon is an insidious health hazard when it accumulates inside homes or other structures. And it is deadly. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) estimates that 5,000 to 20,000 lung cancer deaths each year may be attributed to exposure to high levels of radon indoors. A 1988 report by the National Research Council of the National Academy of Sciences found that smokers exposed to radon increase their risk of lung cancer by 10 times or more in comparison to nonsmokers.

High levels of radon in soil are primarily responsible for the nation's radon problem. The radon gas percolates up through porous soils under the home or building and enters through gaps and cracks in the foundation or in the insulation, and through pipes, sumps, drains, walls or other openings.

Water is another possible pathway for bringing radon into the home. Water in contact with rock containing uranium absorbs the radon gas. The radon is then carried into the home and released into the air when used in a household dishwasher, tap, shower or washing machine.

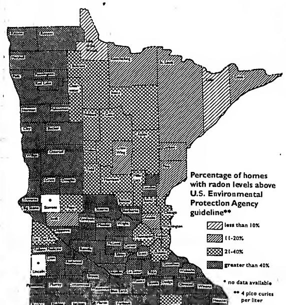
Water-related radon problems usually involve deep private wells rather than community water supplies.

Radon is not a problem outdoors because it is quickly diluted to low levels by outdoor air.

Even the EPA radon action guideline level of four picocuries per liter still poses a significant health hazard. The guideline does not mean that a level of four picocuries is safe. Long-term exposure to radon at even that level significantly increases one's risk of developing lung cancer—about the same risk as receiving 200 chest x-rays per year or three times the national average lung cancer risk for nonsmokers.

Whatever the level of radon, the longer the period of exposure the greater the health risk. While a locality's geology may indicate a potential for a radon problem, human senses cannot pick up any evidence of the odorless, colorless gas. The only way to determine if there is a problem in your home or building is by measuring radon levels. This can be done simply and relatively inexpensively by placing detection devices called passive monitors in the structure.

Radon levels may vary daily, weekly or even seasonally, depending on factors such as climate, indoor ventilation or heating systems in use. A longer monitoring period such as one to three months provides a more accurate average indoor radon level.



It is not difficult to reduce radon levels in a home or other building. In cases where the radon problem is relatively moderate—below 10 to 12 picocuries per liter—some low cost suggestions include:

- Thoroughly ventilate your home. Open windows or doors or use a ventilation system such as fans and heat exchangers to increase air flow.
- Be sure all crawl spaces are open and clear.
- Seal cracks in the foundation and along basement walls, floors or molding.
- Seal and vent the sump pump area.

Radon as a health problem has been publicly discussed and emphasized for several years now with seemingly little public reaction. How strange! In an area where people were up in arms over proposed establishment of a contained hazardous waste facility which could maybe someday leak, and a radar site which was somehow perceived through rumor to be associated with a nuclear waste repository, why is there so little concern about an established, widespread, documented health hazard with extremely serious potential consequences?

Nobody is more difficult to understand than people.

Gun show at curling club Oct. 19-20

Thief River Falls gun show will be held Saturday and Sunday, October 19 and 20, at the curling club building on the Pennington county fairgrounds. Admission will be $1.50 and children will not be admitted unless accompanied by an adult.

Hours for the show will be 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday.

Exhibitors have currently been registered from Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota, according to Gail Steinhauer, co-sponsor of the show with Bob Campbell. He expects between 100 and 120 tables to be taken for display and sales by show time.

"It was a good show last year," he said, "and most of last year's exhibitors are coming back, plus a few new ones. This is the season when a lot of sportsmen are between shotguns and rifles and looking for another gun or two or interested in trading for something different."

People visiting the show are encouraged to bring guns they are interested in trading or selling. Those who would like to rent a table should call Steinhauer at 449-4751 or Campbell at 681-4907 as soon as possible.

Campbell and Steinhauer noted that baseball cards will also be bought, sold and traded at the show and several tables will be devoted to that area of interest.

YOUR VOTE WILL BE HEARD

The American way of solving major conflicts of public interest is to conduct a public vote. The vote of the people on a controversial issue is a generally accepted principle that settles that issue.

Our local government officials by law may not conduct a referendum on a question outside their authority. As a result, the Citizens Advisory Vote Committee has been formed as a volunteer effort to conduct an advisory vote on the proposed gambling casino. The purpose of the committee is to organize as open and impartial a vote of the people as possible. The policies of the committee and procedures followed to this end have been open to all and well-publicized. The committee is encouraging every registered voter in Pennington County to get out and vote.

The advisory vote that will be cast by residents of Pennington County on the proposed gambling casino, Saturday, October 19, 1991, regardless of the outcome, will be presented to the County Commissioners, to the City Council, to the office of Governor Carlson and to the news media by the Citizens Advisory Vote Committee, along with documentation verifying the openness of this election to all registered voters in Pennington County and the method in which it was conducted.

Why submit advisory vote results to the office of the Governor?

The Governor's office, along with the Attorney General makes the final decision on whether or not there will be a gambling casino in Thief River Falls. The Governor's office is already aware that a vote will be conducted on October 19 and is interested in its results.

How many compacts for reservation gambling has the Governor's Office approved in Minnesota to date?

According to the MN Bureau of Indian Affairs, 11 compacts, one for each Indian tribe, have been approved, more than in any other state. These include a $10 million casino under construction 60 miles to the south and another smaller casino in operation 80 miles to the northeast.

What is the present position of Governor Carlson on gambling in Minnesota?

Statements made by the Governor on Saturday, Sept. 28, 1991, were reported in the Sept. 29, 1991, Star and Tribune as follows:

"Gov. Arne Carlson promised Saturday to oppose any expansion of gambling next year because, in his opinion, gambling in Minnesota already is pervasive and ripe for a criminal scandal. The Governor also indicated that the state 'better start putting some things on the ballot that possibly would repeal some of the things that we've already done. I think most people deeply regret the pervasiveness...of gambling. The whole responsibility (for) gambling is so frightfully fragmented now it...is ripe for scandal,' Carlson said.

"Attorney General Hubert Humphrey...has also expressed concerns that gambling, from the lottery to wagering on Indian reservations, is growing so fast that law enforcement officials and regulators will be unable to properly monitor the industry. Humphrey recently called for a moratorium on new forms of wagering. Carlson, however, said he is talking about "an absolute halt.'"

Of What Value Is An Advisory Vote?

It stands evident in a nation of government of the people, that the results of a large voter turnout, whether for or against the proposed casino, could significantly influence the County Commissioners and the City Council, as well as the Governor himself.

THE DOORS WILL BE OPEN SATURDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1991 FROM 8 A.M. TO 7 P.M. AT THE COMMUNITY CENTERS IN THIEF RIVER FALLS, GOODRIDGE AND ST. HILAIRE

YOUR VOTE WILL BE HEARD

Absentee ballot requests, stating your reason for needing one, signature, address, ward or township may be sent to The Citizen's Advisory Committee, P.O. Box 913, Thief River Falls, MN 56701. Return ballots must be postmarked no later than October. 17, 1991.

"THE LAWS OF SOWING & REAPING"
The Bible says in Job 4:8 "When you sow trouble, you harvest it!" Proverbs 22:8 says, "If you sow iniquity, you will reap vanity!" Galatians 6:7 says, "Whatever you sow, you will reap!" The choices we make in life, the things which we say and do are like seeds planted in a garden.
If you plant corn, it's not going to come up carrots because there are God-given laws which govern plant life. Now if God is thus concerned about governing plant life, how much more concerned He must be about human life.
We at Jesus Is King Ministries believe in planting the good seed of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, and reaping a harvest of righteousness, peace and joy in this life, and eternal life at the end.

North Sub-Section 8AA girls...

Team tennis title is won by Jacks

Top-seeded Bemidji received a first-round bye, then shut out Moorhead 7-0 and stopped Detroit Lakes 5-2 Tuesday to win the team portion of the 1991 North Sub-Section 8AA girls high school tennis tournament at the Grand Forks Tennis Centre.

Thief River Falls lost a 5-2 first round match to Moorhead, ending the Prowlers' dual meet record at 4-8.

The Prowlers beat the Spuds by that same 5-2 margin in a regular season dual meet match-up, but Moorhead rolled to a 5-0 lead in the post-season encounter before handing over 2-0 default decisions in the final two matches – No. 1 singles and No. 1 doubles.

"Moorhead played really well," said Thief River Falls coach Jay Forney. "They came out and played some good tennis."

It was a season-long learning process for a Thief River Falls team that had three seniors, three sophomores, a freshman and three eighth graders in the Tuesday line-up, and the tournament competition was one more lesson, explained Forney. "We asked a lot of the young kids," said Forney. "We just hope that down the road they will benefit from the experience."

Nordics lose 3-1 match

What could have easily been a 3-1 Marshall County Central win turned into a 3-2 Warroad victory Thursday in high school volleyball at Newfolden.

Marshall County Central, after a 15-10 first-game loss, came back with 15-6, 15-9 wins and had a 14-10 lead in Game 4. But the Nordics failed to come up with what would have been the match-ending 15th point on seven service opportunities, and wound up surrendering six straight game-winning, match-tying points. The Warriors capitalized on the momentum-building comeback by breezing to a 15-2 final-game win.

"Losing that fourth game took the air right out of the bubble," acknowledged Marshall County Central coach Mark Jorgenson. "We played well and we hit the ball hard to get in position to win, then we quit attacking and ended up playing not to lose; that was the most disappointing part of the

They finished the day with a 6-3, 7-6 (7-3 tie-breaker) third place match victory over senior Shawn Quistgaard and junior Gina Allery of Bemidji.

Junior Kari Bowman and sophomore Andrea Vagle of Bemidji stopped Fossand and Date 6-1, 6-1 in the doubles finals.

In singles, Detroit Lakes senior Anita Salmela started her bid for a third straight Region/Section 8AA (all Minnesota State High School League post-season competition now features sectional play instead of regions) by holding off Bemidji senior Shanna Rusten 7-6 (7-5 tie-breaker), 7-5 in the North Sub-Section 8AA finals. Fergus Falls junior Anna Zotalis rallied for a 4-6, 6-2, 6-0 third place match win over Bemidji sophomore Jenny Brune.

Thief River Falls' singles entries both lost first round matches Wednesday, with Carly Dee dropping a close 6-4, 6-4 decision to Carrie Ostenson of Moorhead in an all-sophomore match, while eighth grader Jami Fremstad fell to Alexandria senior Janelle Rasmussen 6-0, 6-1.

Senior Sara Tweet and sophomore Jami Dehnert formed the Prowlers' second post-season doubles entry. They knocked off Alexandria juniors Kara Lerfald and Charity Thalman 6-1, 2-6, 7-5 in first round play, but fell to Quistgaard and Allery 6-2, 7-5 in the quarterfinals.

"We're really pleased with everybody's overall play," reported Thief River Falls coach Jay Forney. "It was satisfying to see the girls pleased with their performances."

Paggen was the Prowlers' No. 1 singles player and Koivisto was teamed with Tweet at No. 1 doubles in the Prowlers' regular line-up this fall before Paggen was sidelined by illness midway through the season. She did not return to the line-up until the North Sub-Section 8AA tournament got underway Tuesday with team play.

Koivisto, meanwhile, inherited the No. 1 singles job until joining Paggen for the post-season doubles competition.

"It was really fun to see Tarik and Jennifer do well," noted Forney. "Jennifer was not at full strength, but she toughened it out. We asked Tarik to do a little more to help out Jennifer, and she really came through."

Forney said Dee, and the Tweet-Dehnert doubles combination, also had strong performances, while Fremstad had her hands full with a one of the top-seeded veterans. "We were real happy with Sara's and Jami's, double play, and we're extremely pleased with Carly's efforts. She raised her level of play today. She moved her feet and really played well."

Northland Community College football...

NCC faces division rivals

First part of the 1991 Minnesota Community College Conference schedule was a wash-out for the Northland Community College football team as the Pioneers went 0-4 against the Northeast Division.

However, hope burns eternal; the Pioneers still figure in the MCCC playoff picture heading into three weeks of regular season-ending games against Northwest Division rivals University of Minnesota-Crookston, Brainerd and Fergus Falls. The UMC and Brainerd games start at 1:30 p.m.; the Fergus Falls contest has a 7 p.m. kickoff.

One more loss takes Northland out of playoff contention, but unlikely as it would seem for a team that has lost five straight games, a Northwest Division sweep would vault the Pioneers into the MCCC state playoff semifinals next month.

Northland begins its pennant race in earnest Saturday at UMC. The Pioneers will then head to Brainerd Saturday, Oct. 19, before finishing at home against Fergus Falls Friday, Oct. 25.

"Even though we're 0-5, I think there is enough incentive for the kids to want to go out and play well," said Northland coach Rick Nelson. No. 1 in the list of objectives, he said, is the first victory of the year; No. 2 is the fact that UMC is Northland's keenest rival; and No. 3 is the opportunity to be involved in a playoff race.

"Playing Crookston will certainly add some incentive," acknowledged Nelson. "The rivalry is there. A lot of kids on both teams have faced each other in high school, and some have even been teammates in the past. The kids want to do well against them."

Northland lost a 28-7 season-opening nonconference game to the Moorhead State University junior varsity before entering MCCC play, where the Pioneers have been beaten by Itasca 27-20, Vermilion 40-7, Hibbing 28-0 and Mesabi 23-14.

UMC is 2-3, including a 15-7 nonconference win over the Bemidji State University junior varsity to start the year and a 44-14 victory over Itasca last week when fullback Paul Kezar, a freshman from Thief River Falls, scored three touchdowns and netted 60 yards on 16 carries to earn Offensive Back of the Week honors from the Trojans' coaches. The UMC losses came at the hands of Vermilion 20-7, Hibbing 38-0 and Mesabi 19-18.

In addition to the Northland-Mesabi and UMC-Itasca games last week, Vermilion outlasted Brainerd 28-21 in double-overtime and Hibbing shut out Fergus Falls 43-0.

Fergus Falls hosts Brainerd in the other first-week Northwest Division match-up Saturday. The Spartans and Raiders match the Trojans' 1-3 MCCC record.

In Northeast Division play this week, Hibbing (4-0) hosts Mesabi (2-2) and Vermilion (4-0) entertains Itasca (2-2).

Mustangs sweep Prowlers

Red Lake County Central swept Thief River Falls 15-4, 15-3, 16-14 Thursday in a high school volleyball match played at Plummer.

The win improved the Mustangs' record to 13-7, while the loss dropped the Prowlers to 5-14.

"It was a fun match for us," noted Red Lake County Central coach Brad Borene. "We played well, especially the first couple of games. It's homecoming week here, and our final home match, so the kids were really fired up. They came ready to play. We're real happy with the results."

Jenny Walter led the aggressive Red Lake County Central attack with 17 kills and a strong all-around night that included 18 last-touch points. Dawn Bachand had nine kills and five last-touch points, while Jill Radniecki came up with two kill blocks and eight last-touch points. Radniecki (19-for-19) and Bobbi Berberich (11-for-11) were a combined 30-for-30 at the serving line.

Thief River Falls had a brief 3-0 lead in Game 1, but Red Lake County Central won with a 15-1 scoring run, and the Mustangs kept up the pace with a 9-1 start in Game 2.

Red Lake County Central was ready to finish it off in quick fashion with a 14-7 third-game lead before Thief River Falls came to life with a seven-point surge, tying it 14-14 on a tip by Kelly Skeim. But a serve reception error and a ball that was hit into the net gave the Mustangs the final two points of the night.

"The girls played very well in the third game, but the first two games were flat," said Thief River Falls coach Helen Anderson. "The third game was fun to watch. The girls felt good about themselves. But that makes it really frustrating – to know that when we want to, we can play volleyball."

Kathy Kvick led the Prowlers with a strong net game that produced 10 last-touch points. Skeim had a team-high seven service points.

It was a clean sweep for the Mustangs, who won the junior varsity match 15-2, 4-15, 15-5, the C I match 8-15, 15-13, 15-13 and the C II match 4-15, 15-4, 15-9. The Thief River Falls junior varsity is 4-13 for the year, and the Prowlers' C squads are a combined 5-10.

Thief River Falls coaches awarded Player of the Week honors to Nessa Anderson, varsity; Allison Myers, junior varsity; Andrea Moe, C I; and Angie Efta, C II.

Both teams have a single outing coming up during an MEA-shortened week, with the Mustangs visiting Fisher Monday and the Prowlers hosting Fosston Tuesday.

TRF Scoring

Last-touch points - Kathy Kvick 10, Kelly Skeim 3, Nessa Anderson 2, Kristen Boughton 2, Ali Peterson 1, Kristi Lindberg 1, Amy Enge 1, Amy Erikson 1.

Service points - Kathy Kvick 5, Kelly Skeim 7, Nessa Anderson 6, Kristen Boughton 1, Kristi Lindberg 2, Andrea Moe 1.

Northwest Division volleyball match-up...

UMC 3-0 winner over NCC

A first-game rally sparked the University of Minnesota-Crookston to a 3-0 win over visiting Northland Community College in Northwest Division volleyball Wednesday.

Trailing 9-0 in Game 1, the Trojans came back to win 15-12, then completed the sweep with 15-5 and 15-4 decisions.

"Our confidence level really dropped after we lost that first game," said Northland coach Deb Jacobson. "We just played poorly. It was just one of those nights."

Despite the setback, Northland still has a share of first place after the first of two rounds of regular season Northwest Division play. Second round of matches start this week with Northland and Fergus Falls at 2-1, UMC and Brainerd at 1-2. Top two regular season Northwest Division finishers advance to the Minnesota Community College Conference state volleyball tournament.

Northland, 10-10 overall, will play the Moorhead State University junior varsity Tuesday at 7 p.m. in Moorhead before finishing the regular season schedule with Northwest Division matches Wednesday at Brainerd, Friday at Fergus Falls and Wednesday, Oct. 30, at home against UMC. All MCCC matches start at 6:30 p.m.

North Sub-Section 8AA girls...

Team tennis title is won by Jacks

Top seeded Bemidji received a first round bye, then shut out Moorhead 7-0 and stopped Detroit Lakes 5-2 Tuesday to win the team portion of the 1991 North Sub-Section 8AA girls high school tennis tournament at the Grand Forks Tennis Centre.

Thief River Falls lost a 5-2 first round match to Moorhead, ending the Prowlers' dual meet record at 4-8.

The Prowlers beat the Spuds by that same 5-2 margin in a regular season dual meet match-up, but Moorhead rolled to a 5-0 lead in the post-season encounter before handing over 2-0 default decisions in the final two matches – No. 1 singles and No. 1 doubles.

"Moorhead played really well," said Thief River Falls coach Jay Forney. "They came out and played some good tennis."

It was a season-long learning process for a Thief River Falls team that [illegible] three seniors, three sophomores, a freshman and three eighth graders in the Tuesday line up, and the tournament competition was one more lesson, explained Forney. "We asked a lot of the young kids," said Forney. "We just hope that down the road they will benefit from the experience."

Jamestown boys and girls won team honors Thursday at the Hawley Invitational high school cross country meet.

Thief River Falls girls were seventh in a field of 11 and the Thief River Falls boys were tenth in a field of 12. Both teams were running without their top runners for the second time this week, with Joel Davis sidelined because of a calf muscle strain and Stephanie Vigen missing the meet because of illness.

Andrew Johannes of Fargo South and Jenny Schemelkel of Jamestown won individual titles. Both races had over 100 runners.

Eighth grader Leah Helgenset was seventh in the girls varsity race to lead the Prowlers' efforts.

The Lynn Dyer-coached Prowlers will close out their 1991 regular season schedule Tuesday at the Bemidji invitational. The Section 8AA meet for both boys and girls will be held Oct. 24 at Little Falls.

Nordics lose 3-1 match

What could have easily been a 3-1 Marshall County Central win turned into a 3-2 Warroad victory Thursday in high school volleyball at Newfolden.

Marshall County Central, after a 15-10 first-game loss, came back with 15-6, 15-9 wins and had a 14-10 lead in Game 4. But the Nordics failed to come up with what would have been the match-ending 15th point on seven service opportunities, and wound up surrendering six straight game-winning, match-tying points. The Warriors capitalized on the momentum-building comeback by breezing to a 15-2 final-game win.

"Losing that fourth game took the air right out of the bubble," acknowledged Marshall County Central coach Mark Jorgenson. "We played well and we hit the ball hard to get in position to win, then we quit attacking and ended up playing not to lose; that was the most disappointing part of the

Doubles team advances

First-time Thief River Falls doubles partners Tarik Koivisto and Jennifer Paggen finished third Wednesday in the individual portion of the North Sub-Section 8AA girls high school tennis tournament at the Grand Forks Tennis Centre to earn a Section 8AA tournament berth Monday and Tuesday in St. Cloud.

Top four sub-sectional finishers in singles and doubles, along with the team champion, advance to the state tournament-qualifying Section 8AA tournament at the Augusta Tennis Club.

Koivisto, a senior, and Paggen, a junior, received a first round North Sub-Section 8AA bye, then beat Detroit Lakes seniors Pam Zick and Jenny Nansen 6-1, 6-1 in the quarterfinals before losing to to senior Heather Fossand and sophomore Caroline Date of the Lakers 6-2, 6-2 in the semifinals.

They finished the day with a 6-3, 7-6 (7-3 tie-breaker) third place match victory over senior Shawn Quistgaard and junior Gina Allery of Bemidji.

Junior Kari Bowman and sophomore Andrea Vagle of Bemidji stopped Fossand and Date 6-1, 6-1 in the doubles finals.

In singles, Detroit Lakes senior Anita Salmela started her bid for a third straight Region/Section 8AA (all Minnesota State High School League post-season competition now features sectional play instead of regions) by holding off Bemidji senior Shanna Rusten 7-6 (7-5 tie-breaker), 7-5 in the North Sub-Section 8AA finals. Fergus Falls junior Anna Zotalis rallied for a 4-6, 6-2, 6-0 third place match win over Bemidji sophomore Jenny Brune.

Thief River Falls' singles entries both lost first round matches Wednesday, with Carly Dee dropping a close 6-4, 6-4 decision to Carrie Ostenson of Moorhead in an all-sophomore match, while eighth grader Jami Fremstad fell to Alexandria senior Janelle Rasmussen 6-0, 6-1.

Senior Sara Tweet and sophomore Jami Dehnert formed the Prowlers' second post-season doubles entry. They knocked off Alexandria juniors Kara Lerfald and Charity Thalman 6-1, 2-6, 7-5 in first round play, but fell to Quistgaard and Allery 6-2, 7-5 in the quarterfinals.

"We're really pleased with everybody's overall play," reported Thief River Falls coach Jay Forney. "It was satisfying to see the girls pleased with their performances."

Paggen was the Prowlers' No. 1 singles player and Koivisto was teamed with Tweet at No. 1 doubles in the Prowlers' regular line-up this fall before Paggen was sidelined by illness midway through the season. She did not return to the line-up until the North Sub-Section 8AA tournament got underway Tuesday with team play.

Koivisto, meanwhile, inherited the No. 1 singles job until joining Paggen for the post-season doubles competition.

"It was really fun to see Tarik and Jennifer do well," noted Forney. "Jennifer was not at full strength, but she toughened it out. We asked Tarik to do a little more to help out Jennifer, and she really came through."

Forney said Dee, and the Tweet-Dehnert doubles combination, also had strong performances, while Fremstad had her hands full with a one of the top-seeded veterans. "We were real happy with Sara's and Jami's double play, and we're extremely pleased with Carly's efforts. She raised her level of play today. She moved her feet and really played well."

Northland Community College football...

NCC faces division rivals

First part of the 1991 Minnesota Community College Conference schedule was a wash-out for the Northland Community College football team as the Pioneers went 0-4 against the Northeast Division.

However, hope burns eternal: the Pioneers still figure in the MCCC playoff picture heading into three weeks of regular season-ending games against Northwest Division rivals University of Minnesota-Crookston, Brainerd and Fergus Falls. The UMC and Brainerd games start at 1:30 p.m.; the Fergus Falls contest has a 7 p.m. kickoff.

One more loss takes Northland out of playoff contention, but unlikely as it would seem for a team that has lost five straight games, a Northwest Division sweep would vault the Pioneers into the MCCC state playoff semifinals next month.

Northland begins its pennant race in earnest Saturday at UMC. The Pioneers will then head to Brainerd Saturday, Oct. 19, before finishing at home against Fergus Falls Friday, Oct. 25.

"Even though we're 0-5, I think there is enough incentive for the kids to want to go out and play well," said Northland coach Rick Nelson. No. 1 in the list of objectives, he said, is the first victory of the year; No. 2 is the fact that UMC is Northland's keenest rival; and No. 3 is the opportunity to be involved in a playoff race.

"Playing Crookston will certainly add some incentive," acknowledged Nelson. "The rivalry is there. A lot of kids on both teams have faced each other in high school, and some have even been teammates in the past. The kids want to do well against them."

Northland lost a 28-7 season-opening nonconference game to the Moorhead State University junior varsity before entering MCCC play, where the Pioneers have been beaten by Itasca 27-20, Vermilion 40-7, Hibbing 28-0 and Mesabi 23-14.

UMC is 2-3, including a 15-7 nonconference win over the Bemidji State University junior varsity to start the year and a 44-14 victory over Itasca last week when fullback Paul Kezar, a freshman from Thief River Falls, scored three touchdowns and netted 60 yards on 16 carries to earn Offensive Back of the Week honors from the Trojans' coaches. The UMC losses came at the hands of Vermilion 20-7, Hibbing 38-0 and Mesabi 19-18.

In addition to the Northland-Mesabi and UMC-Itasca games last week, Vermilion outlasted Brainerd 28-21 in double-overtime and Hibbing shut out Fergus Falls 43-0.

Fergus Falls hosts Brainerd in the other first-week Northwest Division match-up Saturday. The Spartans and Raiders match the Trojans' 1-3 MCCC record.

In Northeast Division play this week, Hibbing (4-0) hosts Mesabi (2-2) and Vermilion (4-0) entertains Itasca (2-2).

Mustangs sweep Prowlers

Red Lake County Central swept Thief River Falls 15-4, 15-3, 16-14 Thursday in a high school volleyball match played at Plummer.

The win improved the Mustangs' record to 13-7, while the loss dropped the Prowlers to 5-14.

"It was a fun match for us," noted Red Lake County Central coach Brad Oorene. "We played well, especially the first couple of games. It's homecoming week here, and our final home match, so the kids were really fired up. They came ready to play. We're real happy with the results."

Jenny Walter led the aggressive Red Lake County Central attack with 17 kills and a strong all-around night that included 18 last-touch points. Dawn Bachand had nine kills and five last-touch points, while Jill Radniecki came up with two kill blocks and eight last-touch points. Radniecki (19-for-19) and Bobbi Berberich (11-for-11) were a combined 30-for-30 at the serving line.

Thief River Falls had a brief 3-0 lead in Game 1, but Red Lake County Central won with a 15-1 scoring run, and the Mustangs kept up the pace with a 9-1 start in Game 2.

Red Lake County Central was ready to finish it off in quick fashion with a 14-7 third-game lead before Thief River Falls came to life with a seven-point surge, tying it 14-14 on a tip by Kelly Skeim. But a serve reception error and a ball that was hit into the net gave the Mustangs the final two points of the night.

"The girls played very well in the third game, but the first two games were flat," said Thief River Falls coach Helen Anderson. "The third game was fun to watch. The girls felt good about themselves. But that makes it really frustrating – to know that when we want to, we can play volleyball."

Kathy Kviek led the Prowlers with a strong net game that produced 10 last-touch points. Skeim had a team-high seven service points.

It was a clean sweep for the Mustangs, who won the junior varsity match 15-2, 4-15, 15-5, the C I match 8-15, 15-13, 15-13 and the C II match 4-15, 15-4, 15-9. The Thief River Falls junior varsity is 4-13 for the year, and the Prowlers' C squads are a combined 5-10.

Thief River Falls coaches awarded Player of the Week honors to Nessa Anderson, varsity; Allison Myers, junior varsity; Andrea Moe, C I; and Angie Efta, C II.

Both teams have a single outing coming up during an MEA-shortened week, with the Mustangs visiting Fisher Monday and the Prowlers hosting Fosston Tuesday.

TRF Scoring

Last-touch points - Kathy Kvick 10, Kelly Skeim 8, Nessa Anderson 2, Kristen Boughton 2, Ali Peterson 1, Kristi Lindberg 1, Amy Engo 1, Amy Erikson 1.

Service points - Kathy Kvick 5, Kelly Skeim 7, Nessa Anderson 5, Kristen Boughton 1, Kristi Lindberg 2, Andrea Moe 1.

Northwest Division volleyball match-up...

UMC 3-0 winner over NCC

A first-game rally sparked the University of Minnesota-Crookston to a 3-0 win over visiting Northland Community College in Northwest Division volleyball Wednesday.

Trailing 9-0 in Game 1, the Trojans came back to win 15-12, then completed the sweep with 15-5 and 15-4 decisions.

"Our confidence level really dropped after we lost that first game," said Northland coach Deb Jacobson. "We just played poorly. It was just one of those nights."

Despite the setback, Northland still has a share of first place after the first of two rounds of regular season Northwest Division play. Second round of matches start this week with Northland and Fergus Falls at 2-1, UMC and Brainerd at 1-2. Top two regular season Northwest Division finishers advance to the Minnesota Community College Conference state volleyball tournament.

Northland, 10-10 overall, will play the Moorhead State University junior varsity Tuesday at 7 p.m. in Moorhead before finishing the regular season schedule with Northwest Division matches Wednesday at Brainerd, Friday at Fergus Falls and Wednesday, Oct. 30, at home against UMC. All MCCC matches start at 6:30 p.m.

The results dropped the Nordics to 7-7 overall, and moved Warroad into a second place North Border Conference tie with Marshall County Central – behind runaway leader Roseau.

Karen Ness played well as the Nordics' setter, said Jorgenson, as she took over all of the quarterbacking duties when Jill Fosholm left because of an injury in the fourth game.

Marshall County Central will participate in the Warroad Invitational Saturday and will be at Roseau Tuesday.

Tuesday high school volleyball results...

MCC rally nets 3-1 victory

Marshall County Central spotted Badger-Greenbush a 1-0 lead before coming up with a 3-1 high school volleyball win at Newfolden Tuesday.

The 10-15, 15-9, 15-6, 15-6 victory put the Nordics at 7-6 – the first time they've been aver .500 since a season-opening decision – heading into a Thursday match against Warroad.

"We started a little slow, but by the middle of the third game we were playing better," reported Marshall County Central coach Mark Jorgenson.

Stacy Anderson and Jill Fosholm turned in solid performances, according to Jorgenson.

Crookston	1

Red Lake County Central beat Crookston 10-15, 15-10, 15-4, 16-14 in a Tuesday match at Oklee, overcoming a 14-11 fourth-game deficit to complete the win.

"The kids played well," offered Red Lake County Central coach Brad Borene. "We started a little slaw, but we came on taward the end of the first game and played pretty well after that."

A 95 percent night at the service line helped the Mustangs' cause, including a 22-for-22 effort by Dawn Bachand, 25-for-26 by Jill Radniecki, 11-for-11 by Bobbi Berberich and 15-for-16 by Jenny Walter.

Bachand also had 18 last-touch points and 16 kills; Walter contributed 13 last-touch points and 19 kills; Radniecki come up with 15 last-touch points and 8 kills in what Borene said was her best match of the year; and Cheryl Greenwald collected 15 set assists.

"All the girls played their roll well," said Borene.

The win put the Mustangs at 12-7 heading into a Thursday assignment against Thief River Falls.

Grygla-Goodridge	0

In a match-up of two teams with just one win each, Middle River came up with a 15-7, 15-2, 15-8 Tuesday night victory over visiting Grygla-Goodridge.

It wasn't real pretty volleyball, according to Grygla-Goodridge coach Tim Mostrom, who described the Wolverines' performances as "the worst ever' as his team fell to 1-12 heading into a Thursday match against Lake of the Woods. The lone win come in the 1991 season opener against Middle River.

One of the few bright spots in the Grygla-Goodridge showing was the play of Amber Wilkins, said Mostrom.

Middle River went to 2-8 with the victory.

Football teams near end of '91 schedule

Regular season play is winding down for high school football teams, but some will have their 1991 schedules extended by post-season playoff berths later this month.

Thief River Falls headed to Fergus Falls today (Friday) a 3-3 record to face the 5-1 Otters, who rank among the Section 8A favorites. The Prowlers will wrap up the regular season Wednesday at East Grand Forks, and then await their post-season fate.

Eight of the ten Section 8A teams will be involved in the playoffs, starting Tuesday, Oct. 22, at the home sites of the top faur seeded qualifiers. Heading into Week 7, Detroit Lakes and Park Rapids matched Fergus Falls' 5-1 overall record. Staples had the same 3-3 mark as the Prowlers, followed by Crookston, East Grond Forks and Alexandria at 2-4. Wadena-Deer Creek and Little Falls trailed the field at 1-5 and 0-6, respectively.

Today's games for other area teams included Grygla-Goodridge vs. Valley North at Oslo, Red Lake County Central vs. Red Lake at Plummer and Middle River-Marshall County Central at Fosston.

Grygla-Goodridge is in the thick of the Top of the State Conference nine-man race, where the Blue Devils and Kittson County North share second place at 4-1, just a step behind unbeaten Stephen. Valley North is 3-2, followed by Argyle 3-3, East Grand Forks Sacred Heart and Tri-County 2-3, Hallock-Kennedy 1-5 and Badger-Greenbush 0-6.

Grygla-Goodridge will finish the schedule with games Wednesday vs. Argyle in Grygla and Tuesday, Oct. 22, at Stephen.

Red Lake County Central plays a regular season North Tri-County Conference schedule, but because the Oklee-Plummer cooperative exceeds the Minnesota State High School League enrollment figures for post-season nine-man play, the Mustangs will be grouped in Section 8C far the playoffs.

Fisher-Climax and Win-E-Mac are the North Tri-County Conference leaders with 5-1 overall records, although the Knights were 5-0 and the Patriots 5-1 in conference play heading into the weekend. The rest of the league overall records included Norman County West at 4-2 and Kelliher-Northome 3-3, with Ulen-Hitterdal, Clearbrook-Gonvick, Red Lake County Central and Red Lake all looking at 2-4.

Like Red Lake County Central, Clearbrook-Gonvick, along with Badger-Greenbush from the Top of the State Conference, will be moved from nine-man to Section 8C for the playoffs.

Red Lake County Central will close out regular season play Tuesday against Win-E-Mac at Oklee.

Middle River-Marshall County Central plays 11-man football in the Valley Plains Conference and is grouped in Section 8C. The Rebels wrap up regular season play Wednesday vs. Hawley in Middle River.

Lake Park-Audubon went into the weekend with a 4-0 record in the Valley Plains Conference, where Warren had a 4-1 mark and Waubun sat at 3-1. Overall, Warren and Waubun were 5-1, Lake Park Audubon 4-2, Fertile-Beltrami and Red Lake Falls 3-3, Norman County West 2-3, Middle River-Marshall County Central and Hawley 2-4, Ada-Borup and Fosston 1-5.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

I commend councilman Murphy for having the courage to tell it like it is. But he did not blatantly accuse the ministers of racism as one of last week's public opinion writers said. What he did say was that many of the calls he received had racist overtones.

I have also heard the inference toward race with people I've talked to and conversations which I have overheard on the streets, in cafes, etc. I've also frequently heard the remark, "Why should they be able to do this when it's illegal for us?" Is jealousy also a factor here? I grant you some of the people are sincere in their moral beliefs, but many better search their hearts for their real motives.

In 1988 the City of Thief River Falls approved the state lottery by a vote of 1,976 to 1,641. Is the lottery not gambling? Or pulltabs? Just what is so different about having a casino in town?

I know one thing that is different about it. Pulltabs and lottery tickets do not attract tourism and vacationers. They can do that in their own towns. The typical casino patron is on vacation or a weekend get-away or maybe just on an evening out. They are usually older and are done with parental obligations. Some are retired. They are not hard-core gamblers but people who are at that point in their lives when they have the time and the extra money in hand with which to experience new places to go and things to do. To them playing a game of chance is just an enjoyable way to spend a few hours.

They do not enter the casino when it opens never to emerge from it again until it closes. While they are in our town they will eat in our restaurants, sleep in our motels and shop in our stores. I know I have yet to visit a strange town or area without coming home with something I needed or couldn't resist.

It is not the young couples with small children or even the single young working person wha most frequent these places—which is what Mr. Hallett of the Red Lake Band was trying to reassure you about at the meeting in the city auditorium, based on their experience at Warroad. Instead, his remark turned him into a villain, according to some people.

Come on, people, let's be realistic. Yes, this is very much an economic issue. We live in a town where commercial property is selling for one, two or three times its tax obligation. Retail businesses are closing. Some new ones that have come in have not even survived their first year of business. Take a look at the parking lots of our discount stores. Ask the employees who have had their hours cut ever since we lost the Warroad-Roseau trade when Roseau acquired a Pamida store. They're fearful for their jobs if the discount stores can't survive.

Now I'm not gaing to say the casino would create an instant economic Utopia. That would be as unrealistic as the opposition equating the casino with selling drugs on the streets, prostitution or that all of Thief River's children will be wearing cheap tennis shoes in 30 below zero weather because their parents blew all their money at the casino.

I do think this is an economic shot in the arm that we can't afford to turn away. It will increase tourism, and tourists spend, and not only at the casino. It will increase road count which attracts other new businesses.

Perkins has already shown interest by inquiring. I've heard of another large discount store being interested in coming here if the road count goes up. Besides employment the casino would offer, we would be turning down possible new employment opportunities. And the businesses that are already here could only gain from increased tourism and road count.

One lady wrote in her public opinion letter that money earned in Canada should be spent in Canada. Nice thought, but do we really want to turn our Canadian customers away? Our stores love their Canadian dollars and our neighbors to the north get a bargain here compared to their own retail outlets. They love to come here to shop! Stateside people enjoy going to Canada—it's different and something new to see—and we spend our money in their country. Isn't that what free trade is all about?

The day of the vote is Saturday, October 19. The "silent majority"— yes, there is one—has a tendency to think that everything will work out. There's na need to get excited. Wrong! Even though this vote is not binding it will influence your commissioners and councilmen. If you're going to be gone because of MEA weekend request your absentee ballot. Now is the time to act if you are for economic growth of this city.

Sincerely,
Audrey Bergerson

OWM seeking members for advisory group

Minnesota Office of Waste Management (OWM) is looking for Minnesota citizens and representatives of Minnesota-based businesses and institutions interested in serving on the Waste Education Coalition, an 18 member advisory committee that deals with waste education issues for all citizens, from youth to the general public. All 18 positions will be appointed this fall for two-year terms.

The coalition will advise the OWM's waste management program, whose mission includes raising public awareness of environmentally sound waste management methods and making information about these methods available. It meets monthly at the OWM office in St. Paul.

New members representing educational institutions and private industry are particularly needed and individuals and organizational representatives from outside the metro area are especially encouraged to apply.

Persons interested in more information on serving on the coalition may contact Diane Wanner at 612-649-5775 or call the Secretary af State at 612-297-5845 for an application form. Applications should be submitted to the Secretary of State's open appointment office by November 15.

Tic Tac Toe game back

Beginning October 15, Tic Tac Toe will return as Tic Tac Toe II, a variation of last year's Tic Tac Toe instant lottery game in Minnesota that combines a top prize of $10,000 with overall odds of winning of 1 in 4.67.

To play Tic Tac Toe II, players simply scratch off the coated play area to reveal the Tic Tac Toe II game board. Like the classic Tic Tac Toe game, if 3 X's or 3 O's appear in any row column or diagonal, the player wins the prize shown in the prize box on the front of each ticket. Tic Tac Toe II players can win a free ticket, $1, $2, $3, $10, $20, $30, $100, $1,000 and $10,000.

More than 20 million Tic Tac Toe II tickets, with more than $12 million in winning prizes, have been printed. The number of winners may vary based on sales, distribution and the number of prizes claimed. Tickets cost $1 and are available at approximately 4,000 retailers statewide.

The Minnesota State Lottery's tall-free player hotline offers pre-recorded information 24 hours a day with how-to-play tips, game information, winning numbers information, and prize redemption rules. Call 297-7371 in the Twin Cities or 1-800-657-3946 in greater Minnesota.

Lampert Lumber becomes UBC

Lampert Lumber company in Thief River Falls is among 14 Lampert yards purchased by Lanoga Corporation and will be operated by its United Building Centers (UBC) division.

Lanoga purchased the assets of Lambert in August after Lampert filed Chapter 11 bankruptcy June 20. The purchase was recently approved by the bankruptcy court.

According to Bob Drumm, president of UBC in Winona, his company plans to retain most of the current Lampert employees to work for the newly obtained locations. Other Lampert locations which will be operated by UBC include Fergus Falls, Alexandria, Grand Rapids, Hibbing, Mankato, Morris, Redwood Falls, St. Peter and Willmar in Minnesota; Rapid City, Spearfish and Sturgis in South Dakota; and Wahpeton in North Dakota.

The additions bring the number of UBC store locations to 109 in Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, North Dakota, South Dakota, Colorado, Wyoming and Montana, Drumm said. "We've been in the lumber and building materials business since 1855 and we are confident that we will continue to serve these communities for a long time to come," he said.

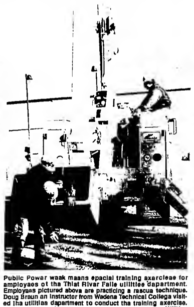
removed on both types of plastic containers but paper labels can be left attached. Containers accepted must have a threaded neck. Other plastic materials may contain the number 1 or 2 but are not acceptable as bottle grade without the threaded neck.

Tin and other metals can be brought to the facility with the paper labels removed, the cans rinsed and flattened. Aluminum cans are also accepted without restriction.



Clothing that is no longer usable can also be recycled at the facility with the only restriction that it be clean and dry. Carpeting or curtains are not acceptable.

"The recycling center is open only to residents of Pennington county," Person said. "Persons with questions regarding what types of materials can or can't be recycled can call Future Fuel at 681-3710 or the county extension office at 681-2116 for more information.

Public Power week means special training exercises for employees of the Thief River Falls utilities department. Employees pictured above are practicing a rescue technique. Doug Braun an instructor from Wadena Technical College visited the utilities department to conduct the training exercise. The training session was sponsored by the Minnesota Utilities Association. The utilities department has one about four times a year. Jerome Cota is in the bucket, Orrin Joppru, a lineman with the department is assisting Cota. Ted Schmitz is the operator. Schmitz is operating the newest vehicle at the utilities department. One of the features of the new truck is a bucket which can tip on its side.

No action taken by council on request to delay action sized that the city council is attempting to act in a prudent manner, and at such time as enough information concerning the pros and cons of the casino, have been gathered, I feel confident that the council will make the decision on what we feel will be in the best overall interest of the community."

In response to the statement, Grothe asked whether it wasn't Barron who stated at the September 24 meeting that "if such a vote is taken it should be taken as soon as possible."

Barron responded that his action and any comment by an individual member of the council does not represent the council as a whole.

Despite Barron's appeal, Mayor Carlson stepped down from his position as chairman of the council by turning the gavel over to Alderman Robert Reeve, and presented a motion that the council wait on its decision until after the vote. The motion failed for lack of a second.

The council did not take any action regarding the request from the Citizens Advisory Committee.

Don Stewart, representing Jobs Inc. of Thief River Falls presented a study of potential economic impacts from the proposed casino. The study outlines some of the current economic factors observed in the community and makes some projections. Total payroll, of which 70 per cent could go to Thief River Falls employees, for example, was estimated at $5.6 million. To put this into perspective, the total payroll for Northern Pride is $2 million and for Country Lake Foods, $3.1 million. A conservative estimate of the impact on the community that payroll would have was $10 million. It was also estimated that the casino could bring an additional 1,500 visitors per week to Thief River Falls — over 200 per day on the average. That would represent a retail sales increase by at least $3 million and a service revenue increase of $4 million. It would also help attract four or more new retail and service businesses to the community.

A complete copy of the report appears in the next issue of The Times, Tuesday, October 15.

Student housing, an issue that has plagued city planners and school district officials for the past few years, received continued support of the city council. A proposed project to build student housing near the Technical College requires the city to take part in the development of the project. Private investors could not be found to support the project and, as an alternative, the city could end up taking a portion of the risk involved in building the project.

Tuesday night, the council instructed city employees involved in the project to proceed and attempt to maximize the risk level of other participants in the project.

In other business, the council: approved a quote from Westside Motors for a water department vehicle; appointed election judges for the November 5 municipal election; moved LeAnn Engelstad and Kim Bergland from category II positions to full-time positions effective November 1 because Dione Lund is retiring on December 31; moved Loree Johnson to category II from category III; approved changes to policies on temporary and permanent part-time employees; approved a revised policy for reimbursement to city employees for expenses incurred for approved education courses; approved a request to provide temporary fire protection for the new hangar at the airport by moving a fire engine to the airport; approved a dance permit for October 25 in the armory.

Students watch as Law enforcement make stop

St. Paul youth with handgun in LHS stopped

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Students in Thief River Falls observed the dramatic capture of an individual suspected of attempting to carry out a threat with a handgun.

Law enforcement officials diffused a potentially dangerous situation Wednesday. Five juveniles, three from St. Paul, were stopped and taken to the law enforcement center following a report of a person with a handgun in Lincoln high school.

Police Chief Ken Froschheiser said police received a report shortly after 3 p.m. that a youth had been observed at Lincoln high school with a handgun tucked in his waistband. Froschheiser said as soon as officers heard the description they knew who it might be. Froschheiser said an investigation into threatening letters had been underway for some time and they knew who was doing the threatening and who had been threatened. Some letters containing the threats had been turned over to law enforcement officials. The youth who was being threatened in the letter had not received the threats.

As the report came in, officers quickly responded. Two officers located the youth identified in the letters at the school and kept him from going outside. Several other officers, including officials from the Bureau of Criminal Apprehension and Pennington County Sheriff's department began searching for a vehicle with the suspect in it. Officers observed the suspect in a vehicle a short time later. At about 3:15 p.m. the vehicle was pulled over on Knight avenue near the student's parking lot. It was quickly blocked from escape by law enforcement squad cars. It also happened to be just as students were being released from school.

Through the investigation, Chief

ODC program discussed during Handicapped month

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Local merchants and representatives of various agencies met Tuesday morning to discuss the progress of the Occupational Development Center's (ODC) placement program for their clients. The ODC has placed between 20 and 25 clients in jobs since the program began.

Without the cooperation of local merchants and agencies, placement of the handicapped individuals in the community would be impossible. Tuesday's meeting was designed to recognize the contribution of merchants and attempt to generate the interest and awareness of other merchants. It is National Disability Employment Awareness Month.

Clients of the ODC are Americans with disabilities. They have a variety of disabilities, needs and skills, as well. The 20 to 25 clients in the community who have gainful employment as a result of the program, occupy a useful niche in the workforce, as the merchants and agency representatives testified Tuesday.

Clients perform a number of jobs such as washing dishes, mowing lawns, cleaning cars, preparing food, and many other useful functions. These clients bring to the job the training needed to perform those functions, a job coach to make sure they perform those functions, a good attitude toward work, reliability, and the support and backing of federal and state agencies.

Not only should employers be aware of the benefits of employing handicapped workers, new laws will soon require employers to give people with disabilities an equal chance at getting a job and an equal chance of doing the job. One of the purposes of National Disability Employment Awareness month is to alert employers to the effective dates of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA).

The ADA was signed into law on July 26, 1990. The act prohibits discrimination against people with disabilities in employment, transportation, public accommodation, communications and activities of state and local government. Provisions of the law become effective at various times ranging from 30 days to 30 years. The first deadline is July 26, 1992 for employers of 25 people or more. On that date they will be required to give people with disabilities and equal chance at getting and doing the job.

The theme of National Disability Employment awareness month is "From Americans with Disabilities Act to Empowerment: Work — the Key to Opportunity".

Richard C. Douglas, executive director of the President's Committee on Employment of People with Disabilities, said: "This year we are launching a marketing campaign to assist the nation in complying with the new law. We will do whatever it takes to assist employers, people with disabilities, and professionals to use this law to improve employment opportunities for people with disabilities.

"A high priority," he added, "is to persuade Americans to change their attitudes

Policy clear for newspaper carriers in TRF

Newspaper carriers in Thief River Falls are having difficulty with dogs in the community.

The policy at The Times is that carriers deliver the Northern Watch from Friday night at 7 p.m. to Saturday at noon. Residents should leave their front screen doors open so that the newspaper can be dropped off. Newspaper carriers cannot put newspapers in the mailbox because of U.S. Postal department regulations.

If a newspaper carrier has difficulty with a resident's pet, the carrier is told to skip the residence. The safety of the carriers is very important to The Times. So if you are not getting the Northern Watch and have a pet that is loose or blocking the carrier's path, the policy is clear.

It would be greatly appreciated by the newspaper carriers and The Times if pets were tied up away from the carrier's path to the front door. If you have questions contact The Times at 681-4450.

Middle River bank looks for growth in T.R.F. location

"We felt this was a good opportunity to come into Thief River Falls," notes Curt Neumann, chairman of the board of First National Bank of Middle River which is building a new bank building on highway 59 south in Thief River Falls.

"There are certain areas of the banking business which require growth in size," he added, "and we believe Thief River Falls will afford that opportunity."

Neumann and his wife Terry were in Thief River Falls Wednesday to check progress of the new bank building, footings for which were poured on Tuesday. The 76x56 building will be located on the former Holiday Motel property south of First Street on highway 59.

Once the bank building has been completed (estimated to be March 1, 1992), First National will have its main offices in Thief River Falls and operate the current Middle River bank as a branch operation.

Neumann said he expects that the Thief River Falls bank will provide strength that will translate into more and better services for customers of the Middle River branch.

The new building will be of frame construction with a brick veneer exterior and constructed in a Colonial style, he said. It will have a two-lane drive-up teller service and surfaced parking lot. Over the years the bank has been heavily involved in consumer and agricultural banking and expects to expand into more commercial areas with its Thief River Falls location.

Middle River State bank was chartered on January 2, 1945 and became First National Bank after being purchased by Lowell Pogatchnik in 1968. In 1975 the bank was sold to Jim Kayfes and in 1976 was purchased by Neumann and Ervin Peterson. Neumann had worked at the bank since 1972.

Ervin Peterson is president of

TIMES FOR TODDLERS

ACTIVITIES

Vegetable Soup

Fall and harvest time seems to be the time to think about homemade vegetable soup. Children like to "help" cook, and this is an easy activity to let them help with, but also an effective way to get them to eat vegetables, which is a problem for some children.

Some health and safety aspects that we need to be aware of are sharp knives and sanitation. Be sure the children wash their hands before they get started and then be aware that they don't wipe their noses, etc. without washing again. To solve the problem of sharp knives, use the disposable plastic picnic knives. It is surprising how well they work to peel and slice a carrot or potato.

At the same time that you are working on your homemade vegetable soup, be sure to read the book "Stone Soup."

SCAVENGER HUNT

For next week's Activities feature, you will need tissue paper, a piece of yarn or string and black markers.

BOOK OF THE WEEK

Do you have children who have trouble going to sleep? Then the Thief River Falls library recommends the following books:

Fanek, Dennis. Ba Ba Sheep Wouldn't Go To Sleep. A charming tale of a young sheep with too much to do who is determined to fit it all in.

Stevenson, James. We Can't Sleep. Grandpa's rather unusual cure for his sleeplessness seems to work on others as well.

Yolen, Jane. Dragon Night and Other Lullabies. A book of lullabies that a variety of animals might sing to their young.

VIDEO VARIETY

The Thief River Falls public library invites you to enjoy these new videos for ages 2-6 from the Bill Cosby education series, Picture Pages.

Numbers. This video helps your child recognize numbers, teaches them to count and to apply numbers to groupings.

Clear Thinking. This video will help your child identify similarities and differences and to logically connect facts.

PARENTING TIPS

Learning Social Skills

Becoming sociable, happy and emotionally secure is a basic learning task for children. You, the parent, are the key person in helping your child become emotionally healthy. You have many opportunities throughout your day to show him love and to help him learn the social skills needed to get along with others.

According to Alice S. Honig, professor of Child Development at Syracuse university, children need to learn self control. For example they need to obey the rule about not playing with matches. They need to wait if someone else has the toy that they want. They need to learn that they can feel jealous about a baby sister or brother but they must not hurt the baby. Preschoolers need parents to teach them how to express and to handle emotions.

You can help your child learn polite ways to behave with others. Show him or her ways to solve problems. For instance, if your child wants the toy that someone else has, help your child think of different ways to get the toy. Encourage ideas that allow both persons to work out the problem. The aim is for both children to feel okay.

Children who feel good about themselves use their energy for learning about the world. They do not need to fight or pester others for attention.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Use the "what if" approach to help our child think of ideas to solve problems before the situation occurs. "What if you and Jenny both want to play with the doll stroller at the same time?"

VFW Post to host fly-in

Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 2793 will host the "Membership Fly-in" Friday evening, October 18. The annual event is intended to pick up the majority of the Minnesota VFW department's 1992 membership transmittals from all posts throughout the state.

Area VFW representatives with their post colors will greet the national and state officers at 6 p.m. at the Thief River Falls regional airport.

VFW National Senior Vice commander John (Jack) Carney of Melbourne, FL; Department Senior Vice Commander Don Bartholomew; Department Auxiliary Senior Vice President Loretta Radcliff; and Military Order of the Cootie Senior Vice Commander Lloyd Bergum are expected to be the officials arriving with the fly-in group.

Following their arrival and welcome at the airport, the visitors will meet at the VFW club rooms for the buffalo feed being served by Military Order of the Cootie Pup Tent No. 42.

According to VFW Post Commander John Ellison, the fly-in was to take place in Crookston but was changed to Thief River Falls because of the availability of overnight accommodations.

Vice Commander Carney is the first Floridian to hold the national Senior Vice commander post. He is currently the supervisor for administrative services for The Aerospace Corporation, Cape Canaveral Air Force Station in Florida.

He joined the U.S. Navy in 1950, served during the Korean War and was awarded the Korean Service Medal with two stars, United National Service Medal, Presidential Unit Citation, National Defense Service Medal and the Fleet Marine Force Combat Operation Insignia. He was honorably discharged in October of 1954.

Carney joined the VFW in 1958, served as post commander and in every district elective office, being named Florida's All-American Department Commander in 1969-70. He also served as Florida's Adjutant/Quartermaster for seven years, was assistant adjutant general for administration in the VFW national headquarters in Kansas City, served as interim director of the VFW National Home and is presently completing a six-year term on the home's board of trustees.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

The community of Thief River Falls has heard many different opinions about the proposed casino. They've heard only from the adults, though. I'd like to let you know how I and many Northland Community College students feel.

Bringing a new business into Thief River Falls is a great opportunity that should be taken advantage of. As a college student I, understand that after graduation I will probably have to move somewhere else to get a good job. It's sad that Thief River Falls youth is forced to move away because of a lack of career opportunities. Maybe if Thief River Falls starts looking into the future instead of clinging to the past the youth won't be forced to leave. The casino could just be the beginning of new businesses in Thief River Falls.

I can understand why people are against gambling, but no one is going to force them to do it. It is their decision not to gamble. What about those who decide they would enjoy it? is it fair for them not to be able to gamble because some people think it's morally wrong? I don't think so. Everyone deserves a choice.

Change is something that Thief River Falls seems to be afraid of, yet it is necessary. I think it is time everyone starts looking into the future and considering the limited career options there will be for today's youth. We should be trying to build a town that has a future for the kids and a reason for living in the same town as generations of their families did.

Sincerely,
Kim Magner
Thief River Falls

To the Editor,

I don't understand what is going on in Thief River Falls! We live in a democracy, yet we have community leaders urging us not to vote.

The Chamber says they don't want to vote on any new business coming to Thief River Falls, yet on September 6 in the Watch, it was stated that the chamber voted 71 to 29 to endorse the casino. If the Chamber can vote to endorse it, the people of this area have every right to vote as well! We should be heard. This is our community!

As for being "urged not to vote", this must be a first in a community — hopefully it is a last as well. We, the people, should be heard — so come out and vote! It's our constitutional right.

Sincerely,
Vickie Holmaas

Residents of Hallock offer counter-proposal on alley plans

Hallock — Residents of May Place in Hallock do not want to lose an entry to their homes by way of the alley and have met with the city council to protest vacation of the alley as city property. If the vacation took place property owners on either side of the alley would gain half of the property. In this case, the Farmer's Store owns land on either side and has indicated it wants to build in this area. The homeowners are asking for an easement, if the transfer takes places which would assure them of access to their homes and fire safety. (Kittson County Enterprise)

Canadian man stranded on Lake of the Woods

Lake of the Woods — An unidentified Canadian man was stranded on Lake of the Woods, near Swift Ditch, Wednesday, after the engine of his 26 foot Chris Craft vessel took in water and failed. The man began at Zippel Bay and was enroute to the Warroad marina, where he planned to take his boat out of the water for the season. He flagged down a passing plane, which landed on the water and assisted him. The boat was floating about 10 feet into the weeds and had about one foot of water in it. (Warroad Pioneer)

Alcohol Awareness Week observed at UMC

The use of a blood alcohol breathalizer was demonstrated and a red ribbon "Don't Drink and Drive" campaign was held. (Crookston Daily Times)

Sunday bar opening passes first test

Grafton, ND — Grafton bar owners may be able to open Sundays as early as November 19, thanks to a vote by the city council last week. Animals from the Minnesota Zoo will come face-to-face with school children when they Zoo Ark visits Thief River Falls on October 31.

Designed to introduce audiences to various animals and teach them about conservation and the environment, the 45-minute Zoo Ark program will feature a variety of small animals, including a hawk, a boa constrictor and a tarantula. MN Extension agent

Brent Woodward, a Minnesota Extension Service beef cattle scientist, is looking for a few good farms. His objective is to find beef producers willing to demonstrate an approach to profitability called integrated resource management, or IRM.

"IRM involves improving an enterprise by maximizing profitability through the optimum use of all available resources," says Woodward. "Generally this takes place with the help of an interdisciplinary team of consultants. The consultants analyze records to evaluate key performance indicators such as number of open cows, length of calving season, calf death loss, calf growth, cost of production and total profit. The team and producer identify problems to work on. The producer makes the final decision on what changes to make."

The interdisciplinary team might include such people as a county extension agent, veterinarian, feed supplier, lender and ASCS representative.

IRM demonstration farms will be selected by the end of October. Beef producers interested in having their farm become a demonstration farm should contact their county extension office or Brent Woodward, department of Animal Science, 101 Haecker Hall, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, MN 55108-1011; telephone (612) 624-4995.

Win Twins!

Displaying expertise in most phases of the game, the Minnesota Twins convincingly won the American League West championship and followed it up with an even more convincing play-off series win over the Toronto Blue Jays, four games to one. Only four years from its World Series championship of 1987, the Minnesota team is back in the World Series again.

Probably because that 1987 World Series appearance was so long in coming, there was an almost unbelievable excitement across the entire state. And the Twins carried the role of underdogs in that series, winning all four home games to earn the world championship in the seventh and final game.

There were complaints about the Metrodome in that series and the inference, if not the outright contention, that only being home in the dome allowed the Twins to win that championship. This year, with the three-game sweep of Toronto on the Jays' home field after each team had won one game in the Metrodome, that claim should be diminished.

There is excitement again throughout the state, but it hasn't and probably won't reach the fever pitch it did four years ago. Memories of that championship are still fresh and the Twins should be at least even with their National League opponent if not slightly favored. Their starting pitching has been sound, the middle relief men never allowed an earned run in over 18 innings of play-off work, and closer Rick Aguilera has 45 saves through the season and play-offs.

Twins' hitting has been sound, led by perennial leader Kirby Puckett, the Most Valuable Player selection for the play-offs. When a couple of players slump a couple of others pick up the pace. From top to bottom the offensive line-up has no real weak spots.

Defensively the Twins also shine. Not only do they make few errors, they turn many spectacular plays for outs when average fielders would yield hits. This ability has taken them out of many innings which could have been disastrous if the plays weren't made.

If the Twins have a weakness it is in team speed and the inability to consistently put down a sacrifice bunt. Manager Tom Kelly rarely uses the sacrifice bunt, and those of us who question his reluctance need only look at the team won-lost record to find our criticism neutralized. If a team can hit the ball as well as the Twins generally do, the need to sacrifice may indeed be questionable, but we like the sacrifice bunt as part of the overall strategy of the game.

As for team speed, the Twins ripped up the speedy Blue Jays on the base paths in the play-offs. Perhaps they really can run.

As this is written Tuesday the Pirates and Braves have not decided who the Twins will face in the World Series, but Pittsburgh was leading in games 3-2 with only home games remaining. Atlanta, like the Twins, had gone from a last place finish a year ago to a divisional first place finish this year. A series match-up of the Twins and Braves would be an interesting confrontation for that reason alone.

No designated hitter will be used in this year's World Series, meaning Twins pitchers will be placed in the unfamiliar batting role. How they perform at the plate may well be a key to the Twins' success in the series. And it gives Tom Kelly a new managerial worry, having to decide when to lift a pitcher for a pinch hitter. Good teams rise to the challenge, however, and the Twins are a good team.

Win Twins!

Our Two-Bits Worth On The Thomas Hearings...

Sometime way back in the early fall President George Bush nominated Judge Clarence Thomas to become an Associate Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court. It then became the task of the U.S. Senate to confirm that Judge Thomas could be expected to carry out the duties of an Associate Justice—to interpret the Constitution of the United States of America.

It wasn't really too much to expect of a body of officials elected to handle the nation's business in an expeditious manner. It was a simple act that had been performed many times before by many other U.S. Senates with scant public attention and miniscule public input.

But it would appear that U.S. Senators and a flock of special interest zealots don't want their Constitution impartially interpreted any more. They not only want to mix politics with the law, they want politics to determine the law, and they want their particular version of politics to be the law.

Day after day as the hearings dragged on and on questioners sought to elicit from the judge a pre-conceived opinion that they knew full well they weren't going to get. Judge Thomas refused to commit himself to how he would rule on the question of abortion. He answered that re-phrased question with as many re-phrased answers, and it irritated his detractors. His position was entirely reasonable. Who would want to appear in front of a jurist who has decided the verdict before the case comes to trial?

Enter Professor Anita Hill, first an anonymous accuser, then a public one who was brought forward (or flushed out, depending on who you listen to) to accuse the Judge of sexual harassment alleged to have happened some 10 years ago. Hold the decision! Red flag! Red flag! Call for more hearings! More TV exposure for Senators! More soap opera appeal!

Suppose the accuser was a white male who complained that 10 years ago he had been fired as the judge's gardener without cause and replaced by an Hispanic gardener. Would a 10-year-old gripe about racial bias have attracted the same "concern" or attention that the sexual harassment complaint did? You know the answer.

We didn't waste our time watching the hearings themselves, but the news reports we have read and the brief televised news clips we have seen indicate Anita Hill used graphic sexual terminology in her accounts and that questioners eagerly pressed her for more of it. She says he said it, he says he didn't. One must be lying.

There are few really good liars around these days. We mean really good liars, the kind who are so good at it that they believe their lies are the truth. Could it be a coincidence that two of them would meet at the same Senate hearing?

Or does it really matter at all?

It has been almost two thousand years since earth contained Someone with the perfection that the U.S. Senate is apparently seeking for an Associate Justice—and the political officials of the day allowed Him to be crucified. There must be a message in there somewhere.

Our seamless gutters are manufactured from .032 gauge pre painted aluminum, the heaviest gauge used in the industry. If your home is 20 feet or 200 feet in length our seamless gutter is made in one continuous length, eliminating any joints or seams in the middle. Inquire before you purchase "Seamless Gutter" about the thickness of the material used, and be certain that it is made in one continuous length.

Seamless gutter is formed, cut and installed on site by a two man crew... saving on labor costs. Freight charges are eliminated. Waste is almost unheard of due to gutter being measured and cut on site to exact lengths. No need to store left over odds and ends that get damaged before they can be used. More interst in Pseudorabies noted by Minnesota officials

"During the past year, the board of Animal Health has seen a considerable increase in interest by swine producers in the nationwide Pseudorabies Eradication Program," says Dr. Thomas Hagerty, state veterinarian.

The availability of differential tests for vaccinated swine and state and federal funds for herd cleanup are being credited with the changing attitudes. Dr. Hagerty says, "Farmers are now beginning to recognize the effects of PRV free herds on finishing performances."

An example of Minnesota's swine industry's commitment towards the eradication is a rule change recommended by the Pseudorabies Advisory Committee and adopted by the Board requiring that all swine herds in the state be tested (Monitored) to establish their herd status by July 1, 1991. This program is close to completion and has been well received by the swine producers.

Minnesota has approximately 15,000 swine herds and thus far, pseudorabies testing has been done on about 12,000 herds. "This shows a remarkable degree of cooperation by the swine industry", says Dr. Hagerty. As of September 1, there were 879 pseudorabies infected herds in Minnesota, however, 506 herds have been removed from quarantine during the past two years.

The Minnesota Pork Producers Association, the Pseudorabies Advisory Committee, the Minnesota Livestock Breeders Association, and the Minnesota Veterinary Medical Association have all passed resolutions supporting pseudorabies eradication. The goal of the program is to control the spread of pseudorabies by finding all PRV infected herds and cleaning them up at state and federal expense.

For eradication purposes, the state has been divided into a northern and southern zone. A slaughter plant surveillance system to test cull boars and sows has been established to detect any PRV infection in the northern zone. It is hoped to have that area declared a Stage III area within the next few months. Stage III is the Mandatory Herd Cleanup Stage of the national eradication program.

"Nationwide eradication is proceeding well in most states. This includes Iowa, which has eradication programs in 30 counties. The goal is to complete eradication by the year 2000; most states should reach that goal," says Dr. Hagerty.

Healthy children topic November 7

"Working Together for Healthy Children" is the topic for a teleconference to be received Thursday, November 7, from noon to 3 p.m. at the Thief River Falls Technical college and more than 200 other sites in the United States.

Cost to attend the conference is $10 and all registrations should be sent to the TRFTC. Continuing education credits will be available for health professional groups including nurses, dietitians, dietary managers, school food service directors and home economists.

Current estimates are that one in five children is overweight and one in three has high blood cholesterol level. According to the Food Research and Action Center in Washington, DC, 5.5 million children under 12 years of age in the United States are now hungry and an additional six million children under 12 years at risk of hunger.

The teleconference is being made available here through the cooperative efforts of the Pennington county extension service and the customized training divisions of the technical colleges in Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks.

Middle River bank looks for growth

the Middle River bank with Clayton Troskey as executive vice president and Scottie Peterson as assistant vice president. Other board members are Ronald Davidson of Holt, Terry Neumann of Hawley and Betty Peterson of Middle River. LeMae Ryba is cashier and Emma Anderson is assistant cashier.

The Neumanns currently live in Hawley where he is chairman of the board of the First National Bank of Hawley. He is also chairman of the board of the Citizens State Bank of Barrett. Neumann and Peterson acquired ownership in the Barrett bank in 1982 and the Hawley bank in 1984.

Curt and Terry said they plan to move to Thief River Falls at least a couple of months prior to the planned opening of the bank March 1, 1992. He will be devoting most of his time to the new bank here and spending less time on the road to work at the other banks.

First National Bank of Middle River had assets of about $5 million when Peterson and Neumann purchased it in 1976. It has had steady growth and now has assets of about $12.7 million.

"I believe we are a strong bank," Neumann said. "We have maintained in excess of 10 per cent capital, even during some of the most difficult years for farmers in our area."

He said that decisions regarding staffing of the new bank and the branch at Middle River will likely not be made until much nearer the time the new building will be ready for use here.

The ball bounced into the net as Thief River Falls' LuAnne Maslowski tried to bump it over a Fosston defender during Tuesday's high school volleyball match. The Greyhounds defeated the host Prowlers in a 15-7, 15-6, 15-4 sweep.

Greyhounds sweep 3-0 volleyball match...

Prowlers fall to Fosston

Fosston became the third straight area Class A high school volleyball team to register a 3-0 sweep over Class AA Thief River Falls Tuesday as the Greyhounds handled the host Prowlers 15-7, 15-6, 15-4.

Win-E-Mac and Red Lake County Central had similar success against Thief River Falls over the past two weeks.

While the Thief River Falls record dipped to 5-15 with the losses, the caliber of the competition should not be overlooked, according to Thief River Falls coach Helen Anderson. Win-E-Mac and Fosston were runner-up finishers in the past two Class A state tournaments, and Red Lake County Central is a first-year cooperative that combined solid individual programs in Oklee and Plummer.

"We did a lot of nice things tonight," said Anderson. "I thought the match was a lot closer than what the scores showed. I thought we played well, but they hit the ball harder than we did. Everything they set up they hit hard."

Thief River Falls had a brief 3-0 lead in Game 1, then gave up eight straight points. The Prowlers stayed within 11-7 before giving up a run of points at the end, including a game-ending kill by Angie Carlin – a member of an all-sophomore starting unit for the Greyhounds, who have just two juniors and no seniors on the roster.

Thief River Falls' Game 2 lead was even more brief as a 1-0 lead turned into a 7-1 deficit. Again, Carlin ended it on a kill.

It was all-Fosston in Game 3 as the Greyhounds posted leads of 5-1, 8-2 and 9-4 before finishing with an 11-point spread on a match-ending net violation by the Prowlers.

Leah Sonstelie and Calley Tranby led the Greyhounds with 14 last-touch and 11 service points, respectively. Nessa Anderson had five last-touch points and Toni Chiodo picked up five service points to lead the Prowlers in those scoring categories.

Fosston improved its record to 15-3 with the win.

In preliminary matches, the Thief River Falls junior varsity fell to 4-14 with a 15-6, 15-5 setback, while the Thief River Falls C squads came up with a split – winning the C I match 15-12, 15-13, while losing the C II contest 15-2, 15-11. Thief River Falls is 6-11 overall in C squad play.

Thief River Falls will face Valley North Monday at Alvarado.

TRF Scoring

Last-touch points - Nessa Anderson 5, Kathy Kvick 2, Ali Peterson 3, Toni Chiodo 3, Jamie Martell 2, Amy Erikson 1.

Service points - Toni Chiodo 5, Kathy Kvick 3, Nessa Anderson 3, Jamie Martell 3, Kelly Skaim 2, LuAnne Maslowski 1.

It was an all-South final in doubles, where Breen and Jones came from behind to beat Sara Vandereyk and Patty Pladson of St. Cloud Tech 4-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Middle River-Marshall County Central and Red Lake County Central face challenges Tuesday when the 1991 Section 8C high school football playoffs unfold with quarterfinal games at four sites.

The No. 8-seeded Rebels will head to Warren to take on the No. 1-seeded Ponies, while the No. 6-seeded Mustangs make the move from regular season nine-man ranks to post-season 11-man play when they travel to Blackduck to meet the No. 3-seeded Drakes.

Elsewhere, it'll be No. 5-seeded Red Lake Falls playing No. 4-seeded Indus-Lake of the Woods at Baudette and No. 7-seeded Fosston at No. 2-seeded Fertile-Beltrami.

All Section 8C quarterfinal games have 6 p.m. starting times.

Two teams left out of the Section 8C playoff picture were Badger-Greenbush and Clearbrook-Gonvick.

Middle River-Marshall County Central finished the 1991 regular season schedule at 2-6, including a 37-20 loss to Warren at Newfolden back on Sept. 13.

"We might be a little bigger and a little more physical than they are in the line, but they have some outstanding athletes," pointed out Middle River-Marshall County Central coach Eldon Sparby. "If we can contain their skill people, we could stay with them."

Red Lake County Central played a regular season North Tri-County Conference schedule, finishing 3-5, but the combined enrollment figure of the Oklee-Plummer cooperative surpasses the Minnesota State High School League cut-off for post-season nine-man football, bumping the Mustangs into the Class C 11-man ranks.

Two linemen will be added to the Mustangs' offensive line-up, while they switch from a four to a five-man defensive line and add either another linebacker or another defensive back.

Finding the additional bodies presents a challenge for Red Lake County Central coach Gary Brantl. "One thing we don't have are extra linemen standing around," he noted.

Semifinals will be played Oct. 26 and championship game will be played Nov. 1 at the site of the higher seeded teams.

Playoffs will start Monday for Nine-Man

Most area high school football playoff match-ups were announced Thursday, but pairings in the four-team Section 8 Nine-Man field will not be announced until a coaches seeding meeting is held Wednesday.

The semifinal match-ups will be played Saturday, Oct. 26, and the championship game will be played on Saturday, Nov. 2. Games will be played at 1:30 or 7 p.m., depending up the sites.

Stephen, Kittson County North and Grygla-Goodridge are assured of playoff spots, and the fourth berth will likely go to fellow Top of the State Conference member East Grand Forks Sacred Heart.

But the pairings will not be determined until regular season play is completed Tuesday. Stephen currently has a one-game Top of the State Conference edge on both Kittson County North and Grygla-Goodridge, but the Tigers host the Blue Devils in a 7 p.m. title showdown. Kittson County North will host Valley North that same day.

A Stephen victory will produce a conference crown and the No. 1 post-season seed for the Tigers. But a three-way first place tie would develop if Grygla-Goodridge and Kittson County North pick up regular season-ending wins. And since that scenario would include a Kittson County North win over Grygla-Goodridge, a Stephen victory over Kittson County North and a Grygla-Goodridge decision over Stephen, a coaches vote would dictate post-season positions.

Section 8 Nine-Man members Argyle, Halloek-Kennedy, Tri-County and Valley North will not be involved in post-season play.

In other area Nine-Man playoffs, first round Section 6 games will find No. 5-seeded Big Fork meeting No. 4 Norman County West Monday in Halstad, while No. 6-seeded Red Lake takes on No. 3 Littlefork-Big Falls Tuesday in Littlefork.

Semifinals in the six-team field will find No. 1-seeded Fisher-Climax playing Big Fork or Norman County West Friday in Climax, with No. 2-seeded Win-E-Mac going against either Red Lake or Littlefork-Big Falls Saturday in McIntosh.

Finals will be played Nov. 1 at the site of the highest seeded team.

All Section 6 Nine-Man games will have a 7 p.m. kickoff.

Kelliher-Northome and Ulen-Hitterdal are the only Section 6 teams not included in the playoffs.

Prowlers finish regular season with 29-17 come-from-behind win over EGF...

Another rally, another Thief River Falls win

A game-opening kickoff return for a touchdown failed to light a spark, but Thief River Falls managed to catch fire in the second half Wednesday to turn a 17-7 deficit into a 29-17 regular season-ending high school football win at East Grand Forks.

Thief River Falls' second straight come-from-behind victory – the Prowlers trailed Fergus Falls by the same 17-7 score the previous Friday before coming back to win 20-17 – wrapped up a 5-3 campaign. It's the first winning record for the Thief River Falls football program since a 5-4 finish in 1980, and just the second time over the last 17 years the Prowlers have been above .500.

It started with a bang when Wade Evenson returned the kickoff to start the game 94 yards for a touchdown. Barry Rhineberger added the conversion kick for a 7-0 Thief River Falls lead with just 14 seconds elapsed.

But that was it for first half Thief River Falls excitement. The Green Wave controlled the line of scrimmage in putting together scoring drives on their first three possession to take the 10-point lead.

"I thought the return would really get us fired up," said Thief River Falls coach Jeff Mumm, "but it happened so fast that people might have thought it was going to be easy. East Side really came after us in the first half. They were beating us off the ball."

Thief River Falls stopped the first East Grand Forks drive at the Prowlers' 22, but strong-legged Soren Larsen kicked a 38-yard field goal with 7:23 remaining in the first quarter to start the Green Wave scoring.

A 7-play, 53-yard East Grand Forks march made it 10-7 on a tackle-breaking 17-yard touchdown run by Rick Rivers with 3:17 left in the first quarter.

Rhineberger looked like he put East Grand Forks in a big hole with a 44-yard punt that was downed at the Green Wave 1-yard line. But the Thief River Falls defense didn't hold. What goes into the books as a 10-play, 99-yard scoring drive made it 17-7 when a pass from Jared Kovar settled into the arms of Jason Bies streaking down the left side for a 65-yard touchdown strike with 7:33 remaining in the first half.

Thief River Falls had a chance to get back in it when a 26-yard gain on a fourth-and-12 naked bootleg by quarterback Jason Svir gave the Prowlers a first down at the East Grand Forks 10 with 1:30 still showing. However, after a 5-yard run by fullback Matt Kaushagen, Svir lost the ball at the 14 on a roll-out to the right side with 46 seconds left.

"That one (the late first-half turnover) had me thinking," admitted Mumm. "But we got it going in the second half. Offensively, instead of trying to go outside so much, we decided to go straight at them, and defensively we definitely pick it up a notch in the second half."

The Thief River Falls offensive line took charge after intermission as the Prowlers scored on their first two possessions of the second half to go up 21-17.

A 10-play, 50-yard drive ended on a 1-yard dive by Kaushagen with 4:54 on the clock to cut the difference to 17-14, and after quickly forcing an East Grand Forks punt, the Prowlers had the lead when Svir caught halfback Marc Haugen in full stride on the right side for a 41-yard touchdown pass with 1:09 left in the third quarter.

After Evenson knocked the ball away from Bies on a fourth-and-five pass attempt from the East Grand Forks 30 with 3:06 remaining in the game, the come-from-behind effort was completed when the Prowlers crossed up the Green Wave defense on a 26-yard Svir-to-Haugen touchdown pass with 2:24 left. East Grand Forks was stacked to go after what they guessed would be a clock-eating series of running plays, leaving Haugen wide open in the secondary.

Rhineberger, who has drilled eight straight conversion kicks after having one blocked by Detroit Lakes back on Sept. 6, never had a chance to make it nine in a row as the snap came in high. But Svir, the holder on the kicks, grabbed the ball and sprinted to the left corner of the end zone for a two-pointer.

Svir missed out on a touchdown moments later when he intercepted a long Kovar pass at the Thief River Falls 35 and danced his way through the Green Wave to reach the end zone, only to have the score erased on a holding penalty at midfield.

Kaushagen led the Thief River Falls ground game with 76 yards on 19 carries. Rivera netted a game-high 95 yards on 24 tries for the Green Wave. Svir was 3-for-7 for 70 yards and Kovar was 3-for-13 for 82 yards passing, with a single receiver on both sides catching the passes – Haugen for the Prowlers and Bies for the Green Wave.

"It was a big win for us," mentioned Mumm. "If we play like we did in the second half, if we can put together a complete game, we're a pretty good football team."

Pioneers tackle Brainerd squad

A trip to Brainerd Saturday for a 1:30 p.m. Minnesota Community College Conference football game will determine if Northland is a legitimate Northwest Division title contender.

A wild 32-31 win at the University of Minnesota-Crookston last week not only snapped a season-long six-game losing streak for the Pioneers, it transformed the Pioneers into instant playoff contenders to start a string of three straight regular season-ending games in the Northwest Division, where the winner will move on to the MCCC semifinals next month.

Brainerd is 2-3 in the MCCC, beating Mesabi from the Northeast Division 24-12 and stopping Fergus Falls 24-15 last week to start Northwest Division play. The Raiders lost to Northeast Division foes Hibbing 28-0, Mesabi 24-12 and Itasca 14-6. The Pioneers went 0-4 against the Northeast – losing to Itasca 27-210, Vermilion 40-7, Hibbing 28-0 and Mesabi 23-14 – before out-scoring UMC.

"It's a typical Al Holmes-coached Brainerd team – very physical and very basic," pointed out Northland coach Rick Nelson. "They're very big up front on defense, and they've got a very good quarterback (Jim Carlson of Verndale, who led the Pirates to a 1989 Nine-Man state playoff win over Grygla-Goodridge). He is a very good runner and a very capable thrower."

Northland will need to beat Brainerd, then finish with a win in a regular season finale at home against Fergus Falls the following Friday night, to earn a state playoff berth.

The Pioneers' exploded offensively last week against UMC with a 503-yard day on offense that included a school-record 317-yard rushing performance by Kevin White (Hialeah, FL). Shawn Campbell (Arcadia, FL) added 126 yards on 21 carries, while quarterback Reggie Drummond (North Miami Beach, FL) threw 38 and 27-yard touchdown passes to wide receiver Dennis Carpenter (Oslo).

The skill people had big days, noted Nelson, but the offensive line also deserves some of the credit for the Pioneers outburst, he said. "The offensive line really came off the ball as a unit," Nelson explained.

That line is anchored by 6-3, 240-pound center Greg Monson (Grygla) and 6-2, 235-pound left tackle Kurt Kluzak (Rosemount). Rotating at the guards are 5-10, 220-pound Ron Hamm (Oklee), 5-10, 190-pound Derek Landerville (Argyle), 6-2, 190-pound Steve Heggen (Argyle) and 6-2, 210-pound Daryl Fish (Warroad). Time at right tackle is shared by 6-0, 245-pound Jarod Spoor (East Grand Forks) and 6-3, 230-pound Shane Noble (Warroad).

UMC will be at Fergus Falls in the other Saturday Northwest Division draw.

Rams down Nordics 3-1 in volleyball

Something was missing, according to Marshall County Central coach Mark Jorgenson, after his team took on once-beaten Roseau in a Tuesday night high school volleyball match.

"Neither team played exceptionally well," said Jorgenson. "We just never clicked all night."

Also missing from the Marshall County Central package was a win as the host Rams picked up a 15-11, 12-15, 15-6, 15-13 decision.

"We had a little spark from time-to-time, but there was no big fire," said Jorgenson. "We weren't making the simple plays."

It was the second loss of the year at the hands of the Rams for the Nordics, who will take an 11-8 record into a Monday match at Warren. They host Grygla-Goodridge in a rescheduled Wednesday afternoon affair.

Win-E-Mac shuts down RLCC 18-6

Defense won an 8-6 Red Lake County Central match-up with Red Lake the previous Friday, but the same defensive effort wasn't able to compensate for a struggling offense Tuesday when the Mustangs closed out their 1991 high school football season with an 18-6 North Tri-County Conference loss at the hands of Win-E-Mac in Oklee.

"Our defense kept us in the game," said Red Lake County Central coach Gary Brantl. "We've played some outstanding defense the last couple of games. But we've had trouble moving the ball ourselves. Their people up front pretty much controlled the line of scrimmage on us."

The Mustangs netted just 19 yards on 28 rushing attempts as they failed in their bid to reach .500 for the year – finishing 3-5.

Quarterback Scott Lorenson was 5-for-12 passing for 76 yards, which still left the Mustangs short of the 100-yard mark for the day in total offense.

However, the Red Lake County Central defense kept it close. Win-E-Mac scored on a 20-yard first quarter run by Jason Noyes and on an 8-yard second quarter run by Corey Simonson, but a 1-yard touchdown for Lorenson pulled the Mustangs within 12-6 in the third quarter.

And they had a shot at gaining a tie or taking the lead when Red Lake County Central picked up a first down inside the Win-E-Mac 10-yard line, only to give up the ball on downs at the 4.

A 35-yard run by Noyes midway through the fourth quarter clinched it for the Patriots.

Jacob Melby was in on 16 tackles to lead the determined Red Lake County Central defense, while Eric Kolstoe was credited with 12 tackles/assists, Adam Lundeen 11 and Bernie DeHate 7.

Rebels lose in overtime

A tough-luck regular season schedule for Middle River-Marshall County Central ended with a double-overtime 22-15 loss to Hawley Wednesday in Middle River.

It was a 2-6 finish for the Rebels, who were winless as a first-year cooperative a year ago. The six losses, however, included two overtime setbacks and a season-opening 7-0 defeat at the hands of a Lake Park-Audubon team that carried an unbeaten record into the final week of regular season play.

"It was a pretty good effort," said Middle River-Marshall County Central coach Eldon Sparby after the Rebels' frustration continued. "It was an excellent hard-hitting ball game. A couple of big plays beat us."

Defense controlled most of the action. A fumbled Middle River-Marshall County Central punt return was recovered by Hawley and converted into a 1-yard Dan Dauner touchdown midway through the second quarter, while a 1-yard touchdown run by David Blazek with 2 1/2 minutes left in regulation time finished off one of the few Rebels drives of the night.

Middle River-Marshall County Central had moved inside the Hawley 10-yard line before losing the ball on an interception, but the Rebels forced a punt, and turned the ensuing possession into the game-tying touchdown drive.

Both sides converted the two-point conversions following the touchdowns, with Todd Martin catching a pass from Peter Olson to give Hawley the 8-0 lead, while Jeremy Tallum caught a pass from John Sparby to force overtime.

First set of overtime downs from the 10-yard line produced a 2-yard fourth down touchdown by Blazek that was followed by a Tallum kick for a 15-8 Middle River-Marshall County Central lead.

Hawley tied it on a spectacular fourth-down catch in the end zone by Jason Bang and a Marcus Erickson kick. The Nuggets had picked up just four yards in three overtime snaps before Olson's pass was snared on a one-handed diving effort in the corner of the end zone.

It took another fourth down play to give Hawley the lead in the second overtime as Olson ran a naked bootleg for a nine-yard touchdown and Erickson hit the conversion kick for the 22-15 edge.

Second overtime possession for Middle River-Marshall County Central got off to a rocky start when a mix-up in the backfield resulted in a five-yard loss on first down. Three incomplete passes then ended it.

"It was a bummer to lose it like that," offered Sparby. "We're 2-6, but we were only blown out of two games. Otherwise we've played everybody tough."

Blazek netted 75 yards to lead what little offense the Rebels mustered. But Hawley had just as much trouble moving the ball against a Middle River-Marshall County Central defense that was led by nose guard Dan Koehmstedt (9 solo tackles, 8 assists, 1 quarterback sack) and tackle Terry Helm (8 solo tackles, 6 assists).

Freshmen finish 6-2

Steve Burslie scored five touchdowns Tuesday as the Thief River Falls freshmen finished their 1991 football season with a 50-24 win over Warroad at Prowler Field.

Burslie caught touchdown passes from Eric Bjorgaard covering 20 and 25 yards to start the scoring, then reached the end zone on runs of 11, 10 and 3 yards. Nathan Anderson scored on a 35-yard pass interception return and Tim Barry went 60 yards with a quarterback sneak.

Bjorgaard went in for one two-point conversion and passed to Burslie for a second, while the final conversion was handled by Jason Hruby, Ryan Wold and Adam Henney before winding up as a fumble recovery in the end zone.

Thief River Falls, coached by Glen Peters and John Schmitz, led 14-0 at the end of the first quarter, 28-12 at halftime and 44-12 through three quarters en route to a 6-2 finish.

Blue Devils win 27-0

Justin Lunsetter rushed for 201 yards on 22 carries and scored three touchdowns Wednesday afternoon as Grygla-Goodridge shut out Argyle 27-0 in a Top of the State Conference nine-man high school football game.

The Blue Devils turned a close 6-0 contest into an easy win with a 21-point third quarter outburst.

"It was a good, hard-hitting football game," reported Grygla-Goodridge coach Darwin Hagen.

The win put the Blue Devils at 6-1 for the year. They can share the Top of the State Conference title with a regular season-ending win over unbeaten Stephen Tuesday on the Tigers' field.

While Lunsetter was racking up the yards and the points on offense, defensive tackles Jeremy Rychlock and Brandon Blaine were heading the Blue Devils' shut out efforts on defense, pointed out Hagen.

Conservation department officials are puzzled as to whether this pile of ducks dumped on the shoulder of a county road a mile south of Thief River Falls involves any law violation except littering. About 25 ducks of a number of species were in the pile, each having the breast meat removed. Wanton waste would probably not be charged since the breast meat was taken. Enough hunters could have been involved to make the possession limit legal. And if the birds had been taken to a residence before the meat was removed, they would have been legally transported (law requires a feathered wing attached for legal transport). Dumping of the ducks on the road shoulder near a well-used intersection has caused some public reaction, however, and anyone who has information about the circumstances is encouraged to call the local DNR wildlife office at 681-7790.

Beef producers demonstration on measurement

Demonstrations on how to do pelvic measurements on beef cattle will be given by Dr. Harvey Peterson, extension animal scientist at the University of Minnesota—Crookston, at three area farms Monday, October 21.

In addition a meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Plummer school library to discuss selection of heifers as determined by pelvic measurements. Focus will be on use of the measurements as a culling and selection tool for both heifers and bulls and the use of heritabilities and measurements for selection in the long run.

Demonstrations have been scheduled for 1 p.m. Monday at the Gary Purath farm north of Red Lake Falls, 2:45 p.m. at the Gary Hilgeman farm north of Oklee and 4:30 p.m. at the Lowell Dyrud farm north of Thief River Falls.

"Use of pelvic measurements in beef cattle has increased over the past few years as a gauge for potential calving problems," notes Howard Person, Pennington county extension agent.

"For example," he said, "a 600-pound yearling heifer should have a pelvic measurement of 140 to 160 square centimeters in order to have a 70 to 80-pound calf."

The demonstrations and evening meeting are free to anyone who would be interested in attending. Producers are encouraged to attend the demonstration most convenient for them and to participate in the 7:30 p.m. meeting at the Plummer school.

Demonstrations and informational meeting are sponsored by the Northern Lites Extension Cluster. For directions to any of the farms call the Pennington county extension office at 681-2116.

Research shows cancer risk can be lowered

Less dietary fat, fewer calories, more exercise — that prescription for a longer, healthier and possibly cancer-free life was the basic research message delivered at the American Institute for Cancer Research's 1991 Scientific Research Conference held recently in Arlington, VA.

Cancer researchers reporting at the conference continued to stress the importance of positive dietary choices in helping to reduce cancer risk. Titled "Exercise, Calories, Fat and Cancer," the conference presented some of the latest research linking high fat diets to higher levels of breast, colon and prostate cancer. But presenters at the conference also stressed the role that restricting calories seems to play in reducing cancer risk, as well as reporting on studies showing the positive effects of long term exercise in lowering rates for certain cancers.

The many questions still to be answered in the field of diet, nutrition and cancer became evident in research reports showing sometimes conflicting results. Dr. Ernst Wynder of the American Health Foundation reported on his studies which show breast cancer rates increasing in populations consuming diets high in fat. Dr. Walter Willett of Harvard University, however, reported on his 8-year tracking of 127,000 nurses in which the amount of dietary fat eaten seemed to have little or no link to reported cases of breast cancer. Many researchers at the conference emphasized the need for more precise data. These include developing methods to more accurately measure foods consumed and to ensure compliance in large scale human studies of nutrition and cancer.

In opening the conference, Marilyn Gentry, president of the American Institute for Cancer Research, emphasized that researching diet and cancer had already pointed toward many positive steps that consumers could take to lower cancer risk. But she also noted that there were still many questions to be answered, a fact borne out by the research results reported during the event, and the calls for additional areas of research.

The conference included speakers from a wide range of universities and research centers, including Stanford University, Dartmouth Medical School, AMC Cancer Center, Boston University and Harvard University. The keynote speaker for the conference banquet was Dr. Mark Hegsted of Harvard University, one of the most renowned researchers in the diet and cancer field.

The American Institute for Cancer Research is the only national cancer organization focusing exclusively in the area of diet and cancer. This research conference is part of the Institute's overall researching effort, which has committed more than $16 million to cancer research projects across the United States.

Additional information on the American Institute for Cancer Research's programs in cancer research and cancer education is available by writing to American Institute for Cancer Research, Washington, DC, 20069.

Arena walking program starts

Walking program at the Thief River Falls sports arena will not begin until Monday, November 18, instead of November 5 as had been announced in Friday's edition of the Northern Watch.

October 20-26 Safety Week

"Be Cool, Follow The Rules" is the theme for School Bus Safety Week October 20-26. In Minnesota the emphasis during the week will be on safe driving near school buses.

The school bus week emphasis calls attention to the requirement for drivers to stop when approaching or overtaking a school bus that is displaying flashing red lights and an extended stop arm. Unfortunately, many drivers stop for these signals, then proceed as they would at a through stop. The law requires that drivers approaching or overtaking a school bus stop and stay stopped until the signals are turned off.

Minnesota law requires motorists to stop at least 20 feet from any bus displaying signals. The only exception is when approaching from the front on the opposite side of a highway that is divided by a physical barrier. State law has been changed, making it a gross misdemeanor to pass a school bus on the right while the stop arm is activated or passing on the left while the arms are activated and children are crossing the street.

LHS Marching band learns of trip to Calgary

Fund-raising for the Lincoln high school marching band trip to Calgary next summer begins almost immediately.

Marching Band Director Bruce Felt announced this week that the band is planning to participate in Calgary Stampede activities next summer. The band would be among about 25 bands scheduled to march in the parade on July 3. Felt said the parade is held on a Friday and is broadcast over Canadian television in Winnipeg, and thus into Thief River Falls the following day. Felt said the trip will cost students about $400 each. The last time the band took a trip was in 1984.

An informational meeting for parents and students has been scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, October 29.

Students eligible to march include all students who marched last summer and this year's eighth grade students. That means about 89 students will return. Felt expects about 125 students to participate in the marching band trip.

This is the second season for the marching band. It grew from 55 the first year to 90 the second year. Felt's marching band has had relatively good success in its marching band contest appearances, taking second to more established and experienced bands three times this season.

In addition to the marching band appearance, the band will perform at a number of other activities during the eight-day bus trip to Calgary. Felt said an itinerary has not been developed. While in Calgary, students will stay overnight at a high school and visit the Banff and Lake Louise area. Trip plans also include a visit to Glacier National Park in Montana.

Fund-raising efforts have already begun. Felt said the first organized effort will be a coupon book. Letters have been sent to about 70 merchants. He said he hopes the book will have a value of about $125 and cost around $10 to $12. Felt mentioned that it is the intent of the band not to compete with merchants in selling products.

Other fund-raising efforts tentatively planned include the Tour of Homes, which was conducted by the orchestra in the past, and a marathon concert in which students will raise pledges for a 14-hour concert.

A burger dinner on November 4 is also for the band. Felt said the funds from that event are not necessarily for the trip. Money from the event will help pay for uniform pants, hat boxes, buttons etc....

Formal word about their acceptance has not been received yet Felt is looking forward to the event as are the students. Felt believes the band will be approved and that the band needs a head start in their fund-raising efforts.

DelRey Sperby, an attorney with Wurst, McDowell, Ihle and Sparby Ltd. in Thief River Falls, was surprised during the High School Career Information Fair at Lincoln High School when his father Rep. Wally Sperby (right) showed up. Sparby was among about 70 professionals who provided career information to junior and senior high school students during the Career Information Fair. Students from Lincoln high school and Goodridge high school participated in the event. More pictures will appear in the Tuesday edition of The Times.

Proschheiser said, a B-B pistol that looked like a 45 calibre handgun was found along with brass knuckles, and a B-B gun rifle. All of the individuals in the vehicle were taken to the law enforcement center. Law enforcement officials identified the individuals as the following: Christ Quiroga, 19, St. Paul; a 15-year-old boy from St. Paul; a 14-year-old boy from St. Paul; John Gooselaw, 18, Thief River Falls; and a 15-year-old boy from Thief River Falls. As of Thursday morning, only one of the youths, a 15-year-old boy from St. Paul, faced charges. Proschheiser said he anticipates charges of carrying a dangerous weapon to be filed against the youth. He also said the investigation into the incident is continuing.

Proschheiser said officers acted in a manner befitting a response to a felony. The number of youths, the distance they travelled to get in Thief River Falls and the report of a handgun led to the decision to respond as they did.

Construction progress in Thief River Falls this fall includes the new gas station and convenience store which is being built at the intersection of Pennington Avenue and First Street. Concrete was poured earlier in the week and framework for the walls was erected Thursday. On this and other projects in the community haste is being made to enclose buildings before the full blast of winter is felt and temperatures plummet.

Council decision on casino nearing

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Each side proclaimed a victory Tuesday night in the dispute over the proposed casino in Thief River Falls. Opposing sides, however, left agreeing to disagree and agreeing to let elected officials make the decision.

But the Thief River Falls City Council won't make a decision until October 29. According to City Attorney Paul Ihle, the compact may be in the hands of city councilmen and ready for review by week end.

Although a decision about the casino is probably not imminent next Tuesday, Mayor Bob Carlson urged the council to have a meeting for quick action on the contract. Carlson said, "This issue cannot continue to fester and boil in this community."

First on the agenda was a comment read by Roger Reuter of the Citizens Committee for a Better Tomorrow. Reuter said, "We couldn't be more pleased with the outcome of Saturday's vote. If it were possible we would personally thank each and everyone of the thousands of residents of Pennington County who showed that no special interest group can make us take part in a vote that is discriminatory, disrespectful, uncalled for and against our Bill of Rights.

"We are now confident that the County Commissioners and the City Council can feel assured that the vast majority of Pennington county residents trust in and respect our elected officials. We feel our elected officials are the most informed and best qualified to look at the contract between the city, the county and the Red Lake Band and make their decision based on facts. This would allow the Red Lake Band to have the respect that they deserve. Business partnerships in good faith have been the backbone of this country and we ask you to show good faith, respect and fair judgement as you decide for us, the future of Thief River Falls and Pennington county."

Following Reuter's presentation, David Grothe of the Citizens Advisory Vote Committee, presented the results of the vote for the council's consideration. He said the vote should give officials a sense of what the citizens wanted. It was an open poll in which people were asked to vote yes or no.

Mayor Carlson said he was still of the opinion that Grothe's committee had done the community a service. Why the Chamber and Jobs Inc. decided to discourage people to vote is unclear to him but said if they had encouraged people to vote they would have been able to say to him, "I told you so".

Attorney Paul Ihle said the agreement was now in the hands of the Red Lake Band tribal council and their legal counsel. He said he learned that the band believed there had to be a couple of refinements. Ihle said those changes seem to be acceptable to the local committee working on the contract.

When Mayor Carlson asked if anyone else had any comments to make about the issue, Pastor Michael Forsberg stood up and publicly commended Grothe. As a Christian and an American, he said, he makes no apology in the action and things he has done.

Mayor Carlson commented that the debate on the vote will continue. He added that it's a no win deal and he would like to get it over with as soon as possible.

Larry Rohlf, chamber president, said he had met briefly with Grothe after the county board meeting and decided they could agree to disagree.

NWRDC committee to hear about ethanol

Northwest Regional Development commission's economic development planning committee will hear two representatives from the American Coalition for Ethanol (ACE) at its meeting Thursday, November 14, at the Best Western Inn of Thief River Falls.

The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. and is open to the interested public. During their presentations, the ACE representatives will present an overview of the ethanol market in the region and the nation, provide a synopsis of current and planned ethanol production and discuss the potential for ethanol production in this area. They will also respond to questions from the audience.

Making the ACE presentations will be Merle Anderson, a farmer from Climax who is president of the coalition, and Laurie McMerty, projects director.

Anderson has had an active involvement in farm organizations and rural electric cooperatives. A director of the board of Minnkota Power Cooperative he is also a past president of the Red River Valley Potato Growers association and the National Potato council. He is a long-time supporter of ethanol fuel and the founder of the American Coalition for Ethanol.

McMerty has served as executive vice president of the North Dakota Water Users Association, marketing director for the State of North Dakota and has been the ACE projects director since June of 1990.

The American Coalition for Ethanol is a membership organization serving the states of Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota in the promotion of ethanol usage and the encouragement of ethanol production in the region. ACE membership is comprised primarily of agricultural commodity groups, rural electric cooperatives, community businesses, ethanol producers and others who support economic development and stability in the rural sector.

Ethanol is being used increasingly in a blend with gasoline as a motor fuel.

Inglis wins award for child care work

Pennington County Child Care association has selected Judy Inglis of Thief River Falls as the 1991 Outstanding Licensed Family Child Care Provider for Pennington county. Governor Arne H. Carlson has recognized the dedication and concern of licensed family child care providers by designating October 20-26 as Family Child Care Provider Week.

Judy Inglis was recognized locally at a banquet on October 21 at the Best Western. She has been in child care for seven years, and is presently assisted by her mother-in-law, Edna Inglis.

At Judy's child care facility, which is licensed for 12 children, there are four rooms including a puzzle room with about 40 wooden puzzles for the children to play with, a project room for coloring, painting, drawing and clay, a toy room with play house furniture and a slide and a large activity room where the children may watch educational video tapes such as "Barney the Dinosaur" which teaches the alphabet, music and counting.

During the past week the children, who range in age from 18 months to two 8-year-old children who come after school, have been learning Halloween songs and fingerplays and making ghosts and jack-o-lanterns. The children may also sometimes help prepare their own snacks such as monkey bread. During the summer the children are also taken on field trips to the (Continued on Back Page)

Placement of reinforcing steel for the pre-sedimentation basin at the water plant in Thief River Falls was taking place when this photo was taken Thursday afternoon. The poured concrete walls will form the sides of a 68-foot square tank about 20 feet in height. In one of the first steps of the water treatment process, the tank will be used for taste, odor and color removal. Plant superintendent Al Lemm said it will take 5.2 hours for 657,800 gallons of water to move through the pre-sedimentation basin. Work was previously completed on the footings, piping and concrete floor which forms the base for the tank. Extremely heavy reinforcing is required for the concrete to contain the large volume of water.

Newfolden school meeting tonight on $250,000 question

Voters in School District 441 at Newfolden have been invited to attend a public information meeting tonight (Friday, October 25) at 8 p.m. in the Marshall County Central high school library regarding a proposed special levy for the district.

A special election on the proposed additional levy of $250,000 per year for five years beginning in 1993 will be conducted in conjunction with the general election Tuesday, November 5. Passage of the referendum has been projected to result in an increase in property taxes of 37.26 per cent.

Polling places will be at the Holt community center for district residents in Holt, East Valley, Excel and Agder townships, Viking elementary school for those in Comstock, Viking and New Solum townships and the Newfolden elementary school for those who live in Foltien, Marsh Grove, Newfolden, Wright, West Valley, New Maine and Spruce Valley townships. Polls will be open from 3 to 8 p.m.

At the information meeting tonight members of the board of education will make presentations and lead discussion on the need for additional levy funds.

In addition, Bob Hanson, Marshall county assessor, will be available to discuss the tax impact of the levy on individual properties. He will meet privately with property owners who would like to find out what their specific tax liability would be if the levy is approved.

Supt. Gene Busch said that the special levy is being requested primarily as a result of two conditions—a declining enrollment at the school and a shift in the tax laws.

"We have been graduating classes of 35 to 39 students while our entering kindergarten classes only have 24 to 26 students," Supt. Busch said. "In the 1990-1991 (Continued on Back Page)

Lion's Halloween parties

Two children's Halloween parties will be sponsored on Thursday, October 31, by the Thief River Falls Noon Lion's club at the National Guard armory in Thief River Falls.

From 4 to 5:30 p.m. a party for goblins in kindergarten through fifth grade is planned by the sponsoring Lion's club. Party games will be played, prizes awarded for best costumes in five categories and Halloween treats provided to all children attending. Judging of the costume contest will take place at 5:15 p.m.

Ten prizes will be awarded to first and second place winners in the five general categories of witches, clowns, tramps, gypsies and personality or other characters.

From 7 to 10 p.m. a party for students in sixth through eighth grade will include recorded dance music provided by the KSRQ Music Machine. Free pizza and soft drinks will be provided by the sponsoring club.

Once a student enters the armory for the party, he or she will not be permitted to leave and re-enter the armory, according to John Holthusen, project chairman for the Lion's club.

"The Lion's are again happy to sponsor these events for the children of the community," Holthusen said. "Parents can assist by transporting children to and from the armory at the scheduled times."

Red Lake County — The Red Lake county board recently gave the authority to develop a new trench in the demolition landfill near Red Lake Falls in order to deposit debris. The trench that is presently being used in the landfill is almost full with the additional amount of material from the Highway 32 project this summer. Because of the time of the year, the board felt that the normal bidding process would take too long and has declared the situation an emergency so digging a new trench can begin immediately. Housing shortage noted in Mahnomen

Mahnomen — Finding a place to live in Mahnomen is becoming increasing difficult. Even before the announcement of a future casino, finding housing was frustrating for new people and now it's getting worse, according to Tom Ryan of the Star Cities committee. Because of the casino, prices on homes are also going up. The committee is also worried about new people in the area moving to surrounding communities with a loss to the Mahnomen area. Although the problem is being discussed, however, no solution has been agreed upon at this time. (Mahnomen Pioneer)

Walnut hall at BSU open house held

Bemidji — An open house was held this week to show the renovations and changes in Walnut hall, Bemidji state university's food service building. Outdated equipment was replaced and improvements were made to the serving area during a $1 million renovation project to the building. An Octoberfest meal was served after the open house. Strandquist water system well under way

Strandquist — Work is progressing daily on the installation of new water mains in the city of Strandquist and it is expected that everything will be in place by total freeze up. Trenches are in the process of being dug all over the city and a complete new water system with plastic pipes and a new pump house and equipment is being installed. There were only two shut-offs in the old system, which meant that every time there was a problem at least half the town had to go without water until repairs were made. (North Star News)

Bemidji Tech enrollment up

Bemidji — Enrollment figures at Bemidji technical college show the school with 588 students this fall, a 14 percent increase over a year ago and the highest-ever figure for the school. Of those numbers, 79 percent are full-time students with an average age of 27 year old for all students. (Bemidji Pioneer)

Governor's Design team to visit Waubun

Waubun — The Governor's Design Team, a group of 14-17 people composed of architects, city planners and strategic planners, will help the community of Waubun determine its future needs and set up a plan for the future. The team will visit the area from October 31 to November 1 for a town meeting at the Waubun community center and other meetings with local officials. The group will gather information on community history, economic development and past planning efforts, as well as current issues. (Mahnomen Pioneer)

Ambulance, home health building being built in Fosston

Fosston — Work should be completed on the Fosston Municipal Ambulance service and Fosston Hospital Home Health service, which will be located in the new ambulance building, by mid-December. The garage portion of the building will be finished before that so that the ambulances can be housed there before the weather gets too cold. The 2,450 square foot building is divided in three equal sections: the ambulance garage, ambulance service office and home health care center. (Thirteen Towns)

Tissue Paper Ghosts

Halloween is a delightful time for children and the people who live or work with them. A fun-to-make and simple ghost needs tissue paper, a piece of yarn or string and black markers. Take one tissue and make it into a ball in your fist. Drape the second tissue over it and tie the string around it. You now have a ghost head. Use the black marker to put in the facial features. Hang your tissue ghost up to float in the air currents.

SCAVENGER HUNT

For next week's Activities feature, you will need flour, water, salt, oil, alum and food coloring.

BOOK OF THE WEEK

Preschoolers and early elementary age children love reading about friends. These two books on this subject are at the Thief River Falls public library:

McPhail, David. Lost. As with all McPhail books, the story and illustrations are gentle and fun in this tale of a little boy who comes to the aid of a lost bear.

Marshall, James. The Cut-Ups Carry On. Those cut-ups are back and this time they're enrolled in dance class, a fate they consider worse than death until...

St. Germain, Sharon. The Terrible Fight. Molly and Becky were best friends until the "terrible fight." Their friendship seems ended, until both realize what's really important in their lives.

VIDEO VARIETY

Halloween will soon be here and a new video at the Thief River Falls public library can help parents as they and their children begin making jack-o-lanterns:

How to Carve Great Faces for Halloween. Gordy Falk has established himself as the Pumpkin Man of Wisconsin, having carved 1,000 differnet jack-o-lanterns yearly which attract over 50,000 spectators annually. In this video, he shares his skills.

PARENTING TIPS

Halloween: Fun vs. Fear

Halloween can be an exciting time for both children and adults. However, it can also be a fearful, scary time for young children. For them, a mask is not just a mask: it is Batman or a witch come to life! This does not mean that we have to avoid Halloween, rather we can use it as an opportunity to teach children the meaning of fantasy or pretend play.

If your child appears to be fearful of masks, costumes, etc, here are some suggestions you may want to try to prepare your child for Halloween:

■ Expose your child to some nonthreatening masks (animals, Disney characters, etc.) Leave them where the children can look at them and touch them in their own time and way.

■ Play with masks in front of a mirror. If your child resists holding a mask up to his face, don't force it.

■ Hold a mask over your own face and talk in your "normal" voice and then remove the mask so that your child can see that it is really you.

■ Remember that young children may not know what is pretend and what is real. So don't rush them. Let them ease into the holiday. It often takes years. The best thing you can do for your child is to understand. Tell your child, "I know those masks are scary to you. Stay close to me. I will not let anyone hurt you."

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk to your child about all the Halloween "characters" and decorations. Discuss what is pretend and what is real. Let your child know that you are there to share his or her whole Halloween experience.

There is nothing like the smell of freshly-baked bread. Today I'm going to give you some recipes for homemade bread and buns to make some warm smells in your kitchen to take the chill out of the air.

If you haven't baked yeast bread for a while, bake these buns first to get yourself back into the swing of it:

Lots O' Buns

3 packages dry yeast and
2 teaspoons sugar dissolved in
1/2 cup warm water
Mix together and let stand.
4 cups milk, scalded and cooled to lukewarm
3/4 cup sugar
1 1/2 tablespoons salt
4 cups flour
3 beaten eggs
8 cups flour more

Stir hot milk, sugar and salt. Let cool to lukewarm and add flour. Add yeast mixture and stir. Work in 8 cups flour and knead.

Let rise until double in bulk, knead, and then let rise again.

Shape into buns, let rise and bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes.

If the above recipe sounds like a bit much, try this oatmeal bread to get back in the groove. Have this bread toasted tomorrow morning for a delicious breakfast treat:

Oatmeal Bread

1 1/2 cups boiling water
1 tablespoon shortening
2 teaspoons salt
1 cup quick cooking oatmeal
1 cake or 1 package dry yeast
3/4 cup lukewarm water
1/4 cup molasses
1/4 cup brown sugar
5 cups flour

Combine boiling water, shortening and salt. Stir in oatmeal and cool to lukewarm.

Soften yeast in 3/4 cup lukewarm water, add molasses, brown sugar and 1 cup of flour and beat smooth.

Add oatmeal mixture and enough flour to make a stiff dough. Mix thoroughly and knead smooth and satiny.

Put dough in greased bowl, cover and let rise until doubled. Punch down and divide into 2 portions. Let rest for 10 minutes.

Knead and shape into 2 loaves. Place in greased pans and let rise 1 hour.

Bake 45-50 minutes at 375 degrees.

These buns will be a hit with your homemade soup or a pot of baked beans:

Brown Buns

2 cups milk, scalded and cooled
2/3 cup brown sugar
6 tablespoons shortening
2 teaspoon salt
2 cups whole wheat flour
4 cups white flour
2 packages dry yeast dissolved in
1/2 cup warm water

Mix, and let rise about an hour, and knead. Let rise again for one hour and shape into buns. Let rise and bake at 375 degrees about 15 minutes.

These buns are made special with buttermilk:

Buttermilk Buns

1 quart buttermilk (warmed)
2 cakes of yeast (2 packages of dry would be fine)
3/4 cup warm water
1 cup sugar
1/2 cup shortening or lard (melted)
1 teaspoon soda
2 teaspoon salt

Dissolve yeast in warm water.

Warm buttermilk and place in large mixing bowl. Add sugar, shortening, soda and salt. Mix in enough flour to make a stiff dough.

Let rise until double in bulk. Knead down. Make into buns and let rise until light. Bake at 350 degrees.

This is a delicious dark bread you will want to make often.

Swedish Rye Bread

2 tablespoons shortening
2 tablespoons dark molasses
2 teaspoons salt
1 1/2 cups rye flour
1 can beer (heat)
1 package dry yeast
2 1/2 to 3 cups flour

Combine shortening, molasses, salt, flour and heated beer in mixing bowl. Cool to lukewarm and stir in yeast.

Let rise for one-half hour, then add flour, knead, and place in greased bowl. Cover and let rise until doubled (1 1/2 hours)

Shape into two round loaves. Let rise until very light, about one hour. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes.

(Can also make into buns.)

"FREE AND DEMOCRATIC THIEF RIVER FALLS"

On October 19th there was a vote for or against a gambling casino in Thief River Falls. The voters showed up and voted. Eighty-four percent against and sixteen percent for a gambling casino. All of us had a right to vote. Why didn't more people vote? Because there was another issue which is called discrimination. The vote on the 19th meant you were a person who discriminated against a legal business and the Indian people, not for or against a casino.

My hope is that we don't start electing our officials by not voting or voting on one issue, when really you are voting on something else. I don't call that free or democratic. So when our elected officials don't vote on the casino issue, that means they want it. VOTING IS YOUR RIGHT.

Editorial opinion published on this page, whether locally written or re-printed from other sources is intended to stimulate thinking and discussion among our readers. Opinions expressed by the editor are his own and not necessarily those of other staff members. Opinions expressed in items from other publications may be contradictory to the editor's own views but are offered for their general interest.

Shouldn't Educational Survival Depend On Results?

A few issues ago we published our interview with Joe Nathan, a senior fellow at the Humphrey Institute of Public Affairs and director of the Center for School Change. We found his ideas and comments on education quite interesting.

Published below is an excerpt from Nathan's column "Extra Credit" which appeared earlier this year in the St. Paul Pioneer Press:

In Minnesota's "educational garden," why should we risk destroying our "bumper crop of tomatoes" while ignoring the grasshoppers and drought devouring the larger wheat field?

That's the way Tom Fosse, former school board member in Rothsay, and Minnesota Rural Education Association (MREA) board member, sees the issue of forced consolidation of small rural districts without regard to results or financial situations. Before rushing to decide on such a divisive issue, perhaps we ought to examine the evidence about school effectiveness.

For the last several years, Rothsay offered a $1,000 challenge to any Minnesota school district with more than 4,000 students that could meet or exceed its record in any three of five areas:

• Attendance: Rothsay averaged 96 per cent (1986-1989).

• Graduation Rate: 100 per cent the last three years.

• Extracurricular Participation: Over the last three years, 91 per cent of students in grades 10 through 12 participated in such activities as sports, music, drama and speech.

• Post-Secondary Enrollment: 91 per cent (1982-1985) enrolled in a post-secondary institution.

• Post-Secondary Completion Rate: 75 per cent (1982-85) graduated from a technical, community or four-year college or university. There are many small districts with impressive results....

Perhaps the $3,989 Rothsay spent per student in 1988-89 is too much. It depends. Here's the comparable amount some metro districts spent that year: West St. Paul, $4,273; North St. Paul-Maplewood, $4,353; Bloomington, $4,359; Roseville, $4,496; Centennial, $4,643; St. Paul, $4,738; Edina, $4,876; Hopkins, $5,063; and St. Louis Park, $5,392. (The data came from School District Profiles 1988-89.)

Commissioner of Education Gene Mammenga recommended that districts that enroll fewer than 1,300 students should consolidate, unless they are in extremely sparsely populated areas.

One of Mammenga's administrators, Gil Valdez, says this recommendation comes from studying "the size of schools needed for students to have access on site to courses required for college admission." But what about test scores, graduation rates and other results? "Those weren't the questions I was asked to research," Valdez says.

A 1983 study of Iowa students concluded: "The size of the high school a student graduates from doesn't have anything to do with how well a student does at Iowa State University. The best predictor of a student's academic success is rank in graduating class."

Herb Walberg, professor of education at the University of Illinois in Chicago, looked at 25 studies about consolidation. He wrote, "Generally, it appears that the smaller the district, the higher the achievement when the socio-economic status and per-student expenditures are taken into account."

On several issues, Gov. Carlson has praised Wisconsin's Governor Tommy Thompson, whose state also has many small districts and district enrollments similar to Minnesota. But instead of pushing for consolidation, Gov. Thompson is recommending reducing the size of large districts, breaking up any district larger than 25,000 students.

Shouldn't survival depend, at least to some extent, on results?

The answer to Nathan's question should be obvious, even to number crunchers who set arbitrary limits or are hampered in their studies by tunnel vision. Of course results are important. When it comes to education, what can possibly compare to results?

Area school board members Norma Hanson of Goodridge and Karen Fossell of Plummer serve on the MREA's legislative action committee. Part of their strategy is to document what is happening in rural Minnesota's schools, including the many forms of interdistrict cooperation used to provide enhanced learning opportunities for students.

In attempting to dispel "myths" of rural education such as "bigger is better," they will consider Supt. Gerhardt Meidl's compelling question, "When does a child become anonymous?"

Potential Unrealized Is Smoke In The Wind

Every year professional sports teams draft young athletes who they expect will be able to perform for them at some point in the future. They are selected on the basis of past performance at some level, to be sure, but that performance is only an indicator. Management of the professional teams looks for the individual's potential to perform at a higher level.

More frequently than not, however, that potential goes unfulfilled and the hopes are unrealized. Potential fuels optimism but means nothing until it is converted to performance.

This should be remembered when one gives consideration to anticipation of what effect a gambling casino in Thief River Falls will have on the community. There is potential for establishment and development of additional and existing businesses and employment and revenue. There is potential for increased social services needs, criminal activity, moral decay and undesirable influences. All, some or none of the potential things might happen. Until they do, they are nothing but smoke wafting in the wind.

If you are an optimistic dreamer you will see skyscrapers and neon lights. If you are a pessimistic worrier you will see shadowy figures and wasted lives. If you are a realist, you will understand that the community is unlikely to gain much for the good without giving in to some of the bad.

Along with unrealized potential go unsubstantiated claims, such as the ridiculous claim that everyone who didn't vote in the citizen's referendum on the casino is in favor of it. All that can be reasonably assumed of the non-voters is that they weren't sufficiently motivated to cast a ballot for or against the issue in an unofficial election many believed to be meaningless, and that attitude can be understood. Certainly some cooperated with the organized effort to subvert the election by refusing to vote and undermining the credibility of the results.

Every election, even an official one, has its large share of people who are willing to let someone else make their decisions for them. In our opinion, non-voters are no voters—potential unrealized.... smoke in the wind. Those who vote are the only ones to really express their opinion. To claim otherwise is to merely speculate, and speculation is proof of nothing.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

It is hard to believe the way the banks and restaurants are run in Washington, DC. The way I read it, in the restaurants you can eat or drink anything you want and just sign a charge slip.

At the bank you can write a check for any amount you like with no money in the bank. You would not ever get an overdraft notice. You try that with any local bank and if you are overdrawn a dollar or two you will get a bill for $15 for having an overdraft.

As you all know members of Congress just voted themselves a big raise—twenty-five thousand dollars. They are now making a hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars and that is not all. It costs the taxpayers about six hundred thousand dollars a year for every member of Congress. The money goes to pay for their staff and for every conceivable daily expense. They all seem to have unlimited expense accounts.

It sure would be nice if everybody could set their own wage scale. It makes a person wonder what our government will be like ten years from now, at the rate our deficit is going, and problems ten fold that need fixing.

Eleven years ago Ronnie Reagan promised to cut the cost of governing the American people. It has not worked out that way. It is costing twice as much now. It's a hard pill to swallow when only a few years ago we were the richest country in the world and now we are the biggest debtor nation.

They tell us farmers to tighten our belts and hang on. It's pretty hard when wheat is less than $3 a bushel and a combine costs over a hundred thousand dollars.

The way I see it, if everybody was paying their fair share of taxes including the rich we could have a balanced budget and hold the line on defense spending.

Sincerely,
Melvin Joppru
Thief River Falls

To The Editor:

I cannot believe what I see in the Northern Watch and The Times and what we hear on KTRF radio—a group of people telling local citizens not to vote on the proposed casino. This is America; it is not only our right and privilege but our duty to vote, regardless of the issues voted on.

What we were reading and hearing was "don't vote," not what to vote for but "you can't vote." This is the endeavor of some special interest group. What is their special interest? It sure doesn't seem to be in the young people who really need a center for good entertainment.

We have always been told to vote on all issues, but on this casino we are being told loud and clear on the radio, and seeing big bold letters in newspaper ads, NOT TO VOTE.

I have heard of some of the so-called good results this casino will bring to Thief River Falls, but have missed hearing anything about the need for a healthy swimming pool. Maybe all the extra income from the casino will get a new pool and a youth center? It will be interesting to see all the future progress.

Sincerely,
Boyd W. Wilson

Jail Bird Bob Bollesen makes calls from the jail cell at Falls mall to raise funds for bail. Bollesen participated in the March of Dimes Jail Bail fund-raising activity last week. March of Dimes announced later that it had raised $5,314 in pledges. There were 34 jail birds including Bob Bollesen, Big Red, Sheriff Bob Wold and many others. The event was sponsored locally by Women of Today. Off-duty police officers helped by picking up jail bird candidates. Money raised from the fund-raiser is used for educational materials, services, and research. About 75 per cent of the funds go directly to the mission of the March of Dimes, which is to prevent birth defects.

Univ. Women plan Meet

Thief River Falls branch of the American Association of University Women will host "Meet the Candidates" 7:30 p.m. Monday, October 28, at the Franklin Middle School library.

The public is invited to meet candidates running for office: Robert Reeve and Paul Olson, candidates for mayor; J.J. Womack and John T. Anderson, candidates for the two year term of alderman at large; Jean Heinrichs and Bud Comstock, candidates for alderman-at-large; Milan Borsheim and Milton Burstad, first ward candidates; David Carlson and Bill Hogan, candidates for second ward alderman; Dale Wennberg, candidate for third ward alderman; and Dr. Don Goodrich and Frank Hamerlinck, candidates for fifth ward.

Each candidate will have an opportunity to express why he or she is running for office. The audience will also be allowed to ask questions of the candidates.

Edith Etter will coordinate the evening's program.

Enhanced 911 program

Minnesota Governor Arne Carlson has announced implementation of a 90 day trial program of an enhanced 911 service.

The 90 day trial program begins October 2 when an AT&T Language Line service goes on line. The 24-hour live interpreter service allows foreign speaking citizens to effectively communicate with emergency service personnel. The service will provide interpretation of up to 160 different languages on a real time basis.

Statewide 911 centers will be able to access Language Line via a toll free telephone number where the actual interpretation takes place. If a 911 caller cannot speak English, the operator adds on the Language Line center in California, where a specially trained translator immediately helps determine the language spoken by the emergency caller, and either translates or forwards the call to another translator.

The Language Line Service is a registered trademark of AT&T. The department of administration will implement the service to see if it can be effective in emergency and other communications. Currently the Minneapolis 911 center uses the Language Line.

"With the growing cultural diversity across our state, we must strive to be more responsive to our foreign speaking citizens," Carlson said.

Kevin Nelson interns

Kevin Nelson, a 1986 graduate of Lincoln high school and son of Rick and Kathy Nelson of Thief River Falls, is completing his chiropractic education by serving as chiropractic receptor (intern) at Agassiz Chiropractic clinic in Thief River Falls.

Nelson is in his last trimester at Northwestern College of Chiropractic in Bloomington—the only chiropractic college in the United States to have a chiropractic physicians associate program. The program involves a trimester of instruction and supervised service in the private clinic of selected doctors. Interns must complete all quantitive clinical requirements of the college to be eligible for placement in this program.

For the past year, Nelson has been treating patients at Northwestern's Minneapolis branch clinic—one of four clinics where senior interns treat patients. He was also one of a few students allowed to treat patients at Northwestern's new research facility. His duties at the local clinic cover all aspects of a chiropractic practice and office procedures.

After high school Nelson completed his chiropractic prerequisites at Northland Community college in Thief River Falls and North Dakota State university in Fargo. While at Northwestern he attended optional summer school, enabling him to complete his academic training early.

Nelson's preceptorship will be completed in December and he will then graduate from Northwestern and be prepared to complete the state board examination in the state where he chooses to practice.

PFC Kazmierczak completes school

Army National Guard Private First Class Jeffrey P. Kazmierczak has completed training at the U.S. Army infantry school at Fort Benning near Columbus, GA.

He is the son of Anthony and Bonita Kazmierczak of rural Strandquist and a 1991 graduate of Strandquist high school.

During the course students received training which qualified them as light-weapons infantrymen and as indirect-fire crewmen in a rifle or mortar squad. Instruction included weapons qualifications, tactics, patrolling, land mine warfare and field and combat operations.

Planning for state's future meeting topic

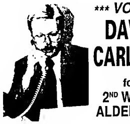
Residents of northwestern Minnesota are invited to a Minnesota Milestones meeting to be conducted Tuesday, October 29, at 2:30 to 5 p.m. or 7 to 9:30 p.m. at Bede ballroom in Bede hall at the University of Minnesota—Crookston.

Minnesota Milestones is an 18-month planning program initiated by Gov. Arne Carlson to learn what residents think are important priorities for Minnesota and to set measurable goals for the state. The effort is organized by Minnesota Planning.

"Minnesota will continue to change," Gov. Carlson said. "I want everyone to have the opportunity to help direct that change. Milestones is the forum for that."

The Crookston session is the 11th of 15 meetings scheduled around the state. Minnesotans are being invited at each to envision the state's future and help produce goals to 'milestones' that will be the basis for a long-range plan.

At each of the meetings those attending are divided into groups of eight to 10 people to spend about 90 minutes discussing their vision for the future. Residents of the area are invited to attend either the afternoon or evening session. A reception will be held at the university between 5 and 6 p.m.



Invited to participate in the UMC session are residents of Becker, Beltrami, Clay, Kittson, Mahnomen, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk and Red Lake counties.

Based on the ideas presented at the community meeting, staff of Minnesota Planning will develop a state vision for the future and set goals that will measure progress toward that vision. A report will be presented to the Governor and Legislature in December of 1992.

Slow Drains?

You'll never have a slow running, or clogged drain again!

The secret? Cleso drains don't run slow. Slow drains, or periodic clogs, are signals that a thick layer of "gook" is choking your pipes. This gook coats the entire length of your pipe- from sink to sewer, or septic.

Conventional drain openers cannot remove this build up. Even a small tunnel through the waste lets them flow through the pipe, leaving the gook behind!

Now, with just a few minutes each month, you can easily clean out your pipes like new.. and KEEP them clean with Plumb Clean. Its totally unique formula clings, and penetrates deep into the gook. That allows it to liquefy even years of build up. Plumb Clean will clean the entire length of your pipes. It will make your drains run like new, when used as directed. This penetrating action is so revolutionary, Plumb Clean is money-back guaranteed!

Save Money. A 1 lb. container of Plumb Clean holds up to 41 drain treatments. Even if drain openers could fix slow drains, you would have to buy over 10 quart bottles to get the same number of treatments. Plumb Clean costs about 35 ¢ per treatment. We don't know of anything that cleans drains for less.

Safety. Conventional drain openers are dangerous chemicals. They can injure eyes on contact. They can release deadly vapors. In some situations. Some, may damage your fixtures. Plumb Clean will not burn skin, or eyes. It will not release harmful fumes. When used as directed, it is 100% safe for people, and of course all plumbing.

So, if your drains are signalling you, get safe, guaranteed Plumb Clean today! Available at:

Scientists begin rural resident water program

Two extension service scientists have developed a unique program for rural residents who are concerned about protecting their drinking water from pollution.

The Farmstead Assessment System, also known as Farm-A-Syst, was produced by James Anderson, soil scientist with the University of Minnesota's Extension Service, and Gary Jackson, water quality education coordinator for the University of Wisconsin Extension Service.

Farm-A-Syst lets its users determine whether their water supplies are threatened and advises them on ways to correct problems. Anderson said the concept is modeled after home energy audits.

About 95 per cent of rural residents in the United States user groundwater for their drinking water and farmstead needs. Without proper management, bacteria, pesticides, fertilizer and oil products can contaminate wells. Fouled drinking water can put family and livestock health at risk. Moreover, once well water is contaminated, it is very difficult to clean up.

Farm-A-Syst's packet of bulletins and worksheet helps farmers and others who live in rural areas identify farm activities and structures that pose major risks to their groundwater. Once problems are identified, the packet suggests ways to correct them and how to get additional information.

Jackson said Farm-A-Syst is the first program that covers the breadth of resources and knowledge on rural water pollution in an understandable and usable fashion. "They've really got a resource directory on their hands," he said. "They don't have to dig through the bureaucratic maze as far as whom to contact to take action."

Topics in the packet include drinking water well conditions; pesticide storage and handling; fertilizer storage and handling; petroleum product storage; hazardous waste management; household wastewater treatment; livestock waste storage; livestock yard management; silage storage and milking center wastewater treatment. The packet also contains a worksheet about soil and geological features that affect groundwater.

Rather than a cure for groundwater problems, Farm-A-Syst is a preventative program; with it, users can protect their water as well as their neighbors'. By answering the questions in each topic category, they can determine whether they face a low, moderate or high risk of pollution. Each worksheet takes 15 to 30 minutes to complete.

"Certainly, any farm family should be interested," Anderson said. "And, any person living in a rural area who has a well and a septic system might be interested. There are things in there that would be very helpful for them."

Anderson said Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa are among the top five states in addressing groundwater pollution problems, an aggressiveness he attributed to the strong environmental ethic in those states. "Part of what we've done in Minnesota — and this progmm is sure evidence of that — is indicate where we have problems and try to do something about them. Some other states that have barely started on the problem," he said.

According to Jackson, Farm-A-Syst was tested on about 200 farms. In every case, farmers found something that needed to be changed.

Farm-A-Syst packets will be distributed nationwide. In Minnesota and Wisconsin, they can be obtained from county extension offices. Or, they can be ordered from the Distribution Center, 3 Coffey Hall, University of Minnesota, 1420 Eckles Ave., St. Paul, MN 55108-1030. Cost of the entire packet (item AG-PC-5696) of 12 worksheets and their companion bulletins is $12. A smaller packet (item AG-PC-5743) for farmers who don't raise livestock costs $8. Rural residents who only want those bulletin-worksheet sets that apply specifically to their situations can buy them for $2 each. Checks should be made payable to the University of Minnesota, and Minnesota orders should include 6.5 per cent sales tax.

Women In Aviation Forming A Global Network Of Support

Ruth Brown

Janese Thatcher

Janese Thatcher speaks of pink-collar ghettos and glass-ceiling office towers with the conviction of a woman whose been there and saw through the sheen.

She isn't vindictive or angry. But she is committed and it shows in the increased numbers of women enrolled in aviation mechanics programs and in the national group she started. Women in Aviation Technologies.

Today she teaches aviation mechanics in the Minnesota Technical College System. Less than ten years ago, she thought there was magic in men's work beyond what she could achieve. It's not because she wasn't smart enough or diligent enough, she said. She had earned a master's degree and was working, but without benefits and job stability.

"I had to think, just how smart am I? I could be making $50,000 as a commercial airline mechanic, have benefits, vacation and a clean place to work.

"As women, we limit ourselves. When I decided to study aviation mechanics at Minneapolis Technical College, the most mechanical thing I had ever done was operate a diaper pin," said Thatcher.

Today, she tells her story over and over to women who half believe she might be right.

"For me it was important for someone to look me in the eye and tell me they knew I could do it," said Thatcher. For the women students she advises as a faculty member at Thief River Falls Technical College, she is an echoing voice of affirmation.

"In aviation mechanics, one of the most important things is to follow the manual exactly. Women who cook do the same things when they read recipes," said Thatcher.

Through a journey that led her as a minority through aviation education and then the workforce at Northwest Airlines, Thatcher saw the nebulous outlines of her next endeavor. She would rally women in aviation together, support them, encourage them and help them find each other.

"There really is nothing to support women in aviation. There were more women in aviation industries during World War II than there are now," she said.

With legal counsel, Thatcher and Ruth Brown, Aviation Administrative Assistant at Thief River Falls, have chartered the national group, asked other women to join them on the board of directors, and now are planning ways to reach more people and change more minds.

For more information about the Aviation Mechanics Program contact Ruth Brown or Janese Thatcher at the Thief River Falls Technical College, (218) 681-4450 or nationwide toll free 1-800-222-2884.

Thief River Falls Technical College Aviation Instructor Is World-Known Expert

Brian Anderson, aviation instructor at Thief River Falls, is the world's leading mechanical authority on the French-designed TBM-700, a single engine, corporate turbo-prop aircraft that retails in the United States for $1.35 million.

The six-passenger carrier travels nearly as fast as a two-engine counterpart for a much smaller price. Several of its kind exist in the United States.

Nearly 100 U.S. orders wait in Aerospatiale's production center near the Pyrenees mountains in southern France. The contracts are valueless unless someone can repair the plane.

As of late August, that person is Anderson, a 35-year-old mechanic with 10 years experience in global aviation maintenance. Anderson is the company's mechanical expertise for all North American sales. He will be out of the Thief River Falls classroom as he shuttles back and forth for Aerospatiale General Aviation.

In 1988, Allen Mickelson, director of Thief River Falls aviation studies, stepped to the plate and batted a curve in France that brought home the technical college system's first international customized training sale.

The summer was a turning point for the giant customized training business Thief River Falls does in France and Australia and many nations in between.

College President Orley Gunderson calls it selling information, a market Americans have not developed as well as other nations. It's a market that clearly exists, in this case, for a French manufacturer selling airplanes internationally.

Anderson and Mickelson have criss-crossed the Atlantic ocean to offer technical training through language interpreters for Aerospatiale and its global customer base.

Nursing Students Staff Camp Sunshine

Camp Sunshine is a non-profit summer camp that provides a recreational experience to children and adults with mental retardation and other developmental disabilities.

The camp is located on beautiful Maple Lake, near Mentor, Minnesota.

Last summer, camp ran for five weeks and served 240 campers. These campers range in age from five to over 80 years. They are from group homes, private homes, nursing homes, and regional treatment centers. Most of them come from Northwestern Minnesota and Northeastern North Dakota.

The campers participate in a variety of activities at the camp such as arts and crafts, swimming, boatrides, overnight camping, sing-a-longs, and a dance.

Some of the campers have been coming to camp ever since Camp Sunshine opened in 1970.

The Staff at the camp consist of nearly 40 individuals from all over the Midwest. There is one registered nurse, one licensed practical nurse, kitchen staff, counselors, program staff, and volunteers. The counselors are mostly college students majoring in special education, nursing, recreation, or other related fields.

Four Nursing students were employed last summer at Camp Sunshine: Darcy Gonsoroski, Counselor; Michelle Bergeron, Director of Volunteer Services; Chris Olson, Program Director; and Larry Anenson, Jr., Camp Director.

Michelle Bergeron's job was to coordinate the volunteer program which consists of five to eight volunteers per week. Most of them were high school students interested in learning more about mental retardation. She was responsible for the orientating, training, and development of these volunteers to become future counselors.

Chris Olson's job was to coordinate and implement daily programs, supervise and develop program staff in activities appropriate to the campers age and ability level.

Darcy Gonsoroski was responsible for the direct care and activities for five to six campers in her cabin. She worked with a team of two to three other staff members.

Larry Anenson's job was the direction of the overall camp; to recruit and hire all staff, to process all camper applicants and forms, to handle all public relations, activities and marketing of the camp.

Camp Sunshine is funded through donations and the camp fee which the campers must pay to come to camp. The camp is grateful for the donation of $700 received from the Thief River Falls Technical College last year.

Larry Anenson started working at Camp Sunshine in 1986 as a counselor. He then went to Assistant Program Director to Camp Director. The campers and staff are the reason he comes back year after year.

He states, "It is fun seeing the campers grow and sometimes change every year. It is fun seeing smiles on all the campers' faces when they arrive at camp, but sad to see tears on their faces when it is time for them to go home.

I enjoy seeing staff develop relationships with different campers as the week progresses. The staff at Camp Sunshine are great. You cannot find a more hardworking, dedicated staff anywhere."

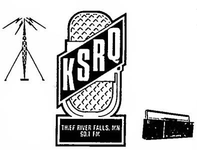
Financial Aid Awards Increase For 1991-92

"Federal and State grants to students increased again for the 1991-92 academic year", according to Jim Fremstad, Technical College Financial Aid Coordinator. Students may be eligible for up to $2739 per year in Pell and State grants, if they are from low income families. With tuition and fee costs of approximately $1700 for Minnesota residents, this leaves many students with funding for books, supplies, and transportation.



Students who need additional funds for child care, room and board or other educational expenses may be eligible for funding through College Work Study or loan programs and may be able to borrow up to $6,625 to assist with additional expenses.

The Job Training Partnership Act may also have funding available in the students home county which would pay for tuition and fees, leaving the student grant funding available for living expenses.

"Many students are apprehensive that financing their education will be a problem" Fremstad continued, "but we certainly recognize individual circumstances. The key is to fill out the ACT Family Financial Statement early and notify the Financial Aid Office of your needs as soon as you get your results back."

Last year, the Techical College distributed over $2,500,000 of financial assistance to students.

Part-Time Students Receive Funding

Are you unsure of your ability to enter the Technical College as a full time student due to a job or family responsibility? Thief River Falls Technical College has a number of students who have started out as part-time students and are now experiencing success and are on their way to improved skills and new careers.

"Students enrolled as part-time students in evening or day-time programs may be eligible for either a part-time grant or regular financial aid programs", commented Jim Fremstad Technical College Financial Aid Coordinator. A simplified application form for students enrolled in less than 6 credits may result in enough financial assistance to meet the cost of tuition, fees, books and supplies.

For example, an independent student with 1990 income of $18,000 and a family size of 3 who is enrolled in a five credit course would receive a $280 part time grant. With tuition and fees of $175, the remainder of the grant would be available for books, supplies and transportation or child care costs.

Students should consider applying in our programs as part-time students, if they wish to "get the feel" of returning to postsecondary education. They can complete their program in a longer period of time and still be able to balance work and family responsibilities.

An Update From Our President

Last year our College set a new enrollment record with approximately a 45% growth in enrollment from 650 full-year equivalent (FYE) students in 1990 to 940 full-year equivalent (FYE) students in 1991. This fall our student headcount is up by 9% from 801 in the fall of 1990 to 876 in the fall of 1991. The number of credits we have sold is up 7% from 12,221 in fall quarter 1990 to 13,078 credits in fall quarter 1991. We currently predict that our year-end FYE continuous enrollment will be up 7% from 940 FYE to over 1,000 FYE. Our total FYE including Customized Training, Farm Business Management, and Small Business Management will be up from 1,240 to approximately 1,310 FYE. Our enrollment growth this year is due to increased numbers of students in Aviation, Nursing, Welding, and the new Avionics program. The growth will mean additional challenges and opportunities for our entire faculty and staff. However, we need to place additional emphasis on recruiting and enrolling more students for main campus programs.

I would like to review the major accomplishments of the year we just finished. In June, Tom Keeney of our Auto Body Repair program placed first in the State Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA) competition and was awarded second place nationally in competition held during the United States VICA Skill Olympics in Louisville, Kentucky. Mr. Ken Wagner and Mr. John Egge are to be complimented on the high quality instruction being delivered in our Auto Body Repair program. Our Aviation Maintenance Technology program was selected to receive the United States Department of Education Secretary's Award for Outstanding Vocational Program in Region V, which consists of five other midwest states.

Norm Halsa worked with our staff to successfully implement the new inter-active television system that is connected to Lincoln High School, University of Minnesota-Crookston, and East Grand Forks TC. Mr. Vern Treat led the staff in a successful effort to become a candidate for North Central Accreditation. Don Jorstad led a project to place a new transmitter on a tower located west of St. Hilaire, which enabled us to increase our transmitting power from 1,000 watts to 25,000 watts. This was made possible through a $274,000 grant which we obtained by working with Representative Sparby and Senator Stumpf in the State Legislature. Arlette Abrahamson worked very hard to place our graduates and the final official state report indicated that graduates from 13 of our 15 programs had 100% placement, while placement in the remaining two was 94% and 70%. Loren Weigand, Olive Goldesberry, and Julie Thorson worked very hard to implement a successful FLEX program that enables us to serve more business students. Don Howe worked closely with the faculty to implement a new marketing and Enrollment Management program.

Bob Bollesen implemented an innovative program with Northwest Airlines that made it possible for us to offer instruction on the new Boeing 757 at our Aviation Center for graduates of our program and/or from other colleges around the nation. Al Mickelson in aviation, and Sharon Erickson in nursing, greatly expanded the size of their respective programs. Finally, last year Jim Fremstad, Donna Quam, and Rollie Boldt distributed approximately $3 million in grants, loans, and scholarships to our students. We truly had a great year.

Some of the major activities and goals that we will work on during the upcoming 91-92 school year include:

1) Construction Request: In September, our College submitted a request to have the 1992 Legislative Session appropriate funds for three separate construction projects totaling approximately $7.1 million dollars. We have requested approximately $2.2 million for a major remodeling and expansion project at the main campus; $1.4 million for a second story classroom addition at the aviation center and $3.5 million for additional hangar/laboratory space at the aviation center. These requests were submitted as the result of a complete facility needs and space options Master Plan that was developed for the College. The study was conducted in conjunction with the Master Plan developed for Northland Community College. It is very comprehensive in nature.

2) Avionics: This fall the College implemented a new two year program in Avionics. We currently have approximately 20 students enrolled in the program and are in the process of hiring a second-year instructor to develop second-year courses and acquire specific equipment. Ralph Cox also worked with the administration to develop and submit a new two-year program proposal requesting funds to train Simulator Maintenance Technicians. The simulators we would prepare students to maintain are used by the major airlines and cost approximately $10 - $15 million per copy. There are many excellent jobs in this field and we are optimistic that we will have this program offering in the near future.

3) Governance: In December, the State Board of Technical Colleges will announce the formation of new Technical College Districts. Our College will be in a new technical college district and we will have a new Board of Education appointed to serve our College. The timelines for this governance transition have not been set but State Board officials have indicated they plan to have the different governance structure in place by July 1, 1992. The entire matter of governance is very muddled at this time, as there are still many differences of opinion as to whether or not we should: 1) remain under K-12 in a small TC district; 2) be under a large regional system; or 3) be included in the "Super Board" Bill which mandates that the State University System, the Community College System and Technical College System all be merged under one Super Board by July 1, 1995. The main thing that I am concerned about is that the "mission" of our Technical College not be changed or diluted. I believe that much of our success is due to the support we have had from our Board of Education, our community, and our area legislators. There have been good things and bad things about our K-12 connection. However, our college has had freedom to be flexible, innovative, creative and aggressive. I hope that the new system of governance — whatever it is — will not result in a system that is bureaucratic and that prevents us from being flexible, responsive, creative, and dynamic in working with students and the businesses that hire our graduates. Simply put,- next year I will have a different job, - and hopefully the new system will make it easier for us to do a better job of educating students.

This year the Faculty Senate will work with the TC administration in identifying major goals for the 91-92 college year. These goals will be finalized in October and used for developing our long-range plan during the current year.

Our College has grown dramatically in the last three years. We have decided we need to spend time on quality and making sure we serve the needs of our students. We have discussed the fact that we must be more customer oriented. One small change we have implemented along these lines relates to the fact that our financial aid, business, and student services offices will remain open beyond the normal 5:00 closing time in order to serve students who attend classes until 10 p.m. We have a line in our college marketing jingle that ends with the phrase "Making a Difference in Your Life". As a College, we plan to do a better job of doing the things that actually can make a positive difference in the lives of the students who attend our college.

Please feel free to stop in and visit our college and discuss any career planning needs that you may have. We also would like to visit with anyone about their ideas and concerns on how we might improve programs and services that we deliver to students attending our college.

Happy Holidays!

Computer Aided Design For The Handicapped

The Thief River Falls Technical College currently offers a variety of CAD (Computer Aided Design) courses using AutoCAD software. The world's most widely used CAD program. These courses are designed to be accessible to those with various physical disabilities as well as able-bodied individuals. All classrooms, lecture rooms, cafeteria facilities, lavatories and meeting areas are accessible. Handicapped parking is also provided on campus.

A variety of CAD classes and electives are scheduled at various times throughout the day. Classes are credit-based and schedules may be tailored to meet a students needs and abilities. A Special Needs department is available for students who need help in math, reading and other skills.

Housing is the responsibility of the student. Handicapped accessible housing is available at various locations in the community. Assistance in finding housing, personal care attendants and other special needs for people with physical disabilities can be provided by "OPTIONS". "OPTIONS" has an office located on the NCC campus.

A variety of specialized computer input devices are available for people with severe physical disabilities. The devices and software provide computer input to those with limited or no use of the hands. The TRF TC uses "AbiliCad" computer software to operate AutoCAD when specialized input devices are used. Various input devices and AbiliCad software are provided at the TRF TC.

Abilicad Program Available At TRF Technical College For Handicapped

AbiliCad is computer software designed to allow people with moderate to severe physical disabilities to draw using a personal computer. AbiliCad allows a user to operate AutoCAD, the world's most widely used CAD (Computer Aided Design) software on an IBM or compatible computer. The AbiliCad program operates within AutoCAD to provide access to AutoCAD's standard commands and menu system. AbiliCad also provides custom menus, settings, pointing, and/or keyboard emulating commands.

AbiliCad is designed to be used by people whose physical disabilities make it difficult or impossible to use a standard keyboard for computer input. This includes non-verbal quadriplegic level people and those with severe disabilities. AbiliCad can accept input from several types of devices that a person with disabilities may already own. These devices include keyboard emulating devices (Prentke Romich Light Talker, CET, etc.), mouse and mouse emulating devices (Prentke Romich HeadMaster, Pointer Systems FreeWheel, etc.), joysticks, trackball and others.

AbiliCad can be used in a typical AutoCAD training environment with standard AutoCAD training materials and equipment (assuming the student provides his/her own input device where necessary). AutoCAD training is available at colleges and AutoCAD Authorized Training Centers throughout the country. Abili-Tech, Inc. will provide technical assistance, when possible, to centers that wish to teach a student using AbiliCad.

AutoCAD is used in architecture, civil, electrical and mechanical engineering, art, desktop publishing, mapping, facilities planning and virtually any field that uses drawings or graphic information to communicate ideas. AbiliCad operates on the typical AutoCAD work stations used in education and industry. No computer hardware modification is required. Input devices and appropriate AbiliCad software will vary according to the user's ability. AbiliCad has no effect on the general operation of AutoCAD and does not require dedicated equipment. This provides the educator or employer with a system that may be used by able-bodied operators or those with disabilities. AbiliCad may also be used by those who choose to work from their home. Completed drawings are transferred to the educator or employer via a telephone modem.

Scott Slocum is a student with physical disability who is enrolled in the Architectural Drafting and Design program, in his third quarter. He is a very bright and capable student, however he requires extensive use of computers because of his physical limitations. Scott does almost all his work on computer, from drawing classes to word processing.

Company From "Down Under" Plans Aviation Training

Bob Bollesen, Director of Thief River Falls Customized Training, has a new-found interest in the workings of the Australian Parliament.

With the governing body's support, Thief River Falls Technical College will be authorized to begin training a contingent of foreign aircraft mechanics employed by Australian-based Pegasus Airmotive. The company specializes in refurbishing aging 747s at a fraction of the cost of new airplanes, said Bolleson.

But Pegasus cannot refurbish U.S.-owned 747s unless their mechanics have an FAA-approved airframe and powerplant (A & P) license.

With Parliamentary approval, the mechanics will be in Thief River Falls this winter to study for the A & P license.

In a masterful plan, Bollesen will contract with Pegasus for classroom and laboratory training. After preliminary study, the mechanics will take the licensing exam. The tests will be transmitted to FAA headquarters in Oklahoma City, scored and sent back within two days.

"We expect we could offer the FAA-certification training to 100-150 people in the next two years," said Bolleson.

When the contract is signed and approved by the Australian Parliament this fall, the Minnesota Technical College System will be further engaged in international customized training contracts, providing training for the Australian-based Pegasus Airmotive.

Thief River Falls Technical College Auto Body Student Wins National Award

Tom Keeney of Shelly, a 1991 graduate of the Auto Body Program at Thief River Falls Technical College, placed second in the nation at the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA) United States Skill Olympics June 24-28 at Louisville, KY.

Keeney qualified for the nationals by taking first-place honors in the state competition in Minneapolis. Classmates, Jeff Brouse of Thief River Falls and Keith Lehman of Virginia, placed third and fourth respectively as TRFTC students captured three of the four top places in the state competition.

Besides the second place silver medal, Keeney returned from the competition with prizes totaling $3,000 in value. These included a Snap-on rollaway tool chest base, a Devilbis paint spray gun, and expense-paid courses for himself and his instructor at the Chief Frame school in Grand Island, NE, and an I-Car unibody repair course in Illinois.

The Thief River Falls Technical College Auto Body Program also found national success in 1978 when Bob Harmon from Bagley brought home the bronze medal for a third place finish.

Instructors of the two-year Auto Body Program are John Egge and Ken Wagner.

Education . . . A Family Affair

Education for Ludivina and her husband Jose Luis Reyes has been a family affair. They came with their three children to Thief River Falls from Carrizo Springs, Texas. Ludy is graduating from the Cosmetology Program and Jose is a student in Automotive Body Repair.

Cosmetology has been a goal since eighth grade, but it had to be put on hold for years while Ludy worked in the fields to help provide for their family. It was during that time that someone informed her it was possible to return to school at any age.

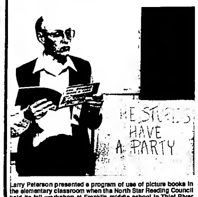
At first returning to education for Ludy was overwhelming, but as she says, "With patient instructors it all come to pass!" She enjoys doing services on all aged clients and has a special talent with long hair. This talent earned her first place in an Advanced Hairstyling Competition as well as a first in Men's Hair Shaping and Styling Contest. Ludy says achievements have built her self-esteem and given her tremendous satisfaction.

Their story isn't much different than many other students at our Technical College with one exception. Ludy says, "my education gives me the assurance our children may have an opportunity for education at a younger age."

Ludivina and Jose Luis Reyes

Donna and Lois Lundon

September 1990 was a time of new beginning for a mother and daughter team from Mahnomen as they enrolled at Thief River Falls Technical College. Lois and Donna Lundon commuted two and one-half hours a day for 13 months while attending classes in the Cosmetology Program.



As daughter Donna prepared to apply for classes, a relative encouraged Lois by pointing out, "People of all ages can achieve their goals!" Family support gave Lois the courage to be there on that first day of class.

Donna is a single parent and the greatest challenge was balancing her time studying and parenting. As time passed, this became easier to accomplish. Employment prior to school helped with the expenses. Completing Cosmetology has built her self-confidence and she now believes, "If I can do this, I can do anything!"

Cosmetology was something Lois "Always wanted to do." As a wife and mother, her time was spread thin with employment weekends and some evenings. There was no time for tutoring, so the first task was to learn "HOW" to study. Her techniques must have been successful as she was an Honor Roll student each quarter.

Lois says, "Our family has always been supportive, but this made our relationship even stronger." She states, "The whole staff is very helpful and that was so important, especially at first."

IRS to notify taxpayers who fail to report

Over the next few months, people who may have failed to report various kinds of income or properly claim mortgage interest deductions on their 1989 federal income tax returns will be receiving letters from the Internal Revenue Service.

The letters are part of a computer program that matches financial information sent to the IRS by banks and other businesses with amounts reported on 1989 tax returns. For example, the IRS says when your bank sends you a form or statement showing interest.

You must reply within 30 days, the IRS emphasizes. The letter lists the items the IRS believes were omitted or improperly reported. In most cases, the letter will also propose an increase in your 1989 tax, plus interest, and in some cases, a penalty.

The IRS urges you to check your return and see if you agree with the changes listed. If you do, sign the statement on the last page of the letter and return it to the IRS. To avoid further interest charges, also send a check for the amount due. If you disagree, the IRS says, send a letter within 30 days explaining which items are wrong and giving the correct information.

Prowlers advance, 33-14

An impressive defensive effort sparked Thief River Falls Tuesday as the Prowlers won their first-ever post-season high school football game – a 33-14 Section 8A quarterfinal decision over visiting Staples.

Thief River Falls' defense got the ball rolling when Dave Kragness recovered a fumbled Staples snap in the end zone with just 2:49 gone in the first quarter, and the defense finished it when Jason Svir took the ball down to the Staples 3-yard line on a 33-yard interception return with 2:25 remaining to set up a game-ending 1-yard touchdown run by Matt Kaushagen.

And in between those two touchdowns the Thief River Falls defense limited the Staples running game to just 32 net yards, thanks to five quarterback sacks.

A 26-6 regular season winner over Staples, Thief River Falls improved its record to 6-3 heading into a 7 p.m. Saturday Section 8A semifinal game at Fergus Falls – where the Prowlers pulled out a came-from-behind 20-17 win two weeks ago. The 7-2 Otters beat East Grand Forks 24-7 in the Tuesday quarterfinals.

Thief River Falls' game-opening drive against Staples did not produce a first down, but a 51-yard punt by Barry Rhineberger that rolled out af bounds at the Staples 3-yard line would lead to the Prowlers' first touchdown when Cardinals quarterback David Cizek could not find the handle on a third down snap from the two. Kragness found the ball on the ground in the end zone, giving the Prowlers a quick 6-0 lead. A five-yard penalty on the conversion wound up hurting the Prowlers when Rhineberger's kick was blown wide left by a strong bone-chilling wind.

Cizek wound up a minus-67 yards on the ground for the night because of the sacks, but he had a 40-yard run on an option to kick off a 12-play, 77-yard Staples scoring drive following the Thief River Falls kickoff. A 23-yard Cizek pass to Eric Flaten gave the Cardinals a first down at the Thief River Falls 7-yard line, and three plays later Eric Reeck went in standing up from the two. Ben Busker's kick broke the tie with 4:28 remaining in the first quarter.

Thief River Falls mis played two Staples punts to keep the Prowlers' offense off the field most of the second quarter, but the defense stopped the Cardinals on both occasions, and when the offense did get the chance, it produced as Svir ran o naked bootleg to the right for a 61-yard touchdown with 4:40 left in the half. A Svir toss to Haugen on a two-point conversion made it 14-7.

Staples gained a 14-14 tie when the Cardinals turned the first possession of the second half into a 10-play, 64-yard touchdown drive. Cizek hit Kevin Shequen at the Thief River Falls 28-yard line, and the receiver managed to spin away from a defender to complete o 36-yard touchdown play.

Thief River Falls responded, however, with touchdowns on the Prowlers' next two possessions. A 12-play, 75-yard drive, which included a 21-yard Svir-to-Haugen pass and o 15-yard run by Haugen to the Staples 11-yard line, resulted in a 1-yard touchdown dive by Koushagen with 1:52 remaining in the third quarter.

After forcing o Staples punt that went out of bounds at the Cardinals' 41, the Prowlers scored in 10 plays as Haugen went wide right and finished a 6-yard touchdown effort with a dive that reached the corner of the end zone with 8:29 to go in the third quarter.

The interception by Svir leading to Koushagen's second 1-yard touchdown of the night completed the scoring.

Thief River Falls rushed for 177 yards and finished with a 217-138 edge in total offensive yards. But outside the the 61-yard Svir touchdown run, the Prowlers netted just 59 first half yards.

"A couple of big plays gave them the ball back on punts that kept us from doing things on offense in the first half," explained Thief River Falls coach Jeff Mumm. A switch to an unbalanced offensive line – designed to match up with Staples' unbalanced slanting defensive front – produced second half dividends, said Mumm. "That opened some things on the outside for us," he pointed out.

Kaushagen wound up with 67 yards on 22 carries, Svir had 66 on six tries and Haugen netted 44 on 10 attempts. Reeck led Staples with 68 yards on 20 carries.

Section 8A high school football...

Top-seeded teams win

Top four seeded teams all won at home Tuesday night to open the 1991 Section 8A high school football playoffs.

In the first round quarterfinals, No. 1-seeded Detroit Lakes beat No. 8 Little Falls 28-5, No. 2-seeded Fergus Falls stopped No. 7 East Grand Forks 24-7, No. 3-seeded Thief River Falls handled No. 6 Staples 33-14 and No. 4-seeded Crookston eliminated No. 5 Park Rapids 31-12.

Saturday semifinals will find 6-3 Thief River Falls at 7-2 Fergus Falls and 5-4 Crookston at 8-1 Detroit Lakes.

Championship game will be played Friday or Saturday, Nov. 1 or 2, at the site of the highest-seeded semifinal winner.

Park Rapids and Staples finished the 1991 season at 5-4, East Grand Forks wound up 3-6 and Little Falls ended 2-7.

Rebels' upset bid falls short

Top-seeded Warren relied on a couple of long-range scoring strikes to turn back upset-minded Middle River-Marshall County Central 13-0 Tuesday in the opening round Section 8C high school football playoff quarterfinals.

The No. 8-seeded Rebels gave up just a 67-yard Mike Roux-to-Aaron Molacek touchdown pass in the second quarter until the Ponies' Tony Poul broke a game-clinching 46-yard touchdawn run with two minutes remaining in the game.

A 7-1 Warren team moves into the Section 8C semifinals Saturday against Red Lake Falls, while Middle River-Marshall County Central wrapped up a 2-7 campaign. The Ponies handled the Rebels 37-20 in o Sept. 13 regular season match-up.

"If you can lose on a happy note, we did it," offered Middle River-Marshall County Central coach Eldon Sparby. "The kids left the field feeling good obout themselves. It was an even game, other than the two (touchdown) plays. We felt we controlled the line of scrimmage, but we couldn't get it in the end zone."

Best Middle River-Marshall County Central scoring opportunity came late in the third quarter when the Rebels turned the ball over on downs – o yard short of a first down – at the Warren 22-yard line to end a determined drive into a strong wind.

"That was o key play right there," pointed out Sparby. "If we could have picked up that first down and went in for the touchdown, I think we would have had o real good shot at an upset."

Middle River-Morshall County Central also had a 40-yard David Blazek first quarter touchdown called back on a clipping penalty.

A four-yord Middle River-Marshall County Central punt into the wind preceded the first Warren touchdown. The Rebels came up with two quarterback sacks resulting in big yardage losses for the Ponies before Roux and Molacek hooked up for the touchdown.

A gambling Middle River-Marshall County Central defense watched the speedy Paul get to the outside on the second Warren touchdown that ended the suspense.

"Wo were very pleased with aur effort," said Sparby. "We did what we felt to had to do to stoy in the ball game. Defensively I don't think we oould have dane anything different. Offensively we put a couple af drives together, but we couldn't finish."

Blazek finished with 70 yards and John Sparby netted 30 for the Rebels, who wound up with 150 yards on 39 rushing attempts.

An outstanding effort by Dan Kochmstedt that included 11 unassisted tackles, six assisted stops and a quarterback sack, led the Rebels' strong defensive showing. Travis Knutson finished with five solo stops, four assisted tackles and a fumble recovery, while Blazek and Tal Elseth turned in strong efforts on the corners against the speedy Ponies.

Pioneers end year against Fergus Falls

Fergus Falls and Northland will complete their 1991 football schedules tonight (Friday) with a 7 p.m. Minnesota Community College Conference match-up at Prowler Field in Thief River Folls.

Neither team is in the Northwest Division title picture. The pennant and MCCC state playoff berth will instead go to either the University of Minnesota-Crookston or Brainerd. The Trojans ond Raiders meet Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at Brainerd.

Northland is finishing up an injury-plagued disappointing 1-6 season that includes just one highlight to date – o 32-31 oome-from-behind victory over rival UMC two weeks ogo. The Pioneers lost a 28-7 season-opening nan-conference game to the Moorhead State University junior varsity and four MCCC-counting games against Northeast Division foes Itasca 27-20, Vermilion 40-7, Hibbing 28-0 and Mesabi 23-14.

The win over UMC momentarily put Northland in o playoff race, but those hopes were dashed in a 22-8 setback at Brainerd last week.

Fergus Falls is olso 1-5 in the MCCC, where the Spartans have lost to Mesabi 24-7, Vermilion 41-27, Hibbing 43-0, Brainerd 24-15 and UMC 9-6 last week. The lone Fergus Falls win was a 12-6 Sept. 21 victory over Itasca.

The Spartans lost to UMC despite not giving up a touchdown. Three field goals were enough to keep the Trojans in the Northwest Division race.

Tonight's game was originally planned as a regular 1:30 p.m. Saturday feature, but was moved to Friday night to avoid any conflicts with area high school football playoff games on Saturday.

Staples defenders gave chase, but Thief River Falls runningback Marc Haugen made a cut and wound up reaching the corner of the end zone on this 6-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter of Tuesday's Section 8A high school football playoff game in Thief River Falls. The Prowlers won their first-ever post-season game, 33-14.

Nordics sweep Wolverines

Problems at the serving line spelled trouble for Grygla-Goodridge Wednesday in a 3-0 high school volleyball loss at Marshall County Central.

The Nordics won the rescheduled matinee 15-9, 15-0, 15-9.

"We didn't play all that bad, we just couldn't serve," reported Grygla-Goodridge cooch Tim Mostrom, who soid Jenny Ryun turned in o solid performance for the Walverines.

The sweep afforded Morshall County Central coach Mork Jorgenson the opportunity to use his bench. "It wasn't u real sharp performance," he said, "but we got the chance to play everybody. The kids who came off the bench ployed well."

Both teams have one regular season match remaining – on Tuesday. The 12-9 Nordics will host Stephen, while the 1-15 Wolverines play Tri-County at Karlstad.

Pioneers lose 3-0 match to Raiders

Northland Community College stumbled Wednesday in a 3-0 Northwest Division volleyball loss at Brainerd, but the Pioneers are still in the middle of a close season-ending race for a Minnesota Community College Conference state tournament spot.

The Raiders opened with an easy 15-5 win, overcame a 14-11 deficit to win Game 2 by a 17-15 margin, then jumped out to an 11-2 lead before holding on for a 15-13 sweep-completing victory.

Despite the setback, which dropped Northland to 10-12 overall, Pioneers coach Deb Jacobson said it was a good volleyball match. "I was pleased with the way we played," she said. "We played very well, they just played a notch better."

A 3-1 Fergus Falls win over the University of Minnesota-Crookston Wednesday put the Spartans atop the Northwest Division standings

Grygla-Goodridge knocks off unbeaten Stephen 21-7...

Blue Devils share title

A season-long win streak ended and a season-long comeback was completed Tuesday night when Grygla-Ooodridge knocked off Stephen 21-7 in a Top of the State Conference high school football game at Stephen.

It was the Tigers' first setback, and it was the Blue Devils' sixth straight win after a 24-0 loss to Kittson County North back on Sept. 6. The Tuesday results, which also included a 20-13 Kittson County North win over Valley North, produced a three-way first place Top of the State Conference tie for the Tigers, Blue Devils and Cougars at 7-1.

"We played pretty well," soid Grygla-Goodridge coach Darwin Hagen. "We kept them from putting anything together."

Stephen struck first on o 3-yard Ryan McGlynn second quarter touchdown run ond a Dave Borowlez extra-point kick. But Grygla-Goodridge came back on the next possession to take an 8-7 lead on a 2-yard Mitch Bernstein touchdown pass to Shane Wilkens and a two-point Bernstein conversion pass to Jeremy Engelstad.

A 9-yard Bernstein pass to Wilkens made it 14-7 in the third quarter and a 13-yard fourth quarter touchdown run by Justin Lunsetter put it on ioe.

Lunsetter rushed for 91 yards, but it took 30 carries to get it as the Tigers limited the Blue Devils to 121 yards on 41 rushing attempts. Bernstein was 4-for-8 in the air for 40 yards.

Defensively, Brandon Blaine led the winners with a strong effort in the line that included a pass interception to set up the second Grygla-Goodridge touchdown as he got his hands on o third quarter screen pass. Kurt Quam had a pair of interceptions for the Blue Devds.

RLCC wins playoff game

Red Lake County Central made the successful switch from nine-man to 11-mon high school football Tuesday when the Mustangs edged Blackduck 8-7 in the first round quarterfinals of the 1991 Section 8C playoffs.

A fourth down 4-yard touchdown poss from Eric Kolstoe to Paul Melby with 38 seconds remaining in the game, followed by a Kolstoe-to-Jay Malwitz two-point conversion pass won it for the No. 5-seeded Mustangs, who will toke a 4-5 record into Soturday's Section 8C semifinals against No. 2-seeded Fertile-Beltrami – at Fertile. The 6-3 Falcons advanced with o 19-7 win over No. 7 Fosston.

Red Lake County Central ploys North Tri-County Conference nine-man football during the regular season, but because the combined enrollment of the Oklee-Plummer cooperative exceeds the Minnesota State High School League guideline for nine-man football, the Mustangs were bumped into Class C for post-season play.

The 11-man version of the game suited Red Lake County Central just fine. The Mustangs played the No. 3-seeded Drakes to a scoreless draw before Ryan Brown of Blackduck returned a punt 70 yards for a third quarter touchdown.

It stayed at 7-0 until the final-minute Red Lake County Central dramatics.

Adding to the drama was the fact that storting quarterback Scott Lorenson was knocked out of the game by a hard hit with obout eight minutes remaining.

Kolstoe, who began the year at quarterback before being switched to runningback, returned to signal-calling duties and led a drive that reached the Blackduck 10-yard line before stalling.

But the Red Lake County Central defense held, forced a Blackduck punt and began what proved to be the game-winning drive at the Mustangs' 45-yard line. A 19-yard run by Kolstoe set Red Lake County Central up with a first-and-goal at the Blackduck 3-yard line, but that turned into o fourth-and-four before the play-action pass call from the bench worked for both the touchdown and the conversion.

"It was a real good, hard-hitting football game," reported Red Lake County Central coach Gary Brantl.

Red Lake County Central came up big on defense, especially in the first half, pointed out Brantl, when a fumble, blocked punt and high punt snap had the Mustongs backed up much of the time.

Outside of the fourth quorter drives, the Mustongs' only other scoring threat came on the first possession of the second half when they moved to the Blackduck 8-yard line before running out of downs.

Red Lake County Central mustered 181 yards on 47 rushing ottempts, with Jacob Melby netting 75 yards on 16 carriers and Kolstoe getting 54 yards on 11 tries.

Lorenson wos 2-for-11 passing for 57 yards and Kolstee wus 2-for-3 for 7 yards. Malwitz cought two passes for 43 yards.

The Red Lake County Centrol offense also benefitted, said Brantl, on four kick returns for 56 yards by Shannon Willett.

It was a solid teom effort on defense, noted Brantl, os Jamie Hruby came up with eight tackles and a fumble recovery; Joe Lollier had seven tackles and a fumble recovery; Ryan Bjerklie was in on six tackles, including two for losses, Kolstoe was credited with seven tackles and a quarterback sack; Adam Lundeen was in on seven tackles, and Willett came up with two pass interceptions.

Scoring

	1	2	3	4	T
Red Lake Co. Central	0	0	0	8	8
Blackduck	0	0	7	0	7

Blackduck - Ryan Brown, 70-yard punt return; kick good.
RLCC - Paul Melby, 4 yard pass from Eric Kolstoe; Jay Malwitz pass from Kolstoe.

Thief River Falls fullback Matt Keushegen followed his blockers for a 6-yard gain on this second quarter run against Staples during Tuesday's Section 8A high school football playoff game at Prowler Field. Keushegen scored twice in the Prowlers' 33-14 win.

Blue Devils draw top seed

Grygla-Goodridge, Stephen, Kittson County North and East Grand Forks Sacred Heart were seeded 1-through-4, respectively for the start of today's (Saturday) Section 8 Nine-Man high school football playoffs.

First round semifinal pairings, determined by a flip of the coin, were announced Wednesday.

A three-way Top of the State Conference Grygla-Goodridge, Stephen, Kittson County North title tie developed Tuesday when the Blue Devils defeated the previously unbeaten Tigers 21-7 and the Cougars held off Valley North 20-13. In earlier results, Kittson County North had beaten Grygla-Goodridge, but Stephen owned a win over Kittson County North, necessitating the coin flip.

The results produced a Kittson County North vs. Stephen match-up at 1:30 p.m. in Stephen and a East Grand Forks Sacred Heart vs. Grygla-Goodridge ball game at 7 p.m. in Goodridge.

Championship game will be played Saturday, Nov. 2 at the site of the highest seeded semifinal winner. If it is Grygla-Goodridge, the game will be played at 1:30 p.m. in Grygla. If it is Stephen, the game will be played at 7 p.m. in Stephen. If it is Kittson County North, it will be a 1:30 p.m. game in Lancaster.

Meanwhile, Section 6 Nine-Man play continues with semifinals this weekend as No. 5-seeded Bigfork takes on No. 1 Fisher-Climax tonight (Friday) in Climax and No. 3-seeded Littlefork-Big Falls goes against No. 2 Win-E-Mac Saturday in McIntosh.

Championship game will be played at the site of the highest Seeded semifinal winner Friday, Nov. 1.

All Section 6 Nine-Man games have 7 p.m. starting times.

The six-team Section 6 eliminations began with Bigfork upsetting No. 4-seeded Norman County West 34-8 Monday in Halstad, while Littlefork-Big Falls ousted No. 6-seeded Red Lake 24-8 Tuesday at Littlefork.

Volleyball team ends schedule

Looking to end an eight-match losing streak, Thief River Falls will close out its 1991 regular season high school volleyball schedule tonight (Friday) with a 7:30 p.m. contest against Crookston.

Valley North and East Grand Forks extended the Thief River Falls string of losses with 3-0 decisions Monday and Thursday, respectively.

The Raiders handled the Prowlers 15-0, 15-2, 15-7 in Alvarado. The Green Wave swept the Prowlers 15-2, 15-12, 15-5 in East Grand Forks.

"It was a poor showing," said Thief River Falls coach Helen Anderson in describing the Prowlers' Monday efforts against Valley North. "We didn't show up to play. The harder we tried, the worse it got. Serve reception really hurt us."

Thief River Falls turned in a better performance Thursday at East Grand Forks, according to Anderson. "Our serve reception showed a lot of improvement," she noted. "We really played well in the second game. If we play as a team, we can play with anyone."

North Sub-Section 8AA tournament play gets underway Monday, Nov. 4.

Thief River Falls junior varsity fell to 4-16 for the year with losses to Valley North and East Grand Forks. Valley North won 15-5, 15-10 and East Grand Forks won 15-10, 10-15, 15-5.

The Thief River Falls C squad beat Valley North 15-5, 7-15, 15-2, but watched East Grand Forks come up with a 15-3, 9-15, 15-1 victory to go 7-12 for the year.

Thief River Falls freshmen are 7-1 following a 15-5, 15-9 win over East Grand Forks. They did not play a freshman match at Valley North.

Mustangs win 3-0 in volleyball

Red Lake County Central showed no real ill effects from an eight-day lay-off Tuesday as the visiting Mustangs swept Clearbrook-Gonvick 15-7, 15-7, 15-3 9 in high school volleyball.

"We started a little slow," admitted Red Lake County Central coach Brad Borene, "but we got stronger and stronger as the match wore on."

The win put the Mustangs at 15-7 for the year. They close out their 1991 regular season schedule with a Tuesday match at Win-E-Mac.

A strong all-around effort by Dawn Bachand led the Mustangs to their fifth straight win as she produced 15 kills and 17 last-touch points to go along with a 20-for-21 night at the service line. Jill Radniecki was 13-for-13 serving and wound up with eight last-touch points; Jenny Walter had 12 kills and nine last-touch points; Lisa Larson returned from a two-week family trip to turn in strong back-room performance; Cheryl Greenwald had 15 set assists; and Kim Magers played a solid game at the net, said Borene, with seven kills.

Instructors Honored

In appreciation for the outstanding work of volunteer Firearms Safety Training Program instructors, the second "Firearms Safety Volunteer Instructor of the Year" award will be presented for 1991. The award, sponsored by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources Enforcement Division, the Minnesota Conservation Federation, and the Minnesota Firearms Instructors Association, will be given to the person who has shown an exceptional contribution to firearms safety education as a volunteer instructor in 1991.

Firearms Safety Training Program Coordinator Michael Hamm said award criteria include:

- Quality of instruction (good communication, courses taught, organization, recruiting of other workers);
- Leadership among peers;
- Involvement in hunter activities beyond the basic call;
- Involvement in other activities related to firearm safety education and wildlife conservation;
- Qualities of innovation and initiative;
- Work with state or local government to promote firearm safety education;
- Awards or recognition for work in firearm safety education;
- Participation in the program during 1991.

The recipient will receive a plaque and a special firearm. The winner's name will be on permanent display in the Enforcement Division office at the DNR Headquarters in St. Paul.

"The Firearms Safety Training instructors do tremendous work for us and for the sportsmen they teach," Hamm said. He noted that 3,800 volunteer instructors statewide put in an estimated 76,000 hours each year elevating the hunting ethics and firearms safety skills of Minnesotans.

Firearms safety certificates earned by those who successfully complete the course are now required for hunters in 46 states, including Minnesotans ages 12-15 and those born after Dec. 31, 1979.

Anyone may nominate a volunteer firearms safety instructor for the award, but nominations must be made on a nomination form available by contacting Lt. Michael Hamm, DNR Enforcement Division, Safety Training Section, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, MN 55155-4047. Forms are also available by calling (612) 296-4819. The deadline for nominations is Jan. 1, 1992.

Catch and Release

A $35,000 project to promote catch and release fishing in Minnesota over the next two years has been approved by the Legislative Commission for Minnesota Resources (LCMR). The Minnesota Sportfishing Congress proposed the program with the stipulation that costs be shared 50/50 between the LCMR and sports clubs throughout the sate.

The cost sharing plan will not only provide an additional $35,000, but will also involve sports clubs in a statewide effort to promote catch and release, noted Tim Schlagenhaft of the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Fisheries Section.

"This is an excellent opportunity, but its success depends upon the response of sports clubs," Schlagenhaft said.

He said the program has three primary goals: involve sports clubs in promoting catch and release; increase public awareness of the benefits of catch and release; and increase anglers understanding of proper catch and release techniques.

In order to meet these goals, several options are available, including the production of decals, yardsticks and other promotional items; the development of a catch and release video; the development of television and radio public service announcements; and the use of billboards. Use of each option will depend upon support and matching funds or services from sports clubs, Schlagenhaft said.

Decals, yardsticks and other promotional items could be produced for specific waters. Clubs can participate by providing funds, in-kind services (creating artwork) or a combination of both.

A 15-minute video explaining the importance of catch and release and proper release methods could be produced for distribution statewide. Clubs could participate by purchasing tapes for distribution to schools or groups in their area, with participating clubs receiving credit on the video.

A 30-second advertisement could be produced from the video as a public service announcement. Clubs could participate by purchasing advertising time or by direct assistance in developing the announcement.

Billboards could be rented to promote catch and release during high visibility seasons, such as the beginning of the fishing season. Clubs could participate by providing direct funds for developing the billboard ad or by renting billboard space.

Schlagenhaft said sports clubs have an opportunity to participate through the Cooperative Opportunities for Resource Enhancement (CORE) program, which was developed to improve interaction between the DNR and constituent groups by cost sharing resource projects. To participate in the catch and release program, clubs must complete a CORE application describing projects in which they wish to participate. CORE applications, instructions and information can be obtained by contacting the DNR Section of Fisheries, Box 12, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, MN 55155, or by calling DNR Fisheries at (612) 297-3287.

Applications must be received by Feb. 1, 1992. CORE proposals will be reviewed and priorities set based on the quality of the proposal, the size of the target audience, and total estimated costs. Clubs will be credited for their participation.

Lake Vermilion Islands

Public land islands and their resources in Lake Vermilion will be made available for public use and enjoyment, yet managed and protected for generations to come, through an agreement reached Sept. 19.

U.S. Bureau of Land Management (BLM) and the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) recently signed a Challenge Cost Share Agreement, following discussions that began in December 1990 regarding the need for a cooperative management effort. The agreement signing means the beginning of preparation for a plan that will include resource evaluation, a signing program, and a public education and information program for the Lake Vermilion islands.

Lake Vermilion is located just north of Tower in St. Louis County.

Lake Vermilion islands, administered by the BLM, were reserved by the Shipstead-Nolan Act of 1930 for the purpose of preserving the natural features of Lake Vermilion"...in an unmodified state of nature."

DNR, BLM and U.S. Forest Service representatives visited the Lake Vermilion public land islands Sept. 19 in preparation for signing the agreement.

Hunters/Landowners

As pheasant hunters return to the fields, they can generally expect to encounter more birds than in recent years. But they might also have less pleasant encounters if they are seeking those birds in the wrong places.

Wayne Edgerton, the agricultural policy director for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR), notes that improved land management practices such as the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) and Reinvest in Minnesota (RIM) have keyed a rebound in Minnesota's pheasant population. The partnership with agricultural interests in providing better habitat should extend one step further, said Edgerton. "Hunters must have permission to be on the land they hunt."

That simple but mandatory courtesy is as important to a hunting trip as a trained dog and a quality gun, he said. Habitat destruction and trespassing both harm the sport, Edgerton said. Those who deplore the former should deplore the latter.

Landowners' first recourse is to ask trespassers to leave in a non-confrontational manner. If the trespassers don't leave, or if they become upset, calling peace officers is the next step, Edgerton said.

DNR conservation officers, county sheriff's deputies and other peace officers can assist landowners with trespassing problems, but landowners must be willing to follow through with complaints. Sheriff's deputies and conservation officers can be reached by calling the county sheriff's office listed in the telephone directory.

With 150 conservation officers covering more than 84,000 square miles in Minnesota, it is not always possible for them to respond immediately to trespassing calls, but other peace officers such as sheriff's deputies also handle such problems, Edgerton noted. "It is not difficult to get help with trespassing violations if property owners are serious about seeking prosecution."

Landowners who want to control access to their property should post their land and put their signatures on the signs as required by law.

AAA offers safety tips for Halloween

Motorists will play an important role in child safety when the young trick or treaters parade around the neighborhoods on Halloween.

Barbara Mittlestadt, AAA Minnesota spokesperson says, "Halloween is one of the most exciting nights of the entire year for children. It can also be one of the most dangerous since a youngster's thoughts are on having fun, not always on safety."

AAA offers some suggestions for parents, children and motorists to ensure a safe, fun-filled evening. Since trick or treat times and days may vary between communities, motorists should proceed carefully for a few days before and after halloween. Also, drivers should not assume that trick or treaters can see them. Some costumes have poorly fitted masks that impair vision. Costumed children may also be preoccupied with their attire and forget to watch for traffic. Mittlestadt urges drivers to be especially alert for children who might dart out between parked cars. She also reminds them to turn on their headlights at the first sign of dusk and suggests that they drive five or more miles per hour below the speed limit.

Parents need to be aware that dark costumes cannot be seen by motorists and retro-reflective material — available at most hardware or auto supply stores — should be attached to their children's costumes to increase their visibility. "Children should be able to see clearly in all directions," stressed Mittlestadt. "Face make-up can be fun to wear and will not obstruct a child's vision like an ill-fitting mask with small eyeholes. A Halloween light stick, available most anywhere Halloween costumes are sold, glows in the dark and can be carried or worn by your trick or treater for even greater illumination." She also advises parents or older siblings to accompany younger children on their trick or treating rounds.

Halloween can be a fun and safe holiday for everyone with adequate preparation and shared responsibility. Drive and walk safely and we can all have a safe and fun-filled Halloween.

Newfolden SD proposes levy

school year our enrollment was 452 students and pre-school census figures indicate it will drop below 400 in a six-year period. This will mean a significant reduction in state school aid."

He said the district's board and administration are also looking at revenue to be provided by the share of taxes paid by utilities in the district, including pipelines.

"If we approve the levy in November we are looking at about 56 per cent of the excess levy being picked up by the utilities," he said. "If we would approve the levy a year from now under the tax law shift that percentage would drop to 23 per cent. We are looking at a $62,000 swing per year in approval now versus approval later." He also noted that the State of Minnesota will pick up 25 per cent in special referendum aid.

In 1988 the district passed a special levy for a five-year period of $96,650 per year. The board proposes to eliminate the last year of that levy for 1992 if the new levy is approved for 1993.

Question on the November 5 ballot will be: "Shall the increase in the revenue proposed by the board of Independent School District No. 441 be approved?" Those voting yes will be voting in favor of the increased levy and resultant increase in property taxes.

library and other places. Judy also has a large fenced back yard with playground equipment and several pets that the children enjoy.

The state of Minnesota requires that homes which care for children from more than one family be licensed. There is no charge for licensing, which ensures that adults in the home have an FBI check into their backgrounds and that the home meets fire codes. Caregivers must also attend a minimum of six hours of training in child care each year.

Judy Inglis states, however, that many, including herself, attend many more training sessions than the minimum. The caregiver who is licensed may benefit from insurance group rates and a federal food program which helps keep child care costs down.

There are 35 licensed home child care providers in Pennington county. For information on which ones may have vacancies, call the Child Care Resource and Referral center in Crookston at 1-800-543-7382.

has been done that could be done.

Following some corrections and additions to minutes of the hearing on the street and sidewalk project, the city council agreed to adopt the assessment roll subject discussion with Soo Line about their objection.

The city council approved a number of planning commission recommendations. A request for a variance by Minnkota Power Cooperate to purchase 3.44 acre tract on Sherwood Avenue north from Ram Enterprise to construct a power substation was approved. A request for a conditional use permit by Family Bowl to construct a 12 foot by 100 foot addition to the bowling alley for mini-storage. The council also approved a request for a conditional use permit by Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses to erect a church at 2055 Highway 59 South.

The conditional use permit to Kingdom Hall also required a change in an ordinance. Attorney Ihle informed the council that state law restricting a liquor store from being built within 300 feet of a school or church had been removed from the state ordinance and the city should also remove its restriction. The council agreed to remove the restriction in the ordinance.

Recommendations to accept bids on transformers from the utilities committee were approved by the council. The council approved the purchase of a transformer from Peterson-Wisdorf for $3,748; and another transformer from Peterson-Wisdorf for $6,960.

The council adjourned its meeting until 7:30 p.m. October 29.

NWRDC to discuss ethanol

and South Dakota— and ethanol use is increasing each day," states Joan Abercrombie of the Northwest Regional Development commission staff.

"One out of every five gallons of gasoline purchased in the region today is an ethanol blend. By 1997 it is projected that ethanol-blend purchases will increase to three out of five gallons," Abercrombie added.

Ethanol plants in the region are able to supply the current needs for ethanol-blended fuels in the three states, but that will soon change.

"Even with all of the planned expansions at the existing plants and the completion of ethanol production facilities now under construction, there will be an estimated 150 million gallon annual production shortfall in the region by the end of 1997," Abercrombie said.

Anderson and McMerty are expected to discuss this situation at the meeting November 14.

Local agency receives grant

Thief River Falls Convention and Visitors Bureau has been awarded a Local Joint Venture Grant of $8,350 from the Minnesota Department of Trade and Economic Development's Office of Tourism for the 1992 marketing cycle.

Julie Olson, director of the local Convention and Visitors Bureau, said the state funds can not be used for advertising or participation in promotional activities in the local area. She said funds will be used to market Thief River Falls as a place to visit in sport shows and advertising in periodicals in Manitoba, Canada.

"Special efforts will be made to draw Canadian senior citizens and birding enthusiasts from out of state," Olson said. "In addition, the Convention and Visitors Bureau will be focusing on a direct-mail program designed to invite previous visitors from Canada to return to the Thief River Falls area."

Student poll finds support for casino

Forty-nine students from three senior social studies classes at Lincoln high school found more than two-to-one support for a gambling casino here during a "person-on-the-street" poll conducted Thursday in Thief River Falls.

"Students were advised to ask questions of a cross-section of people—young, old, male, female, etc.," explained Charlie Cornell, social studies instructor at Lincoln. "Not all people responded to all questions and no claim of accuracy in the poll results is made or inferred."

Of the 401 people polled by the students, 194 were contacted by 22 students from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m., 89 were contacted by 12 students from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., and 118 were contacted by 15 students from 2 to 3 p.m.

Asked "Are you for or against the proposed casino?" the people polled showed 272 in favor, 107 opposed and 22 no response. Number in favor, opposed or no response, respectively, was 138, 44 and 12 from 8:30 to 9:30, 61, 22 and 6 from 11:30 to 12:30 and 73, 41 and 4 from 2 to 3 p.m.

Persons opposed were asked for their reason for opposition—moral, racial, location or other. Responses indicated 63 opposed on moral grounds, 12 racial, 27 location and 16 other.

"How much weight do you think the council and county board should give to the recent advisory vote?" was the next question. Sixty-one people said "lots," 128 said "some" and 204 said "little."

During 8:30 to 9:30 20 said "lots," 63 said "some" and 95 said "little." From 11:30 to 12:30 the respective responses totaled 19, 24 and 58. From 2 to 3 p.m. the responses were 22, 41 and 51.

While the people were almost evenly divided on consideration of the vote, most didn't like encouragement of people not to vote.

"Do you think advising people not to vote in the advisory vote was a good or bad idea?" the pollsters asked. Only 108 thought it was a good idea while 267 thought it was a bad one.

Those who thought the idea was good numbered 57 between 8:30 and 9:30, 24 between 11:30 and 12:30 and 27 between 2 and 3 p.m. Those who thought it was a bad idea included 107 between 8:30 and 9:30, 75 between 11:30 and 12:30 and 85 between 2 and 3 p.m.

Four Troop 57 Scouts advance to Eagle rank

In a court of honor Sunday afternoon at St. Bernard's Catholic church in Thief River Falls, four members of Boy Scout Troop 57 were advanced to the Eagle Scout rank.

Receiving the honors were Jeffrey Cota, son of Jerome and Gail Cota; Brian Fogarty, son of Bill and Katie Fogarty; Kent Larson, son of Jon and Valerie Larson; and Christopher Tveitbakk, son of Darryl and Debbie Tveitbakk.

This was the largest group of local scouts to receive the Eagle award at one time in Thief River Falls and the second largest in the district in at least the last 25 years. Greenbush had five troop members attain the Eagle rank several years ago.

Serving as host at the court of honor was Jon Hendrickson, a Life Scout in Troop 57. Art Heinze, scoutmaster of Troop 199, served as master of ceremonies and the invocation was given by Rev. John Kleinvachter, parish priest at St. Bernard's.

Members of Troop 57 conducted the candle-lighting ceremony, Heinze conducted the Portrait of an Eagle ceremony and Jim Hoks, Voyageur Trails District advancement chairman, read the Eagle Scout Oath.

Parents of the scouts presented the Eagle awards to their sons and the scouts also made special presentations. "We Shall Rise Again" was sung by members of the church choir.

John DeWerd of Fargo, ND, staff member at Camp Wilderness, presented the Eagle Challenge and Jim Fisher, Order of the Arrow advisor for the Voyageur Trails district, read letters and greetings. Comments were given by the new Eagle scouts and they were presented with their national certificates by Pat Gaffaney, unit commissioner.

Rev. Joe DeCrans of St. Bernard's closed with a prayer and benediction, the colors were retired by Troop 57 scouts and "Taps" was played by Billy Fogarty, a member of Troop 57. A reception followed in the church parish hall.

Jeffrey Cota

Jeff started his scout program as a Cub Scout with Pack 57 in September of 1982. He received his Arrow of Light as a Webelos Scout in the fall of 1985 and became a member of Troop 57. He advanced to Tenderfoot in August of 1986, Second Class in February of 1987, First Class in August of 1987, Star in August of 1988 and Life in September of 1989.

He has attended summer camp at Camp Wilderness each year since joining the scouting program and served as a counselor in training for Webelos camp in the summer of 1990. This summer he was on the summer camp staff as a commissioner's aide and is a Brotherhood member of the Order of the Arrow. He has served as Troop 57 librarian, assistant patrol leader, patrol leader and senior patrol leader.

A member of St. Bernard's Catholic church, Jeff has been an altar boy and member of the youth group. He is a sophomore at Lincoln high school where he is a member of the junior varsity football team and in the weightlifting program. He is also a paper carrier for the Grand Forks Herald.

Jeff's Eagle project was to build bluebird houses for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources and place them on a wildlife management area near Thief River Falls.

Brian Fogarty

Brian was born in Thief River Falls, is a member of St. Bernard's church and attended St. Bernard's elementary school. He assists in serving the Mass, participates in youth activities and is a confirmation student.

At Franklin middle school he achieved the Presidential Academic Fitness award and has been on the honor roll each marking period. Currently a sophomore at Lincoln high school, he continues on the honor roll and is taking courses to prepare him for college in the study of law. He plays football, baseball and hockey and is a jazz band member.

He joined the scouting program as a Bobcat in 1984 and advanced into the Boy Scout program in 1987. He has earned 29 merit badges, is secretary-treasurer of the local Order of the Arrow chapter and has held troop positions including chaplain aide, librarian and patrol leader. Each summer he has attended camp and he has also participated in the counselor-in-training program.

Brian's Eagle project was putting on a carnival for residents of Oakland Park Nursing home. He involved many other scouts and adults in the project.

Kent Larson

A lifetime resident of Thief River Falls, Kent also observed his 16th birthday Sunday. He joined Cub scouts in 1985 and became a Face painting was again done on Halloween by personal services students of Diane Rothschadl at the Northwest Vocational center in Thief River Falls. Recipients of the artistic talents of the students were pupils from Mark Twain elementary school. Face painting has been promoted as a safety factor in preference to use of masks since it permits better vision by children on trick or treat rounds. Amy Sisler gives Kevin Larol a look at his visage part way through the face decorating project.

Students promote seat belt use with sweets

Red Lake Falls — If you were driving near Lafayette high school last week you may have received a sweet reminder to wear your seat belt. Members of the Future Leaders of America and Students Against Drunk Drivers gave packages of Life Savers to drivers wearing seat belts and Dum Dum lollypops to those not wearing them. The activity was part of a joint community service project. The group also took an informal poll of how many drivers buckle up. Results showed 16 drivers using seat belts and 32 who were not. Students get first hand report on bees

Lake of the Woods — Second grade students at Lake of the Woods school learned first-hand about the joys and rigors of beekeeping last week when Harold Holte, noted area apiculturist, led a discussion in the class with about 60 children present. His presentation was part of the "word of the week" program for the class, an effort in which students spend a week learning everything they can about a given word. The word last week was "apiculture," which means rearing bees. The word this week is "viper." In spite of how well received Holte's presentation was with the class, the teacher, Laura Jo Pieper, says she hopes no one will bring a viper to visit. (Baudette Region)

Fosston invaded by skunks

Fosston — The chief of police of Fosston, Jim Berg, says the office is getting five to six calls a day about skunks running around town and asks that residents not panic, but try to help the animals escape if they become trapped. "If it wanders into your garage, don't close the exits," he recommends. "One of the worst things you can do, is to try to 'help' the skunk along with a broom or stick. They will almost always spray if that happens." He also warns that garbage attracts them so tight covers on garbage containers is a good idea. (Thirteen Towns)

Last one-room school in state may close

Northwest Angle — This January or possibly during the next school year the one-room school at Northwest Angle will be closed because of the small number of students and the high cost of keeping it open. To operate the school, the cost is about $60,000 per year. It is expected that the number of students, which is five this year, will drop to two next year, with three of the students attending middle school or high school in Warroad. (Roseau Times-Region)

Louise Svendsen receives state award

Argyle — Louise Svendsen, charter member of the Argyle Garden club, has received the Award of Merit from the Minnesota State Horticulture society for her contribution to horticulture over the years. She considers this a special honor because the society is celebrating its 125th year this year. (Messenger)

Blackduck students in production of "Snow White"

Blackduck — Fifty Blackduck young people will participate with two professional actors in Prairie Fire Children's Theatre's original musical production of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" November 2 at 2 and 7 p.m. at the Blackduck elementary school. The show features an original script by Prairie Fire playwright and composer Daniel Nordquist and will be sponsored by the Blackduck community education, arts council, American Legion and public school. Food bank gets lots of lefse

Crookston — The North Country Food bank has received about 6,000 pounds of lefse, 500 cases of Mrs. Olson's Lefse, from the Winsor Products company of Gonvick. They donated the lefse to the food bank after a large order was cancelled. The donation is being shared with the Great Plains Food bank in Fargo and North Central Food bank in Grand Rapids. Polk county extension agent gets national award

Crookston — West Polk county Agriculture Extension agent Russ Severson recently received an award by the National Association of County Agricultural Agents for excellence in environmental protection for a program he created on the responsible use of pesticides through sprayer management. He won on the state and regional levels and was awarded third place at the national level for workshops he conducted during the 1989 and 1990 Red River Valley winter shows informing farmers about calibrating sprayers and dealing with spray drift. Shelly senior center opened last week

Shelly — After a lot of hard work and community spirit, the Shelly senior center officially opened last week with an open house. Plans to build the center started about two years ago and the $86,000 structure was recently completed and has been in service for about two weeks. The 60 by 42 foot building features an office, kitchen, library, restrooms, utility room and meeting and dining area. (Norman County Index)

Glitch discovered in new water tower

Roseau — Roseau's new water tower is under surveillance by city engineers after an overflow was found causing a city water main to repeatedly burst. No one has been able to pinpoint the cause of the problem, but City Engineer Gary Sanders thinks it may have something to do with a difference in pressure between the 1947 model and the new tower, which was constructed over the summer. The problem may stem from the height of the tower, but the city is having trouble testing the theory because of the high rate of water usage. At present the workers are doing their testing at night. It is not expected that the water tower will have to be torn down and rebuilt. (Roseau Times Region)

Public hearing on amendments to aging plan

Public hearing is scheduled for 3 p.m. Wednesday, November 13, at the Northwest Regional Development commission offices in Thief River Falls to receive comment on the 1992 amendments to the area plan on aging and the program development and coordination activities.

Northwest Regional Development commission, the designated area agency on aging for the seven-county region in northwestern Minnesota, is required to submit a plan for the administration of Older Americans Act funds to the Minnesota Board on Aging each year. The area plan indicates AAA priorities, objectives to meet the most serious needs of seniors and action steps that will be taken to accomplish those objectives.

Objectives outlining the use of program development and coordination funds are also included in the area plan as well as a summary of the proposed budget for 1992.

Copies of the objectives and budget have been available from the Northwest Area Agency on Aging since Oct. 18, 1991. To obtain a copy contact Faith Rud, Director, 525 Brooks Avenue South, Thief River Falls, MN 56701 or call 681-2637 or 1-800-537-0601. Soupçon

By Sherry LaCoursiere

Here are some super main dishes for you to try, now that you mastered last week's homemade bread recipes.

Quick and easy, and delicious with fresh buns.

Spaghetti Hot Dish
1 pound hamburger
onion as desired
1 can vegetable beef soup with barley, in it
1 1/2 soup cans water
1 cup spaghetti, uncooked
salt and pepper to taste

Brown hamburger and onion. Mix everything together and bake for one hour at 350 degrees. Double the recipe to make a small roaster full.

This is a casserole that you can make for company. They'll love it.

Mock Turkey Casserole
1 pound hamburger
1 small onion
1/2 cup celery (chopped)
1 package Pepperidge Farm stuffing mix
1 can cream of chicken soup
1 can cream of mushroom or celery soup
1 can water

Brown hamburger, onion and celery. Combine remaining ingredients and bake one hour at 350 degrees.

This hot dish is a little Italian, just right for a nippy fall day. Use the Italian sausage for an extra tasty dish:

Roman Holiday Bake
1 1/2 pounds hamburger or 1 pound Italian sausage
1 cup onion, chopped
1 teaspoon oregano
1 can tomato soup
1 can cheddar cheese soup
1 can water
1/2 package noodles

Brown meat with onion and oregano. Cook noodles and drain.

Mix soups and water in bowl. Add noodles and hamburger mixture.

Place in greased 9x13 cake pan and cover with foil. Bake at 375 degrees for 45 minutes.

Add strips of cheese after baking and place back in oven to melt.

A little of Spain would be nice tonight:

Spanish Rice
1 can tomato soup
8 slices bacon
1 cup onion, chopped
1/4 cup green pepper
2 (1 pound) cans tomatoes
1 1/2 cups water
3/4 cup cooked rice
1 teaspoon salt
dash pepper
1 teaspoon brown sugar
1 pound hamburger

Brown hamburger. Cook bacon until crisp, or as desired. Cook onions and peppers until tender but not brown.

Add remaining ingredients. Place in greased casserole and bake at 350 degrees for 45-60 minutes.

This one would be wonderful with fresh buns, but watch out—it serves a crowd:

Bean Hut Dish
1 pound bacon, diced
1 pound hamburger
1 cup onions
2 cans pork and beans
2 cans yellow lima beans
2 cans kidney beans
1 tablespoon vinegar
1/2 cup ketchup
1/2 cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon mustard

Brown bacon, hamburger and onions. Mix in remaining ingredients and bake 45 minutes at 350 degrees.

Wheat Growers encourage young farmers to join

As the number of young farmers continue to decline, the National Association of Wheat Growers (NAWG) Foundation and Monsanto Agriculture Company announce the 7th year of the "Young Wheat Grower Development Awards Program" to encourage young growers involvement in agriculture.

The awards program made available in all NAWG member states is open to young growers between the age of 20 and 35 who are actively involved in wheat production and who are interested in attending their first NAWG annual meeting. Young growers can obtain applications from their NAWG State office.

Forty awards in the amount of $750 are available for 1992 to help cover travel and attendance costs. The grower has the option of attending the National convention held in January or the summer leadership conference held in July.

This marks the first year the award amount has been increased to $750 to make the opportunity more affordable for young growers. Because of this change the number of awards available has been reduced to 40.

In the past, attendance at these meetings has acquainted young growers with the wheat association's organizational structure and the benefits from a close relationship with NAWG and NAWG state associations.

The U.S. wheat industry also benefits because many recipients of these grants become active participants and leaders in both state and national wheat associations.

For more information on the program or to apply, contact State association offices of the NAWG Foundation. Applications are available in the September-October 1991 issue of the Wheat Grower Magazine.

Playdough

Children love to play with playdough and it is easy and inexpensive to make your own. Here are two different recipes you may want to try:

This cooked recipe keeps very well if put in an airtight container when storing it (keeps about a month).

3 cups flour
3 cups water
1 1/2 cups salt
3 tbsp. oil
6 tsp alum
food coloring

Mix all ingredients together. Heat over a medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture bubbles and pulls away from the pan. Cool and use.

This is a non-cooked recipe that is easy to mix and use, but does not keep as long as the cooked recipe (about a week).

1 1/2 cups flour
3/4 cup water
3/4 cup salt
food coloring

Mix together and use. Keep stored in an airtight container.

BOOK OF THE WEEK

The Thief River Falls public library salutes all educators during National Education Week and notes that books also can be used as educational tools. Some suggestions include the following:

Rounds, Glen. Cowboys. Glen Rounds allows as to follow a cowboy from sunup to bedtime as he rounds up cattle, kills a rattle snake and plays cards in the bunkhouse after dinner.

Tresselt, Alvin. Sun Up. Sure to be a classic, Sun Up follows a contemporary farm family throughout their day.

Hart, Lenny. How Many Stars In the Sky. One night when mother is away, a father and child seek a good place to count the stars in the night sky.

VIDEO VARIETY

Education isn't just for children. Sometimes parents need help, too.

Choosing the Right Toys for Babies and Toddlers. Practical advice from someone who knows how to choose the toy that's right for your child at each stage of development, from the day of birth to age three.

PARENTING TIPS

Making Mistakes

Children who are constantly called names and criticized for doing wrong will have difficulty acquiring self-confidence in their ability to act correctly. These children may even misbehave simply to get attention.

Everyone makes mistakes. These mistakes can and should be used as a way of learning. If a child accidentally spills his milk, this "mistake" can be used as a learning experience. There is no need to get angry or to punish the child. Instead we could use this as an opportunity to show what happens when a glass of milk sits too close to the edge of the table. This can also be an opportunity to teach your child how to clean up the spill he or she created. After the mistake your child needs the opportunity to try again.

(Contributed by the Early Childhood Family Education department of School District 564.)

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

When you make a mistake talk to your child about it. Help him to understand that everyone makes mistakes, even parents.

Carol Kankel

Kankel to show jewelry making at local store

Carol Kankel of Red Lake Falls will demonstrate jewelry making at the Christmas open house for Jacalyn's Gallery & Gifts Saturday, November 2, from noon to 6 p.m.

A teacher in the Plummer school, Carol has been working with various jewelry mediums in the last three years, most recently with the Friendly Plastic material she will be demonstrating Saturday. She will show both water and oven methods used with the metallic plastic.

All of her work is original and she rarely makes more than one item of the same design.

"Creativity and originality define art," she said. She enjoys showing jewelry-making techniques to others so they can release the creativity in themselves.

Auto drive at Agassiz refuge

Lost Bay auto drive at the Agassiz National Wildlife refuge east of Holt will close Wednesday, November 6, and remain closed until the spring of 1992.

Wildlife on the refuge may still be observed by driving Marshall County Road 7 which is open year around and bisects the southern portion of the refuge. Moose, deer, ravens, magpies, northern shrikes and a variety of winter bird species that winter in the area may be seen during the winter months.

Refuge staff hopes that those who used the auto drive during the past summer enjoyed their visit to the refuge. Announcement will be made of re-opening of the drive when road conditions permit next spring.

Woodcutting permits given at Agassiz

Woodcutting and hauling permits are being issued by Agassiz National Wildlife refuge for the periods from October 1 through November 3, November 18 through November 28 and after December 8 following the moose hunting season on the refuge located east of Holt.

Wood available is green aspen and balsam poplar that was cut in September of 1991 by a commercial pulping operation. Much of this wood was placed in piles and is easily accessible.

Other wood available is standing aspen and balsam poplar that was fire-killed by the 1990 wildfire that struck a portion of the refuge. Dead and down trees are scattered throughout the refuge and available as designated. A map showing the locations of the wood is available at the refuge office.

Wood cutting and hauling is permitted each day of the week during daylight hours. The permittee must be present during any wood cutting or hauling activity and have the wood cutting permit in possession. Each permittee is limited to 10 cords of wood to be used for personal use only. There is a $10 administrative charge for the permits.

Firearms, bow and arrows or alcoholic beverages are not permitted during wood cutting and hauling. Interested persons may contact Agassiz National Wildlife refuge at 449-4115 or stop at the refuge headquarters located 11 miles east of Holt on Marshall County Road 7. Inspection hours are Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., excluding federal holidays.

Head Start has scholarship

Minnesota Head Start association has announced the availability of a $1,500 national scholarship for former Head Start students. Applications are available from school counselors or Inter-County Community Council Head Start at Oklee. Call 796-5144 for more information or assistance with the application. Application deadline is November 25.

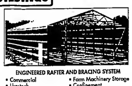
Ice too thin to walk on Thief River Falls police and Pennington county sheriff's department are asking people to stay off the ice.

Law enforcement officers rescued a dog on the ice north of the city limits early Thursday morning. The dog had apparently wandered out onto the ice and had fallen through.



If the ice can support a dog, it certainly can't support a human. People are being asked to stay off the ice. It's just too thin.

Some Afterthoughts On "The Series"

For the second time in five years the Minnesota Twins are baseball's World Champions (at least in the United States). They won four home games while losing three on the road to the Atlanta Braves, a procedure that seems to be common practice for this franchise. It was the same procedure followed to win the World Series in 1987 against the St. Louis Cardinals.

Having suffered and rejoiced with the disappointments and successes of the Twins since they came to Minnesota from Washington, we were pleased to see them battle back in classic fashion Saturday and Sunday evenings to win extra-inning nail-biters. Now that the shouting has died down, the roof has settled back on the Metrodome, the memorabilia creators are working overtime to capitalize on the afterglow and the World Champion players are contemplating world champion salaries, some after-thoughts come to mind.

Series Winning Play—It wasn't Gene Larkin's pinch-hit fly ball to left center over a drawn-in outfield with the bases loaded and one out in the last of the 10th inning of the seventh game. It was rookie second baseman Chuck Knoblauch's fake scoop and throw of an imaginary ball that froze Atlanta base runner Lonnie Smith at second base for an instant and prevented him from scoring from first on a double to the left-center field wall by Terry Pendleton in the top of the eighth inning. Smith's potential score was snuffed out two batters later on a first-to-home-to-first double play turned by first baseman Kent Hrbek and catcher Brian Harper.

Series' Most Unlikely Play—Twins catcher Brian Harper, who some say would have difficulty throwing out a pair of old socks, cut down on Atlanta runner at second base when the batter 'swung' and missed on a hit-and-run attempt. The throw skipped to second baseman Knoblauch on the short hop, of course, but he held on to make the tag and snuff out a rally.

Enough Statistics, Already!—Did anyone else get a little weary of the constant outpouring of comparative statistics spouted by the CBS announcers throughout the Series? "This is only the first time since 1984 and only the 26th time in the history of the World Series that a left-handed pinch hitter named Jack has singled to left field off a right-handed reliever in the seventh inning of the fifth game with runners on first and second where the runner failed to score from second base. History is being made here tonight, fans!"

Unlikely Heroes—As should be expected of well-balanced teams, players with little name recognition and salaries to match delivered heroic clutch performances while the big guns misfired. We think of homers struck by Greg Gagne and Scott Leius, booming triples and game-winning single by little Mark Lemke, gutsy base-running to stretch a broken bat bloop hit into a double by Dan Gladden in the 10th inning of the then-scoreless seventh game, perfect sacrifice bunt by Knoblauch to move Gladden to third base with one out, a deep drive by pinch-hitter Gene Larkin to win that game after multi-millionaires Kirby Puckett and Kent Hrbek had been walked intentionally.

Most Valuable Player—Pitcher Jack Morris was a deserving winner and showed with his 10-inning, seventh game shutout performance the competitive nature he brought to the Twins' pitching staff. But among every game performers who played their hearts out, made the big ploys and came through in the clutch we would have voted a tie between second basemen Lemke and Knoblauch.

World Class Umpiring—Considerable credit should be given to the umpiring crews which did an exceptional job in calling the Series. Sure, they may have missed a ball or strike call or two, but they were right on the money on all the rest, including a number of tough ones. Hats off to the boys in blue!

Greatest Series In History?—Highly unlikely. In the excitement of the moment nearly every World Series seems to offer something that makes it special and memorable. Certainly this seven-game event had its share of excitement, drama, close games and outstanding performances. But it also had its share of poor base-running, scoring opportunities squandered, defensive lapses and that fifth game blowout. Viewed from the perspective of the future it may indeed be one of the greatest Series ever from the standpoint of fan entertainment; after all, every game was won by the home team. But it's too early to proclaim this Series' greatness in the history of the event.

Career Years—The Twins won the American League West, American League championship and World Series because a number of players had career years. Chili Davis, Shane Mack, Brian Harper, Chuck Knoblauch, Randy Bush, Jack Morris, Kevin Tapani, Scott Erickson, Carl Willis and Rick Aguilera may never have more successful seasons than they had this year and manager Tom Kelly may never again make as many decisions that turn out right. Kelly's style of using all of his players all season long paid off in the post season.

Launching Pad For Greed—Winning a world championship will inflate player value, at least in their own eyes. Free agents will claim they are unappreciated by management and offer to take their services elsewhere for seven and eight-figure contracts. Players under contract will claim they are unappreciated by management and should have their pacts renegotiated. Few will be satisfied to admit they only did the job they were paid to do—put forth their best effort.

Consider Jack Morris who, it can be argued, took a pay cut to play in the World Series. If his winner's share is about $120,000, he receives less than $40,000 for each of his three starts. At his $3.65 million annual salary he received about $100,000 per start during the regular season—probably around $900 a pitch. He is a hometown boy with hometown loyalties. He will want more money. He won't be alone.

Election Predictions

Election time has come around again and especially in the City of Thief River Falls there is an active election brewing. The office of mayor and six of the other seven city council positions are up for election this year due to a variety of circumstances.

As we have done in the past, we will attempt to predict how the voters will respond to the candidates. The predictions are merely our personal best guesses and are not endorsements of the candidates we predict to win. And we invite, as always, people to make their own guess and see if they can do better than we do.

Mayor Bob Carlson is not among those who have filed for office this year, so the office of mayor has no incumbent in the race. Vice Mayor Robert Reeve is seeking the office as is Paul Olson, a local counselor. Voters generally vote for people who are familiar to them. We predict a relatively easy win for Reeve, a five-year participant in Thief River Falls city government and past Minnesota Department Commander of the American Legion.

For the regular four-year term of alderman at large, present council member Jean Heinrichs has filed along with Arden "Bud" Comstock. For a two-year alderman at large post, incumbent J. J. Womack and John T. Anderson have filed. Mrs. Heinrichs was appointed to the council after alderman Don Liden's death and that term would have expired at the start of 1994. Instead of seeking election for the unexpired term, she has chosen to run for the four-year term and Womack has chosen to be a candidate for the two-year unexpired term.

Our guess is that Womack will prevail over former city superintendent of utilities John T. Anderson. Voters infrequently elect former administrators to positions on boards or councils by which they were formerly employed. We look for Mrs. Heinrichs to withstand a strong challenge from Comstock. All things else being equal, she has the benefit of incumbency plus the likely support of those who would like to have more women in political office. Both contests are likely to be close, however, and if we were to pick an upset winner in the election it would be Comstock.

In the first ward Milton Burstad is being opposed by former alderman Milan Borsheim. Although Borsheim served on the council for a number of years, we look for a Burstad reelection based on his defeat of Borsheim in the previous election.

In the second ward David Carlson and Bill Hogan are seeking the post presently held by Greg Brekke. Brekke, who was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Ken Murphy when Murphy was elected to the Pennington county board of commissioners, did not seek reelection. We predict Hogan will win this race, but again we expect the margin to be fairly narrow.

In the fifth ward, former alderman Don Goodrich and retired assistant superintendent of schools Frank Hamerlinck are seeking the post vacated by Robert Reeve in his quest for mayor. More than any other, this race has the issue of the gambling casino involved since Dr. Goodrich has been a public opponent of it. Our guess is that Hamerlinck will win despite the vote of 131 to 31 against the casino in the fifth ward during the recent voluntary advisory election.

Dale Wennberg is unopposed in the third ward and Larry Belmont and Hank Hallstrom are unopposed for two School District 564 board positions. All are incumbents.

"REAL PROSPERITY"
We have heard over and over that the proposed gambling casino is a "legal" business. Have you ever wondered why they don't use the word "legitimate"? Just because something is legal doesn't mean it's either right or legitimate.
The ministers and many others in Thief River Falls have been trying to say that this casino is not a legitimate business. In other words there is something bogus about the whole thing.
The Bible makes it clear that wealth doesn't come from greed. Deuteronomy 8:18 says "...it is the Lord who has given you the power to get wealth, that He may confirm His covenant ..." Businessmen and women, the Lord wants to establish covenant with you and give you the power to get wealth "legitimately", and we at Jesus Is King Ministries would be happy to explain this principle to you.

"The Owl And The Pussycat" is a comedy that revolves around the meeting of a woman and man from two completely different lifestyles who find something draws them together.

"It should be a very funny play that will be enjoyed by many," according to Kevin TeBeest of the arts council. "This activity is made possible in part by a grant from the State Arts Board through the Northwest Regional Development commission."

Agassiz will be open for deer season

The 1991 deer hunting season at the Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge will be held Nov. 9-17 in accordance with Minnesota Department of Natural Resources regulations.

Fall population is estimated at 2,500 deer within the 130 square miles of Area 203.

Zone 2 Area 203, consisting of Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge, plus the Elm Lake, Eckvoll and Mudlac Wildlife Management Areas, will be open to bucks and antlerless deer by permit. Antlerless permits have already been mailed to all who submitted a valid application. There were 500 antlerless permits available within Area 203.

Except for two closed areas, the entire refuge will be open to deer hunting. These closed areas surround the refuge headquarters and the maintenance center and are posted with "Closed Area" signs. Both areas are also clearly marked on the refuge hunting leaflets available at the headquarters.

Within Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge, preseason scouting will be allowed the day before season opens, Friday, Nov. 8. Hunters are reminded that construction of, or hunting from, permanently constructed tree stands is illegal. Portable stands are legal and can be placed at any height, but can not be left overnight to pre-empt a hunting spot.

Hunters may enter the refuge at 6 a.m. and must leave the refuge as soon as possible after sundown. Only those refuge roads shown on the hunting leaflet, available at the headquarters, are open to travel by motorized vehicles. All other refuge road, trail and dike use will be restricted to foot traffic and non-motorized carrying devices for transporting deer. Non-motorized watercraft may be used on ditches and pools. The use of three-wheelers, trail bikes and other off-road vehicles is prohibited throughout Area 203. Snowmobiles, however, are allowed on DNR lands according to state regulations, but not on the refuge.

Deer taken in Permit Area 203 must be registered at any check station before leaving Zone 2. There will be no check station at the refuge headquarters this year, but nearby towns have at least one check station.

A total of 419 deer were harvested in Area 203 in 1990.

Hunter safety is always of special concern. Increased hunter numbers make accidents more probable and make it a must that hunters be sure of their target. The potential for hypothermia and heart attack also exists and hunter caution and awareness is advised. All hunting accidents on Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge must be reported immediately to the headquarters.

Northland Community College hitter Jill Brantl spiked the ball past a pair of University of Minnesota-Crookston defenders as teammate Jodi Chaplinski went up with a fake during Wednesday's Northwest Division volleyball match in Thief River Falls.

Pioneers lose final match

Northland Community College closed out its 1991 regular season volleyball schedule in a playoff atmosphere Wednesday when the Pioneers hosted rival University of Minnesota-Crookston in a Northwest Division showdown that gave the winner a shot at a Minnesota Community College Conference state tournament berth.

The win and a second place tie in the Northwest Division went to the Trojans, 13-15, 15-3, 15-8, 15-10. With the top two teams in the Northwest Division advancing into the MCCC state tournament, the victory had its rewards.

Northland, after starting the MCCC schedule with back-to-back wins, lost its final four Northwest Division matches and wound up 10-14 overall.

The Pioneers were hesitant at the start, falling behind 4-1 and 9-4 before finishing Game 1 with a rush. They caught UMC at 13-13 and went ahead 14-13 when Jodi Chaplinski tapped a rebound over the net after the Trojans' double-block on hard-hitting Northland freshman Jill Brantl. UMC then put a shot into the net to hand the Pioneers the 15th point and a 1-0 match lead.

However, the Game 1 Northland rally failed to produce Game 2 momentum as UMC jumped out to a 7-0 lead and had a 12-1 spread on three consecutive aces by Monica Johnson.

"That's volleyball for you," offered Northland coach Deb Jacobson. "There is no guarantee that momentum will carry over to the next game. It's just like starting all over when you change sides."

Northland came back with a solid Game 3 effort that produced a 6-2 head start before UMC caught the Pioneers at 8-8. A hit by Chris Boll crawled over the net for a 9-8 lead, and the Trojans finished a run of 11 straight points when Tanya Hoeper drilled home a kill spike for a 14-8 spread and and out-of-bounds hit by Northland produced the final point.

The Pioneers tried to make it a five-game match by taking a 9-6 lead in Game 4, but fell behind at 10-9 when nobody picked up a set. A tip by Brantl kept Northland within 11-10, but the night's longest and most entertaining rally ended when Northland sent a spike out of bounds to give UMC a 12-10 edge that broke the Pioneers' spirits. Northland errors accounted for the final three points.

"It was still a good season," said Jacobson, who returned to coaching after a one-year sabbatical. "I enjoyed being back."

There was promise of an even better season, though, when Northland was 2-0 in the Northwest Division and 10-9 overall back on Oct. 4. But when Cheri Bjorgaard – who combined with Brantl to give the Pioneers a pair of top-notch hitters – went down with a broken bone in her foot, the late-season slump began. Brantl was called on to carry the load, and she came up with a bundle of big hits Wednesday, but Bjorgaard's absence still left a hole in the attack.

North Sub-Section 8AA Volleyball draw is listed

Newest member Alexandria drew the No. 1 seed for the 1991 North Sub-Section 8AA high school volleyball tournament, scheduled to get underway Monday with Thief River Falls at Detroit Lakes and Fergus Falls at Bemidji.

Switched from South to North Sub-Section 8AA for the 1991 season, Alexandria drew the No. 1 tournament seed away from perennial champion Moorhead, the No. 2 pick. Detroit Lakes was voted No. 3 by the coaches, followed by Bemidji, Fergus Falls and Thief River Falls.

Semifinals will be played Thursday, Nov. 7, when the Thief River Falls-Detroit Lakes winner visits Moorhead and the Fergus Falls-Bemidji winner heads to Alexandria.

Championship match will be played Saturday, Nov. 9, at the site of the highest-seeded semifinal winner.

All North Sub-Section 8AA matches have 7:30 p.m. starting times.

The North and South winners will meet in the Section 8AA finals Saturday, Nov. 16, at a neutral site.

Area volleyball teams finish regular season

Area high school volleyball teams closed out their 1991 regular season schedules Tuesday.

Grygla-Goodridge, Middle River and Marshall County Central start Section 8A Sub-Section 4 tournament play tonight (Friday). Red Lake County Central's Section 8A Sub-Section 3 tournament seeding positions will be announced Saturday, with matches getting underway Monday.

Wolverines

A 1-16 regular season ended for Grygla-Goodridge in a 3-1 loss at the hands of Tri-County at Karlstad.

Tri-County won 15-9, 12-15, 15-7, 15-12.

Despite the latest loss, Grygla-Goodridge coach Tim Mostrom was satisfied with the performance. "That's probably the best we've played all year without Kathy in the line-up," he said, referring to the absence of Kathy Smeby, who has missed much of the 1991 season because of injuries. "We played with much more intensity than we have been lately."

Stacey Dahlen and Nikki Bottem both turned in strong efforts, according to Mostrom.

Grygla-Goodridge was scheduled to meet Kittson County North at 8 tonight in first round Section 8A Sub-Section 4 tournament play at Warroad. The Wolverines' lone win this fall was a 3-1 decision over the Cougars back on Sept. 24.

Nordics

Marshall County Central takes a 12-10 regular season record into tournament play after a 3-1 Tuesday night loss at Stephen.

The Tigers overcame a 12-11 first-game deficit to set the stage for a 15-12, 15-4, 11-15, 15-8 win.

"First and third games were good; the fourth game wasn't sa bad; the second game was our poorest," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Mark Jorgenson. "The first game should have been ours. We had a 12-11 led and then made five mental errors (including three net violations) that really hurt. You just can't make those kind of mistakes against a good team and expect to win."

Kim Davidson and Stacy Anderson turned in strong performances at the net, pointed out Jergenson.

The Nordics were scheduled to take on Middle River tonight at 8 in the opening round Section 8A Sub Section 4 tournament matches at Warroad.

Mustangs

Red Lake County Central had a tough time getting through the Win-E-Mac blockers as the host Patriots swept the Mustangs 15-10, 15-3, 15-7.

"It was a frustrating match," said Red Lake County Central coach Brad Borene. "We didn't play very well. Our serving (74 percent) really let us down. We were just too tight."

Jenny Walter turned in the Mustangs' top performance, said Borene – a strong all-around match that included 11 kills, six last-touch

Moose hunters report success

Big-game registration figures from the 1991 moose season in northwest Minnesota recorded a hunter-success rate of 98 percent, according to Department of Natural Resources officials. Out of 345 permits issued for the nine-day season that ended Oct. 20, a total of 337 moose were harvested.

According to Gordy Forester, Area Wildlife Manager with the DNR at Thief River Falls, 246 of the animals – fully 73 percent of the harvest – were adult bulls.

"There were no 'monster bulls' this year in terms of antlers," said Forester. "But there were several bulls that probably tipped the scales at over 1,000 pounds. The largest rack reported measured 52 inches."

Twenty additional state permits have been issued for a late-season hunt Nov. 30 through Dec. 8 in the Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge in eastern Marshall County.

Jim Breyen, Regional Wildlife Supervisor for the DNR Northwest Region, says that the large percentage of bulls in the harvest is also an indicator of improving herd status. "If the numbers weren't up," said Breyen, "more hunters would have had to settle for an antlerless moose. The fact that three out of four hunting parties were able to find an adult bull indicates the population is recovering from the decline we observed four years ago."

At the time, a high mortality rate among moose in the northwest herd was blamed on an infestation of moose ticks. The ticks caused excessive hair loss that greatly reduced winter survival.

The same problem was blamed for a 55 percent decrease in moose population estimates in northeast Minnesota during the past two winters – a situation which prompted DNR wildlife officials to close the season this year in all 26 of the northeast area hunting zones.

The allowable harvest in the northwest was adjusted downward this year to compensate for the previous tick-related population decline. Only 365 licenses were available in the moose lottery this year, compared to 449 northwest area permits issued in 1989 and 772 in 1987. In fact, with the closing of the season in the northeast, 1991 saw the smallest number of permits ever issued since Minnesota's every-other-year moose seasons began in 1971. That year, a total of 400 permits were issued for both the northeast and northwest zones.

"Most registration stations reported that moose were in very good condition this fall," said Forester, "except for the Thief River Falls station, which saw a few 'ticky' moose with hair rubbed off already."

To assist moose hunters in preparing for a safe, successful hunt, the DNR offered moose hunt orientation sessions in Thief River Falls and Karlstad on Oct. 11, the day before the season opener. The sessions were well received, with 140 hunters voluntarily attending. The Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge will conduct a mandatory orientation for the 20 license holding parties chosen to participate in the late-season hunt.

Agassiz refuge news covers several items

News items from personnel at the Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge in eastern Marshall County.

Lost Bay Auto Drive To Close

Lost Bay Auto Drive at Agassiz will close Nov. 6 and will remain closed until spring, 1992.

Visitors may continue to observe wildlife along Marshall County Road 7, which bisects the southern portion of the refuge. Species seen during the winter months include moose, deer, ravens, magpies, northern shrikes and a variety of other birds that stay for the winter.

Refuge officials hope that everyone who visited the area during the year enjoyed the auto drive. A news release will be issued next spring announcing the re-opening of the Lost Bay Auto Drive for the season.

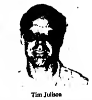
Spotlights Prohibited At Agassiz

As fall progresses and more people are looking for wildlife, residents are reminded that shining lights on any portion of Agassiz is strictly prohibited.

Public use of the refuge is limited to the daylight hours only.

Title 50 of the Code of Federal Regulations, part 27.73 states that: "No un-authorized person shall use or direct the rays of a spotlight, or other artificial light, or automobile headlights within the boundaries of any national wildlife refuge or along right-of-way for public or private roads within a national wildlife refuge."

This applies not only to individuals who are on the refuge, but also to people who are shining from a public roadway or private land.



While shining may be permitted on other public or private lands during certain hours, shining on a national wildlife refuge is prohibited at all times.

Firewood Cutting Permits

Agassiz is issuing woodcutting permits to cut or haul wood Oct. 1-Nov. 3, Nov. 18-28 and after Dec. 8, following the moose hunting season.

Wood available is green aspen and balsam poplar that was cut in September, 1991 by a commercial pulping operation. Much of the wood was placed in piles and is easily accessible. Other wood is standing fire-killed aspen and balsam poplar caused by the 1990 wildfire. Dead and down trees are scattered throughout the refuge and is available as designated.

A map showing the locations of the wood is available at the refuge office.

Tim Julison

Wood cutting and hauling is permitted each day of the week during daylight hours. The permittee must be present during any wood cutting or hauling activity and have the wood cutting permit in possession.

Firearms, bow and arrows and alcoholic beverages are not permitted during wood cutting and hauling.

Each permittee is limited to 10 cords of wood, which is to be used for personal use only. there is a $10 administrative charge.

Interested people need to contact Agassiz officials by calling 449-4115, or by stopping at the refuge headquarters located 11 miles east of Holt on Marshall County Road 7. Inspection hours are Monday through Friday, 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., excluding federal holidays.

New Agassiz Employee

Tim Julison joined the Agassiz staff in August as refuge operations specialist, transferring here from the Upper Mississippi National Wildlife and Fish Refuge in Winona.

Julison, who resides in Newfolden, received his college education at Southern Illinois University, graduating in 1977 with a B.A. degree in science. He also completed other wildlife courses at Winona State University.

As a refuge operations specialist at Agassiz, Julison will serve as private lands coordinator in the six northwest counties of Minnesota, providing assistance to private landowners with wetland restoration projects.

Seamless Aluminum Guttering

378-4641 378-4585

Our seamless gutters are manufactured from .032 gauge pre-painted aluminum, the heaviest gauge used in the industry. If your home is 20 feet or 200 feet in length our seamless gutter is made in one continuous length, eliminating any joints or seams in the middle. Inquire before you purchase "Seamless Gutter" about the thickness of the material used, and be certain that it is made in one continuous length.

Seamless gutter is formed, cut and installed on site by a two man crew, saving on labor costs. Freight charges are eliminated. Waste is almost unheard of due to gutter being measured and cut on site to exact lengths. No need to store left over odds and ends that get damaged before they can be used. Most jobs can be completed the same day. Call us for complete information and free estimates of your job at no obligation to you.

"Why I Say I'm Your Neighbor"
Moved to Thief River Falls in 1942, and lived in the 1st Ward at the following:

• 413 Red Lake Blvd. (With my family and mother Ogney Borsheim)
• 607 East 8th Street (Family & parents Harry & Ogney Schuster)
• 602 North Horace Avenue
• 603 North Horace Avenue (Apartment, 1st Married)
• 716 North Horace Avenue (Purchased 1st Home)
• 422 North Horace Avenue (Present Home and Business)

All of these locations are in the 1st Ward and while living at these different addresses, I have made many friends and neighbors. I went to Northrop school and graduated from Lincoln High School in 1951. Was away from the ward when I spent 4 years in the United State Air Force from 1953 to 1957. Presently reside and work at 422 Horace Avenue North where I own and operated Borsheim Printing.

Thank You! For This Opportunity !!

"With Chen in there, we played with a lot more confidence," acknowledged Jacobson. "Toward the end, we were content just to get it over the net, and you won't win many matches just doing that."

Others filled their roles, with Rhonda Srnsky, Nikki Anderson, Gina Peterson, Alice Dunning and Cheplinski joining Brantl in Wednesday's starting line-up, but with half of the division's top 1-2 attack tandem on the sidelines, the Pioneers' record suffered. "We were trying to get Jill into the offense as much as possible, both in the front row and the back row," explained Jacobson, " but it's tough to lose a hitter like Chen."

I want to thank everyone who made my 80th birthday party such a special day. Many thanks to Sheldon and Janey, Gordon and Patty for making it possible. And to my grandchildren and great-grandchildren for their part in the program. I thoroughly enjoyed the style show, slide presentation, the piano solo by Jeremy, the musical number by Angie, Crystal and Missy, and the song "Mother". Thank you to Pastor Smerok and Ade for devotions and accompaniment.
Thanks to my relations and friends who came and for your cards and gifts. Thank you to those who could not come but greeted me with cards or phone calls.
Alice Peterson 1t88p

Thank you to St. Anne's Ladies Aid for the delicious meal and also St. Anne's Men's club for all the work of hauling tables and setting up extra chairs. Thanks also to the Green funeral home.
Thank you to the Grygla and Thief River Falls Ambulance services and emergency staff at Northwest Medical Center. Thanks to everyone who helped out in any way at the scene of the accident, especially to Rick and Tim for doing everything you could for Chad the night of the accident and to all of Chad's friends for all your love and concern.
We want to thank everyone for your prayers, visits, phone calls, cards, memorials, flowers and also for bringing food to the house.
Special thanks to Gene, Vince and Ron for helping us with chores, Robert and Adeline for opening your home to everyone the day of the prayer service, and also, for preparing a beautiful meal for everyone that evening.

Thief River Falls Touchdown club was thanked for its donation of $600 for purchase of two bikes for the school weight room.

Employment was approved for the following: Donna Quam, technical college financial aid officer; Margie Rendulich, long-term substitute secretary in the area learning center; Vicky Sabo and Cindy Jones, cleaners; Darryl Tveitbakk, winter quarter electronics instructor at the technical college; Linda Homseth, transportation assistant; Heidi Tangquist, Chapter 1 instructor at Northrop; and Mary Nordhagen, pool and girls' locker room aide at Franklin

Increase in hours was established for 10 food service positions at Washington, Knox and Northrop elementary schools, Franklin middle school and Lincoln high school. Hours for educational assistants were also extended at Mark Twain, Knox, Northrop and Washington elementary schools.

Policies on alcohol and drug-free workplace and evaluation of classified staff were approved. Technical college catalog and student handbook were presented to the board for review.

Next regular meeting of the board will be November 11 at 7 p.m. in the service center conference room. A special meeting has been scheduled for Wednesday, November 6, at 7 a.m. to discuss the technical college merger.

Orders being taken for Prowler yearbooks

Lincoln high school students and other interested members of the community may order copies of the 1992 Prowler yearbook during the period from Tuesday, November 5 through Friday, November 22, according to Sandy Larson, advisor.

Students may place their orders during first hour classes or obtain order forms from the student affairs office. Others interested in purchasing the yearbook may complete an order form and pay the purchase price at the student affairs office.

Cost of the yearbook is $32 for Lincoln seniors and $25 for underclassmen and the public. Seniors are charged the higher price to cover cost of color printing of senior photos. Dawn Peterson is editor of the 1992 yearbook with Kelly Krause as assistant editor.

"We want to emphasize that November 22 will be the final deadline for orders," advisor Larson said. "Payment in full may be made by cash or check. The yearbooks will be ready for distribution around the start of the 1992-93 school year."

Special school board meeting

To discuss developments in the proposed technical college merger, the School District 564 board of education in Thief River Falls will meet in special session Wednesday, November 6, at 7 a.m. Meetings of the school board are open to the public.

Special court verdict

HH&K Builders, Inc.;

•That the partnership and Gunderson intentionally and wrongfully intervened with the contractual relationships between HH&K and its subcontractors;

•That the partnership and Gunderson falsely represented to HH&K that James Walker was a licensed architect or that Stewart and Walker had a licensed architect on its staff as an employee;

•That the wrongs directly caused damages to HH&K;

•That Stewart and Walker Inc. and James Walker negligently breached a duty of care owed to HH&K;

•That Stewart and Walker and James Walker falsely represented to HH&K that James Walker was a licensed architect or that Stewart and Walker had a licensed architect on its staff as an employee.

Ninth District Court Judge Russell Anderson issued an order this week in Pennington county following the findings of the special verdict. HH&K was also awarded costs and disbursements. A counterclaim by Oak Lodge Limited Partnership and by Gunderson against HH&K was dismissed. The order was stayed for 30 days.

Since the special verdict and order attorneys for James Stewart of Stewart and Walker filed a memorandum in support of a motion for judgement notwithstanding the verdict and a memorandum notwithstanding the verdict or for relief from award of damages or remittitur. The memorandums basically seek relief from the verdict.

Fire destroys school in Newfolden

Fire which seemed to spread throughout most of the building destroyed the 21-year-old Marshall County Central high school in Newfolden Thursday. The fire was reported shortly before 3:30 a.m. and fire departments from Newfolden, Middle River, Warren, Karlstad, Viking and Thief River Falls joined in efforts to fight the blaze in temperatures around the zero mark.

In the wake of the early morning fire which destroyed Marshall County Central high school in Newfolden Thursday, the School District 441 board of education met with administrators and faculty Thursday evening to plan for resumption of high school classes in temporary facilities by the middle of next week.

Target date of Wednesday, November 13, was set for starting of high school classes in temporary facilities at Bethlehem Lutheran church, the Evangelical Free church and the Newfolden Community Center, according to Supt. R. Gene Busch. The decision was made to leave the elementary classes in the present elementary building across the street from the destroyed high school rather than move elementary classes and use that building for the high school program.

No school was held in the district Thursday but elementary classes resumed on the regular schedule today. Supt. Busch requested that parents and high school students not call the school for information about resumption of classes but listen for announcements to be made on KTRF and KKAQ radio stations in Thief River Falls. He said an effort will be made to have a specified time of day when the announcements will be made so that residents of the district can plan to listen for them.

Thursday's fire was noticed about 3:20 a.m. by Holly Mezeski, 15, who lives near the east end of the school. She was sleeping on a living room couch pending repair of a leak in her waterbed and noticed a glow in the window which faces the school. She awakened her brother, Jason Leader, 17, and he thought he saw flames. They in turn awakened their parents who saw the fire and called the 911 emergency number.

Bob Reeve elected mayor as 1,859 voters cast their ballots in Thief River Falls city election Tuesday

Thief River Falls will have a new mayor and three new aldermen as a result of the 1991 city election held Tuesday. With seven of the eight city government positions represented on the ballot, a good turn-out of voters was noted at the polls with 1,859 ballots cast.

Closest race was for the two-year unexpired alderman-at large term resulting from the death of alderman Don Liden. Seeking that position were incumbent alderman J. J. Womack and former city superintendent of utilities John T. Anderson. Final tally was 905 votes for Anderson and 880 for Womack as 74 voters who cast ballots did not vote in that race.

Anderson carried Ward 1 by a vote of 155 to 154, won in Ward 2 by 36 votes 201 to 165 and carried Ward 4 by 22 votes 179 to 157. Womack won in the third ward by 19 votes 133 to 114 and in the fifth ward by 15 votes 271 to 256.

In Ward 2 where Greg Brekke declined to run for reelection, David Carlson handily carried all three precincts to defeat Bill Hogan 279 to 94. Carlson carried Precinct 2A 109 to 33, Precinct 2B 88 to 27 and Precinct 2C 82 to 34.

In Ward 5, where Bob Reeve chose to run for mayor instead of seek reelection as an alderman, Frank Hamerlinck also carried all three precincts to defeat former city alderman Dr. Don Goodrich 365 to 173. Hamerlinck won in Precinct 5A 99 to 69, Precinct 5B 145 to 42 and Precinct 5C 121 to 62.

With Mayor Bob Carlson not filing for reelection, the race for mayor was a two-way contest between fifth ward alderman Bob Reeve and challenger Paul Olson. The voters made it virtually a one-way race by giving Reeve a better than six-to-one margin, 1,421 to 231.

There were 157 write-in votes cast in the mayoral race, most of them for Mayor Bob Carlson who had announced he would accept write-in votes on his behalf. Fifty voters did not vote in the race for mayor.

In two other contested spots on the ballot, incumbent aldermen were reelected. Jean Heinrichs,

ACTIVITIES

Act It Out

Children love to be read to, but have you ever thought about acting out one of their favorite stories? Some of the fairy talex are easy to do, such as the Three Billy Goats Gruff and the Three Bears. The props that you will need are very simple. Be sure the child knows the story well, so that the events will follow in logical sequence. There should be enough children for the characters in the story. The children will need to have some directions and assistance, if this is not a familiar activity for them to engage in.

(Contributed by Discovery Place child care center.)

SCAVENGER HUNT

For next week's Activities feature, you will need paper and crayons.

BOOK OF THE WEEK

The best way to celebrate National Library Week is to read some of the great new books at the Thief River Falls public library:

Gretz, Susanna. Frog In the Middle. Three friends maintain a friendship despite occasionol jealousies.

Singer, Marilyn. Nine O'Clock Lullaby. A rhythmic lullaby that transports children through different lands.

Martin, Bill Jr. The Happy Hippotami. A frolic at the beach is the order of the day for o group of hippopotami.

TIMES FOR TODDLERS

VIDEO VARIETY

Another way to celebrate National Library Week is to borrow a video tape to watch with your child:

The Teddy Bears' Picnic. A special children's concert featuring the singing group Rosenshontz.

The Velveteen Rabbit. Narrated by Amy Irving, this is Margery William's story of how love brings a stuffed toy to life.

PARENTING TIPS

Aoger

Everyone gets angry. You do, and so does your chdd. But figuring out what to do with that anger is tough. It makes parenting one of the hardest jobs in the world, states the Minnesota department of public welfare.

Most of us were not taught how to deal with anger during our childhood. Often we were led to believe that to be angry was to be bad and, we were often made to feel guilty for expressing anger. It will be easier to deal with children's anger if we get rid of the notion that anger is bad. Try to treat it as a natural human feeling. Allow your child and yourself to feel the emotion of anger.

Strong feelings should not be denied. View angry outbursts as a sign of a serious problem. Recognize these strong feelings and treat them with respect.

Anger is often the result of another feeling that hasn't been identified. The real problem could be deeper and more frightening. If you can discover what feeling lies under the anger, you can talk about it and deal with the "real problem." If you use this process the anger is likely to lessen or even disappear.

Next week we will look at some suggestions for deoling with an angry child.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Try to discover the feelings that are causing your child's anger and help him/her to talk about it. "You get frustrated with you litulo brother when he walks through the middle of your toys."

Soupçon

By Sherry LaCoursiere

This is the weather for hot soup. Try one this week to warm up your inside and your outside.

By the way, isn't chicken soup good for a cold?

Chicken aod Corn Cbowder Soup
Neck, back, wings and giblets of chicken
1 onion, sliced
1 carrot, diced
1 can cream style corn
1 1/2 quarts boiling water
3 stalks celery with leaves (chopped)
1 tablespoon salt
2 hard cooked eggs, chopped fine (optional)
Egg Rivrels (*)

Place pieces of chicken in large kettle with water, onion, celery, carrot and salt. Cover and simmer until tender, about 1 1/2 hours. Slip meat from bones, cut up fine and return to broth.

Add corn nnd simmer 10 minutes. Add eggs. Drop Egg Rivrels into soup and simmer 10 minutes.

Egg Rivreis

Sift together 1 cup flour and 1/4 teaspoon salt. Mix in one egg with a fork until mixture looks like corn meal. Drop by teaspoonfuls into hot soup.

Here is a hearty soup that will stick to anyone's ribs:

Homemade Soup
Soup bones
1/2 cup pearled barley
1 onion
4-5 medium potatoes
3 medium carrots
1 small cabbage
1-2 tomatoes, sliced and skinned
1 cup green dry split peas
1 medium rutabaga
1 parsnip
salt and pepper to taste

Combine ingredients and cook slowly for several hours until vegetables are tender.

When there's nothing in the house except o pound of hamburger, you can still make soup. Homemade soup can't get one much easier:

Hamburger Soup
1 pound hamburger
1 quart tomatoes or tomato juice
2-3 cups vegetables of your choice (carrots, rutabagas, celery, onion, potatoes, turnips, parsnips)
1 quart water more
2 bouillon cubes
salt

Brown hamburger. Add tomatoes or juice, water, vegetables and bouillon cubes. Salt to taste and cook until vegetables are tender.

If you haven't tried this Italian favorite do so. It is delicious and very, very hearty:

Minestrone
1/4 pound bacon
1 medium onion, chopped
2 cloves garlic, chopped
15 1/2 ounce spaghetti sauce
6 ounces water
3 beef bouillon cubes
1/2 cup celery, chopped
1/2 cup chopped carrots
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon parsley
1 tablespoon Parmesan cheese
3/4 cup raw macaroni
1 (16 ounce) can drained kidney beans

Dice ond cook bacon. Add all other ingredients except kidney beans. Cook until vegetables are tender. Add kidney beans the last 15-20 minutes before serving.

Here are a couple different recipes for dumplings. Try them all - who knows which one is the best:

Dumplings #1
1 cup flour
pinch salt
1/4 cup milk
2 eggs
2 teaspoon baking powder

These should be stiff when they are put into the kettle. Dip spoon into broth after each dumpling. Cover soup and cook for 15 minutes without uncovering.

Dumplings #2
2 eggs
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 cup flour
1/2 teaspoon salt

Beat eggs until light. Add the sifted dry ingredients. Drop into boiling broth, but do not let boiling stop.

Keep kettle lightly covered to avoid drafts. Turn dumplings over when raised up so the underside gets cooked. (Also may serve with butter and salt and pepper after cooking.)

Dumplings #3

(This recipe is rather vague, but it is the way Grandma taught me to make dumplings. These little things are rather hard and chewy, but try them if you like your dumplings that way.)

Beat 1 egg in bowl. Add obout 1/2-3/4 cup water (for more chewy) or milk, and mix well. Add flour enough to make a rather stiff dough and mix in some salt and pepper to taste. Try a little dab in the boiling soup to see if the dumpling holds together. If it does, put in rest of batter by half teaspoonfuls, dipping spoon into broth after each dumpling.

Area MCCL officers at state meet

Dorothy Pederson of Viking, chairperson of the Central Marshall county chapter of the Minnesoto Citizens Concerned for Life, and Bernard and Frances Crummy of Argyle, MCCL regional directors, were among more than 600 people attending the MCCL annual convention recently in Bloomington.

Also in attendance were women from the Argyle and Crookston chapters. Mrs. Pederson invites persons interested in joining the orgonizotion to contact her at Viking by calling 523-4632.

Dr. Alan Keyes, president of the 400,000-member Citizens Against Government Waste, was keynote speaker for the convention. He said that many of the arguments used to justify legal abortion today were used to jusufy slavery in the 19th century.

"The reason you cauld make the choice as to whether other human beings would live or die, or work in your fields, or care for your home, regardless of their own will, innocence or guilt, is that they were not human at all," Dr. Keyes said. "The slaves were only beasts, marked by the color of their skin to be apart from humanity. And today we are told fetuses are only a mass of cells, marked by their silence in the womb, for death."

He said those who have no respect for the defenseless have no respect for anyone, even themselves. "And that is the death knell of representative government," he said. "For a people that has no respect for itself soon grows weary of the burden of liberty and wants to lay it down."

Commenting on the appointment of Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomos, who he described os a close friend, Dr. Keyes said it "marked the end of the obortion advocates' [illegible] of that level of this country's conscience and this country's laws."

But he added that winning in the courtroom and in the legislatures will not be the ultimate victory. "This is not a battle for law alone," he said, "but for the hearts and minds and consciences of our people, until we get back the basic respect for the rights of each and every human being that in these years of legalized abortion has been slipping away."

Nancy Myers, media liaison for the National Right to Life organization, soid abortion stops a beating heart 4,300 times a day. "We want media coverago on the abortion issue," she said, "instead of only treating it as o political issue, a religious issue or a woman's issue."

Also speaking at the convention was 14-year-old Gianna Jessen who survived a saline abortion her mother underwent in the seventh month of pregnancy. She weighed two pounds when aborted ot o California clinic and the procedure resulted in cerebral palsy. She has hod several major surgeries as well as extensive physical therapy. At the convention several songs were performed that she has written about her unique birth.

Attendance at the convention was the largest in nearly 20 years. MCCL has nearly 50,000 members in more thon 160 local chapters around the state.

Roseau physicians to staff Greenbush clinic

Greenbush — Under an agreement reached with the Grand Forks clinic, physicians from Roseau will begin staffing the Community clinic in Greenbush. The five physicians currently practice at the Roseau Medical clinic, a branch of the Grand Forks clinic. They will be in Greenbush Tuesdays and Fridays on a rotational basis. The five physicians are Dr. Ralph Herseth, Dr. Luis Jain, Dr. Lyan Didrikson, Dr. Bryon VandeWage and Dr. Ronald Brummer. (Greenbush Tribune)

Northcote Farmers Co-op ass'n dissolved

Northcote — The Northcote Farmers Co-op association was dissolved October 28 in a 70-22 vote by association members. Financial difficulties revealed in September led the board to call this special meeting and brought about the move to dissolve the organization. Properties of the co-op include two grain elevators and an anhydrous facility in Lancaster and an elevator in Northcote. It is not expected that the elevators will close. (Kittson County Enterprise)

Dr. Hernandez named chief of staff of Mahnomen hospital

Mahnomen — The board of directors of the Mahnomen County and Village hospital, clinic and nursing center approved the appointment of Dr. H. L. Hernandez as president (chief of staff) of the medical staff, effective October 16. Gary L. Broadrick, M.D., has served as chief of staff during the past year and will now accept the position of "chief of surgery." Dr. Hernandez joined the Mahnomen facility last May. (Mahnomen Pioneer)

Heritage Christian school starts addition at Karlstad

Karlstad — Another building program has been inaugurated at the Heritage Christian school in Karlstad, but weather may delay the work until spring. Some work had been completed this fall, but winter came sooner than expected, putting a stop to immediate plans. The addition will be 30 feet wide and run the full length of the existing building, which is 88 feet. It will house a band and choir practice room and multi-purpose space, as well as a new kindergarten room. The original building was designed to hold 60 students, but enrollment has increased to 89 this year. (North Star News)

Warroad Pioneer has new owners

Warroad — On November 1, the Warroad Pioneer newspaper was sold to Paul and Julie Gillie of Williams and Rollin and Linda Bergman of Ada by John Mattson, who had been owner and publisher since 1989. The Gillies have owned and operated the Northern Light in Williams since 1985 and Rollin Bergman has been the manager of the Norman County Index, with 32 years of experience in the newspaper business. (Warroad Pioneer)

UMC may be forced to cut faculty

Crookston — Agricultural programs at the University of Minnesota would be the hardest hit in a budget-cutting plan to make up for a $27 million appropriation shortfall, with the possibility that some of the jobs lost would be from the Crookston campus. The school is targeted to lose three to five faculty positions and two or three civil service positions. The academic program reductions reflect reduced student demand in programs such as office management and mechanized agriculture. A final plan won't be approved until next spring however. (Crookston Daily Times)

Habitat chapter being organized in Crookston

Crookston — An enthusiastic group of Crookston area citizens agreed recently to begin organizing a local chapter of Habitat for Humanity. The group has formed a steering committee, elected a chairperson and formed four working committees for site selection, family selection, construction and publicity and finance. The purpose of the organization is to replace dilapidated homes with better ones, by means of cooperative efforts involving many sectors of the community. The group involves many people, working together to reduce the cost of home ownership by cutting both construction and mortgage expenses. Area Habitat Affiliate organizations now exist in Bemidji, Grand Forks and Ottertail county. (Crookston Daily Times)

Potato starch plant possible at Crookston

Crookston — There is a strong possibility that Crookston will be the site of a processing plant and research laboratory to develop new markets for starches for the paper, textile, cosmetic and pharmaceutical industries. Applied Starch Technologies, Inc., which is headquartered in the Twin Cities, is interested in the possibility of modification of and genetic engineering of potato starch. The plan for a new processing plant and lab would process 30 million pounds of starch a year and would employ 50 to 60 people when it is running full steam. There is at present no regional maker of potato starches today. Transportation is one of the main concerns prompting the consideration of the Crookston area for the proposed plant. (Crookston Daily Times)

Paul W. Rondorf gets Bronze Star

Capt. Paul W. Rondorf

For meritorious achievement in the Persian Gulf, Capt. Paul W. Rondorf of Thief River Falls has been awarded the Bronze Star medal. He is the son of William and Brunelle Rondorf.

The citation accompanying the medal states that it is awarded to Capt. Paul W. Rondorf, Field Artillery, "for exceptionally meritorious achievement in support of actions against a hostile force in the Persian Gulf from 16 January 1991 to 31 March 1991, while assigned to Headquarters and Service Battery, 2nd Battalion, 319th Airborne Field Artillery Regiment.

"As the Battery Commander, Captain Rondorf's performance in combat operations was a key factor that enabled the 82nd Airborne Division, in conjunction with Coalition Forces, to implement the United Nations Security Council Resolutions, end Iraqi aggression and free the country of Kuwait.

"His devotion to duty, aggressiveness and ability to excel while under great pressure contributed significantly to the successful accomplishment of the mission. Captain Rondorf demonstrated the high ideals and professionalism exemplified by the Airborne tradition. His outstanding performance in support of the combat mission reflects distinct credit upon himself, the 82nd Airborne Division and the United States Army."

In a letter to the Thief River Falls Times, Capt. Rondorf described his experience in the Gulf area as follows:

"My part in the whole operation began when I deployed as the battery commander of Headquarters & Service Battery....to the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia on 13 August 1990. We immediately moved north to defensive positions near the port of Al Jubayl. October found us moving southwest of Dhahran to a town among the oilfields called Ab Qaiq. We trained and guarded oil facilities in the area until shortly after the bombing began.

At that time we started moving north to the vicinity of another town, Rafha, near the Saudi-Iraq border. We stayed in assault positions five to 10 kilometers from the border until we received the order to attack on 23 February 1991.

We continued our advance to the east until the ceasefire went into effect on 28 February 1991. I returned home to Ft. Bragg, North Carolina on 16 March 1991 with all my men."

In his letter, Capt. Rondorf noted that "Receiving the Times really was a boost to my morale. This made it possible for me to keep up with the home town acuvities while I was in Saudi Arabia and Iraq. I cannot tell you how much receiving The Times and sharing the home town news with my tent mates kept up our morale. We really enjoyed it. Thank you once again for all the support you provided me during those long months in the desert. I'll never forget it."

"SOMETHING PERSONAL"

Jesus said, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." (Mark 16:15) Is the gospel something personal that we don't talk about except on Sunday morning or maybe at a wedding or funeral? These days you hear more about Jesus and His name in profanity, than about Him changing people's lives. When was the last time you went into a place of business or a restaurant and heard people talking about Jesus?

The main topic in the T.R. Falls news has been the Casino. Maybe we should start to share the Gospel in a much bolder way in our communities to see more results to the problems we face as a nation and/or state. Jesus makes the difference.

Congratulations To The Election Winners..... Thanks To All The Candidates

Congratulations are in order for the winners of the Thief River Falls city election races and those who were reelected to office without opposition in the city and School District 564. We trust that all are looking forward to their coming term in office with a positive view toward the public service that the offices entail.

And thanks should go to all the candidates, most certainly including those who were not elected, for taking enough interest in their community to offer to serve in public office. Too often we do not appreciate enough the courage it takes to face an electorate and seek public support.

Tuesday's election will provide three new faces on the city council—John T. Anderson as alderman-at-large, David Carlson in the second ward and Frank Hamerlinck in the fifth ward. Incumbents Jean Heinrichs, Milton Burstad and Dale Wennberg were reelected to council posts and former alderman Bob Reeve will be serving in his new position as mayor.

Our election predictions misfired on a couple of the races, most notably in the second ward and the alderman-at-large contest between veteran alderman J. J. Womack and former utilities superintendent John T. Anderson. We predicted Bill Hogan would defeat Carlson in the second ward where incumbent Greg Brekke did not file for reelection. Carlson romped to a nearly three-to-one victory, capturing 279 votes to 94 for Hogan.

We also predicted a Womack win over Anderson, citing the seemingly general reluctance of voters to elect former administrators to boards or councils which previously employed them. The vote was close—905 for Anderson to 880 for Womack—with Anderson winning in Wards 1, 2 and 4 and Womack carrying Wards 3 and 5. The Anderson margin in Ward 1 was only one vote at 155 to 154.

Carlson is an articulate spokesman who will provide a young influence for the council which had that role filled previously by Brekke. Anderson is certainly no stranger to city budgeting and governmental operations and probably won't be shy about expressing his opinions based on experience.

We correctly predicted winners in the other races, although looked to Bud Comstock as a possible upset winner in the race with Jean Heinrichs for alderman-at-large. He made a creditable showing with 690 votes but lost in every ward as Mrs. Heinrichs piled up a 1,093 vote total.

Bob Reeve had more than a six-to-one margin in his election to mayor over Paul Olson—1,421 to 231. In his home fifth ward he won 442 to 36. Frank Hamerlinck proved to be an easy winner in the race with Dr. Don Goodrich for the fifth ward alderman position vacated by Reeve in his quest for mayor. Hamerlinck had 365 votes to 173 for Goodrich, a former alderman. Milt Burstad withstood the challenge from former alderman Milan Borsheim 190 to 124 and Dale Wennberg was reelected unopposed in the third ward with 237 votes.

And in School District 564 incumbents Hank Hallstrom and Larry Belmont were also reelected without opposition.

Telling The Story Of The Livestock Industry

Following editorial was written by publisher Elmer L. Andersen in the Anoka County Union:

Recent publicity on "animal rights" leaves the impression that animals used in animal agriculture are mistreated and strong corrective action is needed. A number of Minnesota organizations representing the livestock industry of our state have joined forces to tell the story of Minnesota's livestock industry. It is a story of which all Minnesotans can be proud.

Anyone with a farm background knows that love of animals and respect for the land are deeply ingrained traditions in Minnesota farm families. With about three per cent of the population producing food for all the rest of us, new generations of people need to be aided in acquiring knowledge and appreciation of all farm enterprises.

Animal agriculture in Minnesota represents 20 per cent of our economy in production and processing. We rank among the top 10 states in the production of virtually every livestock and feed grain product, and at the very top in several. There is also a solid background of love for farming as a way of life, and a tradition of caring for soil, wildlife, animal health and comfort, modern farm practices of all kinds, as well as pride in the young people who grow up on the farms of this state—healthy, resourceful and with high moral and ethical standards. Family life is still strong on our farms.

Few if any states have stronger 4-H and Future Farmer organizations than does Minnesota. From an early age proper care of animals is taught as well as respect for the soil, water, wildlife and all the elements that make up rural life.

The Minnesota Forum for Animal Agriculture has produced a fascinating and informative booklet entitled "Minnesota Farmers Care." It is available for $2 from the office at 2469 University Avenue, St. Paul, MN 55114, phone (612) 645-7533. In colorful and factual style, the booklet moves from one segment of animal agriculture to another.

The booklet would be an excellent outline for a service club or any other organization program to help tell the story of the food producers of our state and the wonderful job they do. There is also an encouraging summary of the regulatory bodies that oversee the activity to keep all producers on a high level of operating standards.

Minnesota's animal agriculture industry is deserving of appreciation and support for the abundance of wholesome food regularly available to us.

To The Editor:

We would like to take this opportunity to say a big "thank-you" to the residents of your beautiful community.

Four of us were recently fortunate enough to be drawn for a moose hunting license and made a trip to your area. While in Thief River Falls we stayed at the Best Western Inn. We were treated grandly and really enjoyed our stay.

Our moose hunt took us north of Thief River Falls to the area near Viking. Again we received fantastic and friendly hospitality from the local residents.

Again, a big "thank-you" for a great and memorable trip made even greater by the people of your communities.

Sincerely,
Four Moose Hunters from Montevideo

To The Editor:

The casino issue has been discussed at length, but there are points yet to be discussed. Why has no one mentioned the fact that Mahnomen county has already experienced an increase in the demand on social services due to the casino there? Roseau county is already anticipating an increase in demand on their social services. Is it possible Thief River Falls city officials are not aware of this fact? Or are they ignoring it for the time being?

There has been no mention of the fact that selling land to the Indian tribe makes it part of the reservation and it is never returned. This should be a primary consideration. Selling a tract of land in the middle of a business district should be done with some caution. When the land is permanently removed from the city it should be a long thought-out decision.

The main argument in favor of this casino seems to be the great financial benefit it will have on our community. Specifics are hard to come by, though. The Indians will definitely benefit. The motels and a few eating places will probably see an increase in profits. There will be 200 to 300 part-time jobs created. At most I would estimate 800 people will see some benefit. The rest of us won't see the benefits but will bear the cost of increased need of social services, law enforcement and possibly as yet hidden costs. It does seem that the majority are asked to bear the burden for the profit of the few for the "good of the community."

The casino is seen as a quick fix to the financial problems we are having. Most people know a quick fix doesn't solve anything and will create more problems than it is meant to solve. If this community is to get back on its feet, it will take more than a casino. People are fed up with the shopping here and are taking their money elsewhere. There are many that would like to shop locally, but find it impossible to do.

This fall I was looking for the basics for school and could not find them in Thief River Falls. Others have had the same lack of success in meeting their shopping needs. Many people have wanted to buy a car here but found dealers unwilling to deal at all and have gone to other towns, saving themselves several thousands of dollars.

The same unwillingness to deal is found when trying to buy floor coverings. Hardware stores have told us an item isn't even available while their competition is selling it off the shelf. A grocery store in town has taken week-old chicken, re-labeled it and sold it for full price—an act that may be illegal and is certainly unethical. One store in town raises prices 30 per cent and then has a 25 per cent off sale.

Our problems will not be solved by opening a casino, but by businessmen realizing that the customer coming through their doors is not an interruption of a coffee break but their lifeblood and the lifeblood of this community. When will the businessmen realize that we, the consumers, are assets to their businesses, the greatest and most important assets they have, and treat us as such?

The main argument against the casino is a religious or moral one. I sincerely believe the casino would not be an issue at all if the fervor generated against the casino transferred into concern for souls. As far as I know Jesus did not try to stomp out sin, but lived His life and then gave it in death for the redemption of sinners.

Isn't the concern of the Christians misplaced? If the same enthusiasm and concern was directed toward prayer meetings and those who are lost there would be a revival in Thief River Falls that would leave the bars and proposed casino empty and the churches full—even on Wednesday nights! Jesus said to look unto the fields, for they are white unto harvest and we are continually looking to the sin, ignoring the souls who are aching for peace.

It is hard to know what to think about the proposed casino. It certainly will not do either what the supporters or opposition claim it will do. That leaves us in the dark with very little guidance. For such a serious—and irreversible—decision, that is a very dangerous place to be. We ought to consider carefully what we will do, about the casino and about our community.

Sincerely,
Lois E. Brown
Thief River Falls

Fire razes Newfolden school Thur.

The sheriff's dispatcher called the Newfolden volunteer fire department phones and firemen were on the scene by about 3:30 a.m. Later assistance was provided by fire departments in Viking, Middle River, Karlstad, Warren and Thief River Falls. Extent of the building affected by the fire and number of trucks pumping exhausted the available supply of water on the trucks and in the city's water tower by about 6 a.m.

Firemen pulled back about that time to allow the water supply to be replenished, admitting that the fire which had spread between the ceiling and roof of the building was impossible to extinguish.

Donna Mezeski, Holly's mother, said that at 4:15 a.m. the flames had broken through the roof and were towering high above the building. Mrs. Vernon Gunderson, whose husband is mayor of Newfolden and who lives near the west end of the school, said that after their fire phone rang shortly before 3:30 a.m. she could see flames at both the west and east ends of the school. By 5 a.m. most of the fire-fighting effort was directed at the east half of the building where the fire seemed most intense.

Cause of the fire has not yet been determined. Investigation began early Thursday morning by Dale Volstad, deputy state fire marshal from Clearbrook. He was assisted Thursday by Dick Brolsma, another deputy state fire marshal from Osage, and they were joined today by an investigator for the school district's insurance carrier.

Volstad said he expected the investigation to continue at least through the day today. He said the vault in the district offices was opened Thursday afternoon and that most of the records and other contents appeared to be in fairly good condition.

Mona Olson, a 1969 graduate of the school who has been employed by the district for the past 17 years, is the district's bookkeeper. She said that it appeared many items could be salvaged from the central office in addition to contents of the vault—including the name sign for her desk which had been given to her as a gift some years ago.

Olson said that the district is a member of the Region 1 Computer Consortium which handles the district's payroll and student academic records and that those records are apparently intact. All of the past records, minute books and other items stored in the vault were saved.

"We lost all our trophies," Olson said. "They were in a number of locations throughout the building and it seems that they are pretty well destroyed. Our Nordic mural in the hallway is all black and many of the pictures of high school graduating classes hung in the hallways are badly damaged. In the best shape are the older pictures which were hung in a hallway where the fire didn't seem to have been as hot."

A temporary office for Supt. Busch, principal Ron Paggen, payroll clerk Joan Lee and Olson has been arranged at the elementary school.

The Marshall County Central school was built in 1969, occupied following Christmas vacation of the 1969-70 school year and graduated its first class in the spring of 1970, Supt. Busch said. Marshall County Central was created by a consolidation of the Newfolden, Viking and Holt school districts and still operates an elementary school at Viking.

Busch said the building project in 1969 was for about $1.2 million. He estimated replacement cost at the present time in excess of $5 million.

"We have been paying the extra premiums to cover replacement cost for many years," Supt. Busch said regarding the district's insurance program, "and we should be in good condition from an insurance standpoint—probably to the extent of about $7 million in replacement costs."

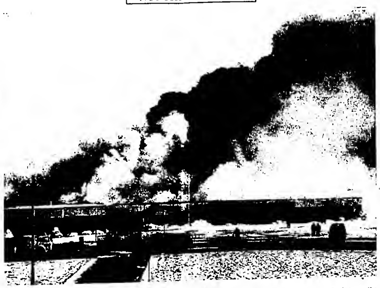
The school board met Thursday morning to make several immediate decisions involving the school operation and met at 7:30 p.m. to hear from administrators and faculty regarding recommendations for the immediate future. Principal Paggen had met in the late morning with a number of faculty members to obtain their input.

The 202 students in grades seven through 12 who had attended classes in the high school are expected to be grouped primarily in two-year grade classes of 7-8, 9-10 and 11-12 in the temporary church and community center facilities. There will be some exchange of students between buildings for some classes and changes made in the daily schedule to allow for that movement, Supt. Busch said. Nearly 90 per cent of the school district's students are transported to school in the district on a daily basis.

The superintendent said he has received many offers from other schools in the area to provide books and other available materials to assist in getting classes back in operation. High school students who had textbooks home with them have been asked to send them with younger brothers or sisters or to bring them to the elementary school so that a count can be made of what books are available.

He also said that he is checking on the district's insurance coverage regarding personal items which students had in the school at the time of the fire, but expects that homeowners coverages carried by individual families are more likely to apply. Information on that question will be made available later, he said.

At its meeting Thursday evening the board of education authorized the administration to hire a consulting engineer to inspect the high school building and prepare a report regarding structural damage to some areas which appeared to have less fire damage, including the gymnasium. Principal Paggen was also authorized to arrange for use of the community resources (churches and community center) for school classes.



School District 441 has about 35 faculty members and a total staff of 75 people. Supt. Busch commended the high school staff for its cooperation in planning and positive attitude toward use of temporary facilities in the community. He said that Paggen has done an outstanding job in involving faculty and working with community representatives.

Supt. Busch and fire chief Earl Eveland also expressed their appreciation to head cook Pat Kjensrud and other food service workers and volunteers who came to school in the early morning, made coffee and served coffee and rolls to firemen and also provided a lunch for firefighters later in the morning.

Eveland also extended thanks from the Newfolden fire department to the other departments which responded to the call for assistance and to Sethre's Hartz, Stan's Grocery and Doug Havens who provided food make available to firemen in the elementary school cafeteria.

An informal discussion session for students was called by community clergy at Bethlehem Lutheran church Thursday evening to answer some of their questions and serve as a support meeting.

The school district plans to conduct a daily general assembly at the elementary school gymnasium for high school students once classes get underway next week.

Smoke and steam billowed from Marshall County Central high school in Newfolden when this photo was taken shortly after dawn on Thursday. Firemen had battled the blaze since about 3:30 a.m. but had to pull back in their efforts when the water supply was exhausted and it was realized the fire between the ceiling and roof throughout the structure could not be extinguished. Firemen continued to work on hot spots throughout the day and into the night Thursday.

Girls who were given participation certificates included eighth grader Jennifer Flynn and seventh graders Erika Altepeter, Rebecca Kenner, Kim Stenseth and Lisa Vettleson.

Banquet recognition was also given to the winners in the Prowlers' annual Super Teams competition, which includes conditioning/point-accumulating activities like hill relay, soccer, volleyball, floor hockey and basketball.

Davis was captain of the first place Super Teams squad, which also included Daniels, Swanson, Thornton, Vettleson, Flynn, Engevik and Jon Hendrickson.

Kruta was captain of the second place team, which also included Bjerknes, Bugge, Dee, Altepeter, Lyman and Cedergren.

Returning to the line-up for post-season play, Paggen joined Koivisto to form a third place North Sub-Section 8AA doubles team that advanced to the Section 8AA tournament.

"A lot of girls got to play varsity tennis this year," noted Forney. "We would have been a little more competitive if we would have been healthy all year, but the girls we had always tried hard and always gave it their best effort."

Absence of Paggen and Dehnert resulted in the younger Prowlers moving up in the line-up, where they faced stronger foes as part of a competitive schedule that included the top Class AA and Class A schools in northwestern Minnesota, plus several highly-regarded Twin Cities area teams.

"All the girls had to move up," acknowledged Forney, "but the experience is great, and hopefully it will pay off down the line."

This is the second state playoff appearance for the Blue Devils, who were unbeaten Section 8 champions in 1989 when they posted a 42-20 win at Verndale in the quarterfinals, but lost a 21-6 semifinal decision to AlBrook in freezing weather at Saginaw. AlBrook wound up losing to St. Clair 47-12 in the Prep Bowl Nine-Man finals that year.

Game 3 and played the Nordics to a 7-7 tie in Game 4 before losing ground.

The Nordics' quarterfinal win over Hallock-Kennedy was a battle, reported Jorgenson. "Every point was hard-earned," he said. "There were lots of long volleys – and we were fortunate enough to score some points off them."

A little nervous at the start, the Nordics got a boost, explained Jorgenson, when Shannon Magner came up with some early blocks to key a strong defensively effort.

Kim Davidson finished with 19 kill spikes against the Wolfpack, while Stacy Anderson had 10 and Jill Fosholm contributed 16 ace set assists.

Skybergs ask support

Conrad and Marlis Skyberg of Newfolden have asked for support from people of the area to make a dream of their eight-year-old grandson—Jared Kelly Digby of Dallas, TX—come true.

Jared has a terminal rare genetic disease called Ataxia-Telangiectasia (A-T) which is robbing him of the ability to control his muscles and will eventually leave him wheelchair-bound. A-T affects his immune system, resulting in respiratory problems, and there is no treatment or cure for this multi-symptom disease.

When asked what he wanted for his ninth birthday, he said, "I'd settle for a birthday card.....and a chance to walk and run for a few minutes!"

Grandparents Conrad and Marlis are asking that anyone send a birthday card to Jared Digby with a donation of nine cents (or any donation) to the A-T Research Fund, Genetics Division, CB #7250 Biological Sciences Research Center, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Chapel Hill, NC 27599-7250.

Donations will be used for A-T research and birthday cards will be counted for the Guinness World Book of Records and forwarded to Jared.

Since each state averages only a few children with the disease, A-T is not considered a "priority disease" by the Muscular Dystrophy association, United Way or Children's Miracle Network and is therefore not a "covered disease."

Thief River Falls cross country banquet...

Awards go to runners

Seniors Joel Davis and Stephanie Vigen were named the Prowlers' most valuable runners during the 1991 Thief River Falls cross country banquet held Thursday in the Lincoln High School cafeteria.

Most improved honors went to sophomore Jon Hendrickson and eighth grader Leah Helgenset, while coaches awards were presented to sophomore Travis Torblaa and senior Jodi Kruta.

Helgenset, who ran most of the 1991 season at the junior high level before moving up to the varsity, where she earned a state meet berth, was also named Thief River Falls top junior high runner for the girls. Nick Dee, another eighth grader, won similar honors for the boys.

Davis and junior Jim Olson served as captains of the Thief River Falls boys this year. Vigen and Kruta served as captains of the Thief River Falls girls. Thief River Falls head coach Lynn Dyer will not name his 1992 captains until next fall.

The lone senior on the boys' roster, Davis headed a list of letter winners that also included juniors Guy Gustafson, Hans Helgenset and Olson; sophomores Tyler Anderson, Hendrickson and Torblaa; plus freshmen Brad Daniels and Stephen Lyman.

Boys presented with participation certificates included freshman Danny Bjerknes; eighth graders Kyle Cedergren and Dee; seventh graders Josh Engevik, Ryan Hendrickson and Stefan Ronchetti; along with sixth grader Seth Martell.

Vigen and Kruta were the only seniors running for the Thief River Falls girls this year. They were joined as letter winners by junior Allison Votava; sophomores April Klinker and Heather Thornton; freshmen Jessica Bugge and Nichole Torblaa; plus eighth graders Angela Klinker, Lisa Swanson and

Blue Devils, AlBrook will meet Friday

Section 8 champion Grygla-Goodridge will meet Section 7 winner AlBrook Friday at 4:30 p.m. in the first round quarterfinals of the 1991 Nine-Man state high school football playoffs at the Metrodame in Minneapolis.

Goodridge-Grygla defeated Stephen 20-7 Monday in the Section 8 finals in 13-degree temperature at Grygla, while AlBrook beat Cherry 20-12 Wednesday in the Sectioo 7 championship game at the Metrodome.

After beating the Tigers, the Blue Devils were ready to head east this weekend to play their state quarterfinal game at the site of the Section 7 champion. But because of the early-season winter-like weather that hit the entire state, the Minnesota State High School League announced that all MSHSL state playoff games would be played inside the Metrodome.

Using the Metrodome necessitated rearranging the MSHSL post-season schedule. Quarterfinals in all five classes – AA, A, B, C and Nine-Man – will be played Nov. 13-15. Semifinals will be played Nov. 22-23 and the Prep Bowl finals will be held Friday, Nov. 29.

Tho 4:30 p.m. Grygla-Goodridge vs. AlBrook match-up will close out the Nov. 15 Nine-Man quarterfinals that will also include Silver Lake vs. Chokio-Alberta at 9 a.m., St. Clair vs. Wheaton at 11:30 a.m. and Cromwell vs. Win-E-Mac at 2 p.m.

Nine-Man semifinals will both have 9:30 a.m. kickoffs, with St. Clair or Wheaton meeting Silver Lake or Chokio-Alberta Friday, Nov. 22, while Cromwell or Wine-E-Mac takes on Grygla-Goodridge or AlBrook Saturday, Nov. 23.

Quarterfinal match-ups in other classes holding special interest for northwestern Minnesota football fans include Detroit Lakes vs. Hutchinson at 2 p.m. Wednesday in Class A and Mahnomen vs. Warren at 6 p.m. Saturday in Class C.

The 1991 Prep Bowl schedule Friday, Nov. 29, starts with the finals in Nine-Man at 9:30 a.m., followed by Class C at 12-noon, Class B at 2:30 p.m., Cass A at 5 p.m. and Class AA at 7:30.

The eight quarterfinalists in Nine-May are a combined 77-6 for the year. First-round foes Silver Lake and Chokio-Alberta are both 11-0. AlBrook joins them in the unbeaten

Special awards for the 1991 high school tennis season for the Thief River Falls girls went to, left to right, Kami Twomey, hardest worker; Jennifer Duncan, most improved; and Tarik Koivisto, most valuable. The awards were presented Tuesday.

TRF girls earn tennis awards

Senior Tarik Koivisto was named the most valuable player on the 1991 Thief River Falls girls high school tennis team as the Prowlers put the finishing touches on their fall season during an awards breakfast Tuesday.

Sophomore Jennifer Duncan was named Thief River Falls' most improved player and eighth grader Kami Twomey was selected as the Prowlers' hardest worker.

Junior Jennifer Paggen was voted to serve as Thief River Falls captain in 1992, a position held by a pair of seniors this fall – Sara Tweet and Koivisto.

Amy Padilla, Koivisto and Tweet were the only seniors on this year's squad, and Paggen was the lone junior. They headed a list of 14 letter winners that also included sophomores Carly Dee, Jamie Dehnert, Jennifer Nicholson, Kim Rupprecht and Duncan; freshman Jamie Premstad; eighth graders Shari Evenson, Anne Padilla and Twomey; plus seventh grader Tiffany Brouse.

Participation certificates went to sophomores Kelly Gould, Kari Krankkala, Missy Lampe, Kristen Lane, Danita Miller, Lydia Morken and Laura Toren; eighth graders Bobbi Dahlstrom, Kristine Goddard, Angeline Ounstad, Miranda Johnson, Kate Nordin, Lisa Ostby, Carisa Pederson, Becky Phillips and Andrea Vigen; seventh graders Megan Browning, Pauline Cullen, Kate Ihle, Heidi Johnson, Kelly Natvik, Elizabeth Odette, Laura Steiger and Teresa Swanson; along with sixth graders Elizabeth Goddard, Jessica Krankkala and Eva Young.

Head coach Jay Forney worked with assistant coaches Rick Engelstad and Kim Maldment this fall.

The Prowlers finished with a 4-8 dual meet record this fall, ending with a 5-2 first round North Sub-Section 8AA tournament loss to Moorhead. They also participated in the Thief River Falls Sports Booster Invitational, the Lake Hubert Invitational, Brainerd Invitational and the Northwest Quadrangular.

Thief River Falls played much of the second half of the year without Paggen and Dehnert because of illness. Paggen played No. 1 and Dehnert was also among the team's top four singles players.

Koivisto, who was teamed with Tweet at No. 1 doubles, inherited No. 1 singles in Paggen's absence.

RLCC is beaten in quarterfinals

Red Lake County Central saw its 1991 high school volleyball season come to an end Thursday with a 3-2 Section 8A Sub-Section 3 quarterfinal loss at the hands of Crookston in Warren.

The No. 5-seeded Pirates outlasted the No. 4-seeded Mustangs 7-15, 15-10, 15-4, 12-15, 15-10, finishing a 15-9 season for the first-year Oklee-Plummer cooperative.

"It was a tough one," said Red Lake County Central coach Brad Borene. "Crookston really played well, and we didn't play that badly, either. The kids worked hard; it just wasn't there for us."

A finishing kick won it for the Pirates, who jumped out to a 4-0 lead in Game 5, then watched the Mustangs rally within 11-10 before pulling away down the stretch.

"I thought we were in pretty good shape going into the fifth game, but we just couldn't quite get it done," said Borene.

Jenny Walter had a big night statistically for the Mustangs with 29 kills, 15 last-touch points and 21-for-22 serving. Dawn Bachand came up with 20 kills, 15 last-touch points and 21-for-23 serving. Jill Radniecki had 15 blocks and six last-touch points, while Cheryl Greenwald directed the 5-1 Red Lake County Central offense with her sharp sets, pointed out Borene.

No. 1-seeded Valley North swept No. 8 Red Lake Falls 15-1, 15-5, 16-14 in the other Thursday night quarterfinal match at Warren. In Crookston, No. 2-seeded East Grand Forks Sacred Heart beat No. 7 Warren 15-0, 15-8, 15-8 and No. 3-seeded Climax stopped No. 6 East Grand Forks 15-2, 15-13, 15-7.

Semifinals at the University of Minnesota-Crookston tonight (Friday) get underway at 6 p.m. with Valley North playing Crookston, followed by Sacred Heart vs. Climax.

Saturday matinee finals at UMC start with the third place match at 1 p.m.

NCC hosts Sub-Section 4 matches

Semifinals and finals of the 1991 Section 8A Sub-Section 4 high school volleyball tournament were delayed a day and switched from Marshall County Central to the Northland Community College gym in Thief River Falls following the early-morning fire Thursday that destroyed the Newfolden school.

Semifinals were originally scheduled to be played Thursday, with the finals planned tonight (Friday) at Marshall County Central. The revised schedule called for semifinals tonight and finals Saturday at Northland.

Semifinals featured Stephen vs. Warroad at 6:30 p.m. and Roseau vs. Marshall County Central at 8.

Saturday's schedule includes the third place match at 6:30 p.m. and championship match at 8.

Section 8A Sub-Section 4 play started Nov. 1 and included quarterfinal matches Monday at both Marshall County Central and Warroad.

Roseau was the pre-tournament favorite, presenting the displaced Nordies with a major semifinal challenge.

Marshall County Central improved its overall record to 14-10 by beating Middle River 15-2, 15-2, 13-15, 17-15 in first round play, then sweeping Hallock-Kennedy 15-12, 15-4, 15-12 in the quarterfinals.

"We came out real strong the first two games against Middle River," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Mark Jorgenson.

Mary Rokke came off the bench to collect 15 service points against the Skippers, who came back to win

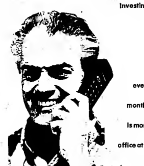
Two Prowlers ready for rescheduled state meet

Arrowhead Resort near Alexandria will be the new site for the rescheduled 1991 Minnesota state high school cross country meet Saturday.

The event was originally scheduled to be held Nov. 2 on the University of Minnesota golf course in St. Paul, but was postponed because of heavy snow fall statewide.

Thief River Falls' Joel Davis and Leah Helgenset are scheduled to compete in the state meet after top-five finishes at the Section 8AA races Oct. 24 in Little Falls.



"We're just glad to have the meet," said Thief River Falls coach Lynn Dyer, who said there was concern that Minnesota State High School League officials might not be able to find a suitable site for the event because of all the snow.

Race schedule for the state meet includes the Class AA boys at 11:30 a.m., Class AA girls at 12:45 p.m., Class A boys at 2 p.m. and Class A girls at 3:15 p.m.

Davis is a senior making his second straight state cross country meet appearance. Helgenset is an eighth grader who will be appearing in the state meet for the first time.

Gary Rux intends to be "dealt four aces"

TRF resident still on waiting list for necessary heart transplant

(Editor's Note: The following letter was received this morning from Gary Rux of Thief River Falls. It is being published in this form rather than in the "Public Opinion" column due to the widespread community interest in his situation.)

To The Community of Thief River Falls and Neighboring Communities:

I am writing this thank-you letter on Nov. 5, 1991, which is the first anniversary of having been told that I need a heart transplant. I am now in Minneapolis where I was just released from Abbott-Northwestern hospital following implantation of a cardiac pacemaker in my chest. All things considered, I am doing quite well.

This is also the anniversary of when the wheels started in motion for the Gary Rux Heart Transplant Fund. A few caring individuals decided to organize some fund-raising events and believed in their hearts that this community would respond. They were right! In less than one month they organized many events which, in total, raised over $40,000.

One of the final events was a game day hosted by the Best Western with raffle drawings to follow at the Eagles club. The raffle items included a Polaris Trail Boss 4-wheeler and an Arctic Cat Lynx snowmobile. The date was March 9, 1990, and I was to have the privilege of making the drawings.

On that day I attended the lunch and game day at the Best Western and went home for a rest before going to the Eagles for the raffle drawings. As it turned out, I packed my bags and checked into Northwestern Medical Center at 9 p.m.

I had known all day that I was experiencing congestive heart failure (fluid build-up in the lungs), but I thought I could "hang in there" until after the drawings. Instead, I was being admitted to the hospital about the time my wife, Shirley, made the drawings. She had wanted to accompany me to the hospital but I begged her to take my place at the Eagles. I spent the next week in the hospital and since that time have been hospitalized on three additional occasions.

It has been my intention to send thank-your cards to all of you who helped so much with the fund-raising. This includes the organizers, the Thief River Falls Eagles, a very special 4-H club, the St. Hilaire Lions club, various church and service organizations and the hundreds of individuals who contributed in one way or another. My plan was to personally write a note to each of you to thank you and to tell you of the good news following my transplant.

The post-transplant recovery period involves spending about two months in Minneapolis, and I figured by writing to each of you and thinking about all my loving and caring friends in the community I might avoid going "nuts" in the big city. Well, it's one year later and that is still my plan. I simply have not yet had the opportunity to receive my new "carburetor."

The financial cost of a transplant including both pre- and post-transplant care is astronomical. I wish to thank all of you, once again, on behalf of my wife Shirley, my daughter Tari, and my son T.J. (and even my poodle Buffy) for the love you have shown.

A special thank-you goes out to the organizers (the three "Rs," and you know who you are), and especially to God for allowing me to survive this past year and to have the strength to look forward to a second "Gift of Life." Without God, family, friends and this community, I know I would not be here to write this letter.

Finally, I have spent the last two evenings here in Minneapolis watching Kenny Rogers in "The Gambler Returns (The Luck of the Draw)," and it has inspired me to make a prediction:

One year from today I plan to update you once again. We all know you must play the hand you are dealt and I intend to tell you about an extraordinary hand—a once in a lifetime hand—four aces! And we all know that if your are holding four aces, one of them is bound to be the Ace of Hearts.

Thank-you,
Gary Rux

A total of 94 ballots were cast in the election and incumbent mayor Larry Kruse received 80 votes to be reelected without opposition. Other members of the council who are currently serving are Lloyd Bergeron and Vickie Sebenaler.

Police get calls about robbery

Law enforcement center in Thief River Falls has received a number of calls regarding the alleged robbery of a woman in a parking lot near Norwest Bank.

A spokesperson for the center emphasized that the incident was reported to have taken place in a lot near the bank and not in the bank itself. The robbery was reported five days after it was said to have happened.

who had been appointed to the unexpired term of Don Liden but chose to run for the four-year term where J. J. Womack's term expires, won by 403 votes over Arden (Bud) Comstock—1,093 to 690.

Mrs. Heinrichs carried 13 of the city's 15 precincts, losing only 48-45 in Precinct 1B and 44-40 in Precinct 4B.

In Ward 1 Milton Burstad withstood the challenge of former alderman Milan Borsheim 190 to 124, getting most of his winning margin in Precinct 1A where he won 100 to 32. Borsheim won in Precinct 1B by 49 to 46 and Burstad carried Precinct 1C 44 to 43.

In Ward 3, where incumbent Dale Wennberg was unopposed as alderman, 262 voters went to the polls and 237 gave him their vote.

School District 564 Incumbents Reelected

Almost lost in the general election this year was the School District 564 election where only incumbents Larry Belmont and Hank Hallstrom were on the ballot. Hallstrom received 1,425 votes and Belmont had 1,407 with Belmont receiving 1,310 and Hallstrom receiving 1,299 in Thief River Falls.

Because St. Hilaire also had a city election the voter turn-out was good in that community. Hallstrom picked up 93 votes in his home community while Belmont received 63.

The only other polling place for the remainder of the school district was at Northrop elementary school.

Election judges there for the 13 hours between 7 a.m. and 8 p.m. served an aversge of less than three voters an hour as Belmont received 34 votes and Hallstrom 33.

School District 564 is one of only a few school districts in the state to hold its election concurrent with the general election.

Middle River junior high sets musical

Middle River junior high school drama department will present the musical fantasy "The Pale Pink Dragon" by Phyllis McCallum on Saturday and Sunday, November 9 and 10, at 7:30 p.m. in the Middle River high school gymnasium. Rehearsals have begun under the direction Mrs. KayDell Super assisted by KayeLyn Wagner.

This musical is a fairy tale set in the kingdom of Caladar. The Kingdom is in a uproar-Princess Pinkie (Heather Anderson) has disappeared, a dragon lurks in the forest, and it is presumed that he has devoured the princess.

Galant Prince Hal (Sheldon Ruud), his bumbling squire (Jed Geer), the King (Joe Melby), the pompous chamberlain (Loren Seramstad), and Pinkies fierce white cat (Eric Melby), set out to destroy the dragon. The dragon, however, turns out to be pale pink and lovely and Has has second thoughts. The spell is broken, and everyone lives happily ever after.

But what really happened to Pinkie? Find out the answer to that question by entering the make believe world of "The Pale Ping Dragon."

Mrs. Super said the musical is "filled with action, romance, suspense-and just a dash of stupidity!"

Hopes for rebuilt Newfolden school dim

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Legislators joined residents, teachers and school board members of Newfolden Thursday in condemning Commissioner of Education, Gene Mammenga's response to the recent fire in Newfolden, which destroyed the high school last week.

Norm Chaffee, planner, district support services, delivered a message Mammenga to the school board of Newfolden Thursday afternoon in which he hints that Newfolden will not be allowed to rebuild. Chaffee told the board that the message did not prevent them from building, but may prevent them from building what they want to build. "He (the commissioner) is very serious about what is in the letter," Chaffee said.

Gene Busch, superintendent of the school in Newfolden, said he finds it ironic that the commissioner of education chose the first day students were able to return to classes and the first day people of the community were able to have a smile on their faces to deliver such a message. Busch said he is upset at the lack of sensitivity of the state to students, teachers, parents and the community.

Chaffee denied that the letter prevents the school from re-building, but Senator LeRoy Stumpf said Mammenga indicated to him that rebuilding was not an option despite the fact that the school was insured and does not impose a financial burden on the state.

Sen. Stumpf, and Representatives Jim Tunheim and Wally Sparby, called Mammenga's actions premature and said he had overstepped his bounds of authority. They did not see any reason why the school could not re-build.

> "He (the commissioner) is very serious obout what is in the letter," — Norm Choffee

In his letter to the superintendent and school board members of Independent School District 441, Mammenga states that he established his position on a number of issues from a Management Assistance Report that was conducted in October, 1991. The report is critical of the operation of the school and states: the Newfolden School District currently has three attendance centers which makes for inefficient operation; the elementary facilities, especially in Newfolden, are old, inadequate and need to have extensive renovation; and, the financial condition of the school district has deteriorated due to a steady decline in enrollment that was exacerbated in 1991 because of a large than expected enrollment decline attending the Newfolden schools. Mammenga also states that it is his understanding that cooperative relationships are being pursued with area community schools.

Mammenga is also using a law passed by the state legislature calling for schools in the state to cooperate and consolidate. Rep. Tunheim and Sparby said closing of the school was not the intent of the law. Rep. Tunheim said the situation may result in legislation to over-

Nils Hasselmo, president of the University of Minnesota, addressed a group of educators and community leaders at Northland Community college in Thief River Falls Thursday noon. He was visiting in the area to obtain a better personal perspective of higher education resources and needs in this area of the state.

'U'M President Hasselmo at NCC Thursday

University of Minnesota president Nils Hasselmo discussed the difficulties of "how do we do more, how do we do better, with less resources" Thursday at a noon meeting held at Northland Community college in Thief River Falls.

Specifically addressed was the University of Minnesota campus at Crookston and the University of Minnesota extension service.

Dr. Hasselmo described the Crookston campus as a "microcosm" which he said he and the university's board of regents considered to be an important presence in the university system. He said UMC was quite different in a number of ways from the university branch at Waseca which the board voted to close.

Areas of potential espansion for UMC were cited as agriculture, natural resources, small business and hospitality. In these areas especially, he said, there is potential for going to a three-plus-one program whereby students could take three years of study at the Crookston campus and the fourth elsewhere, particularly at the main campuses in St. Paul or Minneapolis.

Dr. Hasselmo said he is a strong supporter of the estension service and called cuts in that area "worrisome." The said the cuts were due to withdrawal of federal support and noted that $1.5 million bad been allocated by the university toward adjusting for that loss.

"I have often said," the president stated, "that if we didn't have the extension service we would have to invent it. It is an important means for transfer of knowledge throughout Minnesota."

Interactive television was also cited as having great potential in higher education in this area, and support was also given for continuation of the agricultural espeniment stations, such as the one located at Crookston.

Using the analogy of a fruit tree, Dr. Hasselmo said he hoped it would be possible to prune the university to produce more and better fruit without cutting so deep that the tree is damaged.

"I hope we can continue to work with the technical colleges and community colleges to produce some pretty good fruit," he said.

Warren man shares thoughts after court case

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Jurors in a case against a Warren farmer found him not guilty of criminal sexual abuse.

A spokesperson for the district court in Hennepin county where the case was tried said jurors in a criminal sexual conduct case against Donovan Loeslie of Warren found him not guilty on counts one and two. The spokesperson said the jury returned the verdict at about 6 p.m. November 8. The trial against Donovan Loeslie began on November 4.

Loeslie was charged with two counts of criminal sexual conduct involving a juvenile boy. Loeslie consistently denied the charges against him which were first filed on August 27 in a Norman county district court. The case was later moved to Hennepin county because that's where the incident was alleged to have taken place.

In one sense Loeslie said he was happy about the outcome but also sad. Loeslie commented Thursday, November 14, that he's not against child protection laws, but the juvenile boy remains a victim because of the industry that has sprung up around child protection. Because the system remains somewhat unaccountable for their actions, the juvenile boy who was not a victim of sexual abuse became a victim and a pawn of the system that told him he was. It's a part of the law which remains new and needs to be addressed, Loeslie said. He said he's just happy the jury system worked.

Despite the trauma to him and his family, Loeslie believes the boy is innocent. "The boy's innocent by me," Loeslie said.

Loeslie said Thursday that he would bo available to speak to civic groups about the need for a system that is more accountable. He's not willing to speak against child protection laws.

Through his attorney, Loeslie issue the following press statement last week after the results of the trial became known. The following is a complete copy of the statement:

"A Hennepin County jury voted Friday that Donovan Loeslie, 53, Warren farmer, was not guilty of sexually abusing his grandson.

"The complaint, which was filed in September 1991, alleged that Mr. Loeslie had committed acts of sexual abuse in October 1986. The case went to the jury about 6:30 p.m. Thursday and the jury deliberated two hours Thursday and from 9 a.m. Friday until the verdict was read about 5 p.m.

> He's not willing to speok ogoinst child protection lows — Don Loeslie.

"The grandchild, his mother, his therapist and a BCA agent all testified at the trial in support of the state's case. The defense called Dr. Sharon Satterfield and Mr. Loeslie.

"Dr. Satterfield testified that the facts of the case suggested that the child had been "coached" into giving his story of abuse. The testimony established that the child had been evaluated in 1987 by a specialist in Crookston, who determined the child had not been abused. The child's mother, Lynn Dauner, did not tell the BCA agent nor the psychologist selected by the state to interview the child about the 1987 evaluation, when she brought the child with her complaint in November 1990.

'91 Autumn Musicale at Northland Monday

Fourth annual Autumn Musicale featuring the Northland Area High School Honor Band and the Northland community band will be presented Monday, November 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the fine arts auditorium at Northland.

Also featured will be Paul Brodie of Toronto, Ont., Canada, concert saxophonist who will be clinician for the high school honor band during the day's rehearsal Monday. Director Les Torgerson, music instructor at Northland, also rehearsed the band Thursday at a Northland practice session.

Tickets are available to the public at $3 for adults and $2 for students and will be available in advance from Kezar Music store of the Faculty C office at Northland. Tickets for remaining seats, if any, will be sold at Northland Monday evening but advance purchase is recommended.

Torgerson said he has been pleased with the willingness of outstanding clinicians to come to Thief River Falls for the Musicale sessions. They have included Miles Johnson, director of the St. Olaf college band; Dr. Frank Benenscutto, director of the University of Minnesota band; and Bob Baca, director of jazz studies at the University of Wisconsin at Eau Claire.

"I have also been pleased with the growth of participation by area schools and the cooperation of a number of entities in making the Musicale a rewarding experience for participants as well as an entertaining one for the audience," Torgerson added.

"The number of participating schools has grown from four or five four years ago to 15 this year. Northland Community College Foundation sponsors a banquet prior to the concert Monday for honor band members and their directors and funding assistance for the Musicale this year is provided by the Northwest Regional Development commission and by Selmer Music company."

NCC names Haviland provost

Dr. James Haviland and Susan Minnick were given permanent appointments as Provost and Vice Provost of Northland Community College today.

"The appointments were announced by Sally Ihne, President of the Clearwater Community College Region, and Dr. Gerald W. Christenson, chancellor of the Minnesota Community College system during a news conference at the school.

The announcements followed Thursday's action by the Minnesota Board for Community Colleges in approving Ihne as permanent president of the region. All three administrators had been holding their current posts on an acting basis.

"I am delighted to join with President Ihne in making the announcement that Dr. Jim Haviland and Sue Minnick are now the permanent Provost and Vice Provost, respectively, of Northland Community College. They have performed extremely well and have brought excellent leadership to the college. The high regard in which they are held by the staff and by the community reflects well on our entire Minnesota Community College system. We look forward to their continued leadership and to a bright future for this college," said Christenson.

Haviland has served as interim provost for the past 17 months following the resignation of Dr. Allen Nichols in July of 1990. Prior to that, Haviland served as vice provost of Northland for three and one-half years. Susan Minnick was named acting vice provost on the campus in October of 1990.

"I am impressed with the organizational ability that both Jim and Sue bring to these positions. I admire the teamwork they have been able to establish at Northland. They relate well with faculty, staff and students, as well as the community. I've enjoyed working with them the past year and look for ward to continuing our working relationship," said Ihne.

"We are very excited about the permanent appointment of the president, provost and vice provost for Clearwater and Northland Community Colleges, said Tom Kays, Northland's advisory board president. "We feel that the permanency of these positions will add to the longevity and credibility of the institution," he added. Kays also indicated that he considered it a privilege to forward to the Chancellor results of the Northland Faculty Association resolution supporting the permanent appointment of the present acting administration

A Few Thoughts on Education For American Education Week

National observances come and go with a certain amount of fanfare and generally little real substance, but American Education Week is rightly becoming a more significant observance with each passing year. Importance of education —real education which means teaching and learning skills that lead to contributing value in the workplace and society—can not be overemphasized in today's America.

Local recognition of that importance will be shown Thursday morning, November 21, when American Legion Post 117 and the Chamber of Commerce sponsor a breakfast for educators at 7 a.m. at the American Legion club rooms. Joining in participation are the Legion auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Thief River Falls Education association.

The breakfast not only is an expression of appreciation for the efforts of the community's educators, it is a public recognition of the vital role which educators are expected to fill in preparing the community's children for the future.

We are sure it is difficult for people in the teaching profession to maintain a focus on that lofty ideal when a flu-stricken youngster is spreading his breakfast on the floor or similar realities of life—including the teacher's own health or family difficulties—detract from concentration. It is also difficult to find among the day-to-day preparation of lesson plans, listening to moaning about upcoming tests, correcting of papers, dodging students in hallways and mediating disputes some relevance to the future security of America.

Teachers must guard against the temptation and even the tendency to be comfortable in repetition and secure in the status quo. Teaching must also be a constant learning process, combined with an eagerness to pass along that learning to those being taught. It takes an occasional reminder, like American Education Week, to keep everyone on track and to show that there is a public interest in and concern for good teachers and good teaching.

And permit us to digress a bit and be somewhat provincial in an area educational view. We are disturbed by the position expressed by the State Department of Education that School District 441 should not be allowed to rebuild Marshall County Central high school. Fire which destroyed the school November 7 was a disaster for the community. Using that disaster to deprive the Newfolden community of its school seems to be unbelievably insensitive, callous and cruel.

Yes, we recognize that the department of education funnels lifeblood money to the school districts of the state and that it is necessary to have some form of order to the educational system of the state. But it is important to remember that the source of that money is the people of the state and that people closest to the situation frequently have the best perspective of serving needs.

It is one thing for people in a community to determine on their own the viability of their school situation and select the option that seems best for them. It is quite another to lose a viable school which is only a payment or two from being paid for and then be told that you can not replace it with insurance funds from a policy on which you have paid healthy premiums for many years. In our opinion, that position is more one of interference than direction.

We encourage everyone in our area to support their schools in whatever way they can—during Education Week and throughout the year.

To Participate As Citizens

Following commentary on the 13th, 14th and 15th Amendments to the U.S. Constitution is from The Constitution: The Words We Live By, published as a supplement to Publishers' Auxiliary:

The Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments, called the "Civil War Amendments," were designed not only to abolish slavery but also to allow former slaves to participate as citizens in a country in which "liberty and justice for all" had been denied.

Although the Framers of the Constitution were unable in 1787 to resolve the question of slavery, one step toward eradication was taken when the Northwest Ordinance of 1787 banned slavery in much of the western territories. Officially Congress ended the slave trade in 1808 (the earliest date allowed), but the institution of slavery remained.

The Supreme Court became involved in 1857 when Chief Justice Roger Taney ruled that Dred Scott, a slave who had sued for his freedom on the grounds that he had lived in a free state, was not a citizen, "....with rights which white men were bound to respect." Taney added that since a slave was property, slavery could not be banned in the territories.

From the earliest days of the country, anti-slavery societies had been active. In 1833, the American Anti-Slavery Society was founded by white and black abolitionists, and its membership grew to 250,000 in 15 states by 1840.

When Abraham Lincoln was elected on an anti-slavery platform in 1860, the South seceded, and the Civil War began. In 1863 Lincoln issued the Emancipation Proclamation, freeing slaves "within any state or designated part of a state" still in rebellion. A year later, in 1864, Congress passed the Thirteenth Amendment, which declared that "neither slavery nor involuntary servitude....shall exist within the United States..."

Freeing the slaves was one thing. Recognizing their equality and incorporating them into the fabric of national life was another.

When the Fourteenth Amendment was passed in 1868, it had two primary purposes. The first goal was to deprive the states of the ability to deny equal protection of the law to citizens; and, the second objective was to establish in the defeated South governments loyal to the Union.

Since neither the Thirteenth nor Fourteenth Amendment directly addressed the issue of voting rights, the Fifteenth Amendment was proposed and ratified in 1870. It declared that "the right to vote shall not be denied or abridged...on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude." The amendment did not mention sex, and women had to fight a separate battle to win the vote.

Attempts to limit the impact of the Fifteenth Amendment became rampant in both the North and the South. Rhode Island required foreign-born citizens to be property owners in order to vote. Massachusetts instituted a literacy test, and California simply excluded Chinese from voter rolls. In the South voter discrimination included "grandfather clauses," literacy tests, and poll taxes, as well as physical intimidation. Over time these devices were abolished by Constitutional amendments, acts of Congress and Supreme Court decisions.

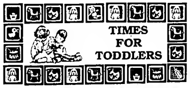
Ag Activities Day Dec. 6 at Crookston

Ag Activities Day, sponsored by the agriculture division of the University of Minnesota, Crookston (UMC), is scheduled for Friday, December 6. All members of 4-H clubs, high school agriculture departments, and FFA chapters from Minnesota and eastern North Dakota are invited to participate.



Judging contests and workshops will be held during the morning in the following areas: consumer products, crops, dairy judging, general livestock, horses, agricultural mechanics, dairy products, farm management, wildlife, forestry, horticulture, meats, soils, and ag sales. There is no limit to the number of students participating from any one school in each contest.

Awards will be presented in Lysaker Gymnasium at 1 p.m. with Ag Activities Day Scholarships of $750 awarded for high individual performance, and $450 scholarships for second high individual in each contest.

Last year nearly 800 students from area schools competed in the annual event, according to Lyle Westrom, assistant professor of dairy and coordinator of Ag Activities Day. In addition to local area schools, registrations for this year's Ag Activities Day have already been received from as far away as the Twin Cities.

There is no registration charge, but preregistration is required. Interested persons should call the University's agriculture division at 218-281-6510, ext. 301.

TIMES FOR TODDLERS

ACTIVITIES

What I Am Thankful For...

Thanksgiving is a time for all of us to be thankful for the things we have. This is also true for children, although the things that they say they are thankful for may be quite different from an adult's choices. This is a good time of the year for you and your child to draw these things. All you will need is a blank sheet of paper and crayons. The type of picture that is produced will depend upon the age of the child and the development of the child. When they are done, it is fun to have the child tell you what he or she is thankful for and to write it down. We should be careful not to try to tell the children what to draw, but to let this be entirely their own productions.

SCAVENGER HUNT

For next week's Activities feature, you will need any size milk cartons (not jugs), tape and newspaper.

BOOK OF THE WEEK

For Thanksgiving, the Thief River Falls public library recommends the following books:

Parnall, Peter. The Rock. The rock is just a lump to some people, but to deer, it covers them when feeding; to fox, it provides a home and to a boy, it is a source of enjoyment. A classic lyrical tribute to nature.

Lester, Helen. Pookins Gets Her Way. Pookins always got her way, until one day when she learned there's more to happiness than having your every whim met.

Boyd, Lizi. Sam Is My Half Brother. Hessie worries now that her dad and stepmother have a new baby, he will get all their love. When she discovers differently, she becomes the best big sister ever.

VIDEO VARIETY

The Thief River Falls public library honors the memory of Dr. Seuss with a variety of materials including these two videos new to the collection:

Dr. Seuss's ABC. Not only his ABC book comes to life but also two other Seuss classics: I Can Read With My Eyes Shut! and Mr. Brown Can Moo! Can You?

Hop on Pop. Hop on Pop, Marvin K. Mooney Will You please Go Now! and Oh, Say Can You Say? are the classic Seuss books animated in this video.

Anger, continued

Here are some suggestions for dealing with an angry child. Some of them are designed to help the child avoid unnecessarily frustrating situations. Some are on-the-spot actions you can take when you see your child is having a problem.

✂ Be a good model. Children will follow your example and likely express their feelings and anger as you do.

✂ Teach your child to express anger and feelings in words. If Susie is free to say "I don't feel like sharing just now," and if that desire is respected, chances are she isn't going to slug her playmate the minute you turn your back, and she will probably be ready to share within a few minutes.

✂ Catch your child being good. Find lots of ways to praise your child's good behavior and give them attention. (Some children seek parents' attention through negative behavior.)

✂ Make it easy for your child to be good. Give him or her plenty of opportunity for physical exercise to use up extra energy. Keep sleep times and meal times regular so that their physical needs are met.

✂ Use closeness and touching. Sometimes a sudden hug will help an angry child regain control. You can also just move closer to a child to help him/her curb an angry impulse.

✂ Set clear limits. A child needs a clear idea of what he can and can't do. "You may tell your brother you are angry but you may not hit him."

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Encourage your child to talk about frustrations when they are small before they become big angry situations.

NCC to offer four courses

Northland Community college in Thief River Falls will offer four courses over interactive television for the winter quarter, according to Dr James Haviland, acting provost.

Northland is a member of the Minnesota Moose Country Telecommunication Network which also includes Middle River, Greenbush, Badger, Karlstad and Lancaster schools.

Since Northland does not have the capability to broadcast to all five sites simultaneously, the three locations with the greatest number of registrations for each course will receive the broadcast. Courses offered include the following:

Principles of Accounting, a four-credit course offered Tuesdays and Thursdays at 5:30 p.m., discusses the basic structure of accounting and the accounting cycle;

Principles of Economics, a four-credit course meeting Tuesdays and Thursdays at 7:30 p.m., is a study of the American economy with emphasis on microeconomics;

Freshman English 111, a four-credit course meeting Mondays at 5 p.m., offers expository writing and the reading of essays.

Spanish II, a four-credit course, meets Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at 4:10 p.m. and is an introduction to the basic elements of the Spanish language. It includes practice in pronunciation, listening comprehension, elementary conversation, grammar, reading, writing and culture.

Winter quarter begins December 2. Anyone who would like further information or who wants to register may do so by calling Northland at 681-2181 or 1-800-628-9918. Be sure to indicate your desired location for receiving the telecast.

Mariel Woods in concert

Gospel singer, songwriter and recording artist Mariel Woods will be presented in concert Sunday, November 17, at 6:30 p.m. at the Harvest Festival of the Evangelical Free church in Thief River Falls.

Woods has presented concerts throughout the upper midwest for several years. Her music ranges from light Christian contemporary to traditional hymns.

Many fire deaths can be prevented by proper planning

According to recently released National Safety Council statistics, 4,300 people were killed in fires last year. That is down nine per cent from the year before, but still is far too many accidental deaths. The Minnesota Safety Council and the National Fire Protection Association offer the following tips to help keep your family safe from fires:

•Install smoke detectors and test them regularly to be sure they work.

•Make an escape plan. When a fire occurs, there is no time to make plans. Sit down with your family and make a step-by-step plan for escaping a fire.

•Know two ways out. Draw a diagram of your home. Plan two ways out of every room, especially the bedrooms.

•Make sure everyone can unlock all locks and open all doors and windows quickly. Never use an elevator during a fire: it may stop between floors or even take you to the floor where the fire is burning. If you must escape a second-story window, be sure you have a safe way to reach the ground. Make special arrangements for small children and people with disabilities.

•Get out fast. In case of a fire, don't wait for anything. Do not try to take possessions or pets. Just get out. Call the fire department after you get out.

•Choose a meeting place. Everyone should gather at one meeting place outside, preferable at the front, where the fire department will arrive. Each family member should know how to call the fire department from a neighbor's home.

•Don't go back no matter what. Make sure everyone in your family knows that once they are out, they must not go back for any reason. If people are trapped, firefighters have the best chance of rescuing them.

•Practice your plan. At least twice a year, have a fire drill in your home. Appoint someone as a monitor, to sound the alarm and make sure everyone uses their planned escape route. Get out quickly and carefully.

•Start from the bedrooms. Since the majority of fatal fires occur while people are sleeping, start your fire drill from the bedrooms. Close the door and wait for the monitor to sound the alarm.

•Prepare. Make your exit drill as real as possible. Practice both escape routes. Pretend that certain exits are blocked by fire, that there are no lights, and that the hallways are filling with smoke.

•Test every door. Before opening a door, feel it with the back of your hand as high as you can reach, at the crack of a hinge side. If it is hot, use your second exit. If it is cool, brace your shoulder against the door and open it carefully. Be ready to slam it shut if heat or smoke rushes in. As you leave, close all doors behind you to slow the spread of fire and smoke.

•Crawl low. Smoke is hot and contains deadly gases, so it will fill the room from the top down. If your only way out is through smoke, the best air will be several inches off the floor. Get down on your hands and knees and crawl quickly to the exits.

•If you are trapped, close the doors between you and the fire. Stuff the door cracks and cover vents to keep the smoke out. Wait at a window and signal with a flashlight, or by waving a sheet or other light-colored cloth. If there's a phone in the room, call the fire department and tell them where you are.

•Delay is deadly. If a fire starts, smoke detectors give you early warning. You need to know how to get out without delay. Exit drill make sure that your family can get out quickly when there is not time for mistakes.

The Times Around The Region

Chances aren't bright for Ada traffic light

Ada — The chances of getting a traffic light at the intersection of 200 and 9 in Ada are looking pretty dim. According to the Minnesota department of transportation, which conducted a traffic count in October, the figures don't even come close to what is required for a traffic light. The Ada police department, however, states that the accident count is about 12 to 13 a year. More research on the subject is being done. (Norman County Index)

Shooting Star casino to open next week

Mahnomen — The temporary facility of the Shooting Star casino, according to current plans, could be opening next week. The slot machines were to be shipped out November 12 and it is expected that the temporary facility will have eight "21" tables, 107 slot machines, a bar and a kitchen. Some of the planned cuisine will be the Shooting Star burger and the Mahnomen grill. The temporary facility will seat approximately 50 people. (Mahnomen Pioneer)

School asks adults to tell about what they do

Red Lake Falls — "To some kids, the only thing that grown-ups do is sit around and have coffee breaks all day" according to Deb Salberg, a first grade teacher at J. A. Hughes elementary school in Red Lake Falls. As a part of the American Education Week, community members were asked to invite one or two sixth graders to follow them around for an hour during their daily routine. The school expressed the hope that this exercise would help students to understand the world of work. (Gazette)

Warroad — The company that once was Christian Brothers' number one competitor is now among the Warroad-based hockey stick factory's assets. The sale includes the name "Northland," patents, trademarks and trade names, but not property, machines or inventory. (Warroad Pioneer)

Flu shuts down Tri County school

Karlstad/Strandquist — Tri County school students got a day off from classes Tuesday when Superintendent Lowell Schwalbo announced that school would be closed due to the high percentage of students with flu symptoms. School was already scheduled to be closed Wednesday for parent/teacher conferences. There were about 100 high school students out sick from a 420 total student body. (North Star News)

County incinerator will try burning fuel pellets

Fosston — The Polk county incinerator in Fosston is exploring the possibility of burning pelletized trash as a way to increase its volume of materials burned in winter. The pellets, which are produced by Future Fuel, Inc. of Thief River Falls, will be tested to check for any problems next week. Steam produced by burning materials by the incinerator is sold to Mr. Carrot and Northern Milk Producers. (Crookston Daily Times)

Argyle locker destroyed by fire October 30

Argyle — Fire raged through the Argyle locker early on the morning of October 30. The Argyle fire department saved the front portion of the locker plant, but the entire north half of the building was destroyed. Meat products stored in the locker by patrons were also lost. No plans for rebuilding are being made until results of the insurance company are announced. (Messenger)

Timber wolf given to UMC

Crookston — The natural resources department of the University of Minnesota, Crookston (UMC) recently acquired a striking addition to its Natural History museum, a timber wolf, which had been accidentally shot last February, north of Grand Forks, when it was mistaken for a coyote. Jeraldine Swain of Noberg, OR, and formerly of Crookston, donated $700 in memory of her parents, to have the animal prepared by a taxidermist. The animal will be in a display on the second floor of Owan hall. (Crookston Daily Times)

LETTERS

To The Editor:

It was with great disappointment that I learned of Congressman Collin Peterson and Senator Dave Durenberger's votes this week against the major Labor, Education and Human Services appropriation bill. This legislation, the most important funding source for health, education and human services programs in northwestern Minnesota, was not supported by Congressman Peterson or Senator Durenberger because it contained a one-year moratorium on enforcement of the "gag rule" on health professionals in federally funded birth control programs. Congressman Peterson was the only Democrat in Minnesota to oppose the legislation. Senator Durenberger went against 75 per cent of the U.S. Senate, including half of the Republican senators.

The federal Title X birth control program has never and will never fund abortion; this money will always be used strictly for birth control education and services. Last year Planned Parenthood of Minnesota provided birth control to over 9,000 low income individuals in the Seventh Congressional District with these funds.

I am personally well aware of the divisiveness of the abortion issue in today's society. But I also know that an overwhelming majority of Minnesotans support voluntary birth control programs. Congressman Peterson and Senator Durenberger are being irresponsible to their constituents in sacrificing the national birth control program because they do not want to allow clinic professionals to say the word abortion. From my perspective, men who are opposed to abortion should be fighting to expand birth control education and services instead of restricting them

This was an arrogant, out-of-touch vote from Congressman Peterson and Senator Durenberger

Sincerely,
Connie Perpich
Director of Public Affairs

To The Editor:

With wintertime upon us again, we must face the hazards of winter driving. As drivers we must learn to slow down and allow ourselves more time.

Is it really necessary to spread layer upon layer of salt on the city streets? We as Americans take pride in our vehicles. They are one of the major investments we make. Not only does the salt rust and decay our cars and trucks, it also is very hard on streets and parking lots.

If people could just learn to slow down and take some extra caution, this could stop. If anything, some sand could be spread on the busy intersections to help stopping. Many times the salt makes it more slippery in places. I'm sure many others share my feelings and would like to ban salting of the streets.

Sincerely,
Linda Kaushagen

1991 Lincoln High School football banquet...

Award winners led by Kaushagen, Wallberg

Seniors Matt Kaushagen and John Wallberg were multiple award winners Tuesday at the 29th annual Lincoln High School football banquet in the school cafeteria.

A 5-10, 178-pound fullback/linebacker, Kaushagen wound up with an armful of plaques. He was presented with the Ole Olson Memorial Most Valuable Player Award, the Tom Cat Award as the team's top point-producer in five different defensive categories and the Coaches Award, while also being named the Prowlers' most valuable offensive back and co-most valuable defensive back.

Wallberg, a 6-3, 215-pound offensive tackle-tight end/defensive tackle, was selected as Thief River Falls' most valuable offensive and defensive lineman.

Junior quarterback/safety Jason Svir shared the most valuable defensive back award with Kaushagen, and junior wingback Kevin Johnson was presented with the Ironman Champion plaque for his efforts in the Prowlers' pre-season practice-opening conditioning competition that combines point totals in agility, speed and strength tests.

Kaushagen, Wallberg and 6-1, 211-pound senior lineman Jason Kainz were recognized for their efforts as the 1991 Thief River Falls tri-captains – positions that were awarded at the start of practice this fall. Their successors will be named next August.

Athletic letters went to seniors Thane Espe, Derek Howard, Tom Upham, Kainz, Kaushagen and Wallberg; juniors Josh Balmer, Aaron Broten, Wade Evenson, Jared Goldesberry, Eric Halbert, Marc Haagen, Adam Jacobson, Nathan Knutson, Brad Kragness, Robert Nelson, Lee Nieland, Jason Niemi, Jeremy Olson, Rick Ostby, Barry Rhineberger, Carter Rogalla, Shane Skeim, Darin Weleski, Johnson and Svir; plus student managers Billie Jo Hume, Kelly Krause and Kent Larson.

Participation certificates went to sophomores Robby Bakken, Bob Bluemke, Kyle Boman, Jeff Cota, Eric Dahl, Jason Engen, Brian Fogarty, Justin Kempert, Brent Kleinvachter, Joby Looker, Lee Lund, Jeff Lundgren, Mike Moreno, Corey Olson, Mark Sullivan, Tom Swantek, Preston Ticat, Nick Trudeau, Chris Tveitbakk and Jeff Twomey; freshmen Nathan Anderson, Tim Barry, Eric Bjorgaard, Greg Buekta, Steve Burslie, Jason Cota, John Davis, Tony Halsa, Jeremi Hanson, Lee Haugen, Adam Henney, Jason Homme, Nathan Housey, Brian Howe, Jason Hruby, Brandon Johnson, Lee Kuck, Shawn Martinsen, Mark Melby, Cayler Olson, Max Radniecki, Lanca Reierson, Robert Rodahl, Nathan Scott, Mark Spyhalski, Scott Tunheim, Chris Vanyo, Joey Vettleson and Ryan Wold; plus student managers Kara Boughton and Amy Christianson.

Varsity football cheerleaders who were also presented with letters during the banquet included juniors Kim Hoefer and Wendy Stokke, along with sophomores Lori Golightly, Brenda Pals and Lisa Reierson.

Awards also included Pay the Price pins presented to football team members who met the summer vacation requirement of at least 20 visits – 85 percent attendance – to the Lincoln weight room.. The group included Kaushagen, Kainz and Howard out of the senior group; Svir, Haugen, Olson, Knutson, Rogalla, Evenson, Broten, Balmer, Skeim, Johnson, Ostby, Nieland, Weleski, Rhineberger and Niemi from the juniors; Dahl, Cota, Twomey and Lundgren from the sophomores.

Thief River Falls went 5-3 during the regular season, winding up with the No. 3 seed for the 1991 Section 8A playoffs, where the Prowlers beat No. 6-seeded Staples 33-14 in the quarterfinals before losing to No. 2-seed Fergus Falls 25-6 in the semifinals for a 6-4 overall finish. It's the first time since a 5-4 showing in 1980 that the Prowlers finished above .500, and its the most wins for a Thief River Falls football team since an 8-1 effort in 1972.

The year started 0-2 with a disappointing 16-6 season-opening setback at the hands of Park Rapids and a 24-14 loss to eventual Section 8A champion Detroit Lakes. But the Prowlers went 5-1 the rest of the way, beating Staples 26-6, Belcourt, ND 30-14, Crookston 29-28 in overtime, Fergus Falls 20-17 and East Grand Forks 29-17. Only regular season defeat down the stretch was a 29-28 homecoming game loss to Morris Area.

Head coach Jeff Mumm said much of Thief River Falls' success this fall came from the Prowlers' confidence in themselves. "As coaches, we thought we had a chance to finish above .500, but we hadn't won in so long it was really kind of hard to gauge just how the kids would respond to tha challenge," he said. "It took us two games to get here, but after that, we were on a roll."

A change in philosophy by the coaching staff might have also played a role in the Thief River Falls football turnaround, acknowledged Mumm. The coaches simplified the game, he explained, by throwing out the multiple sets they had designed for the Prowlers offensively and defensively.

"We re-did the offense after the second game," explained Mumm. "We decided to go straight at people – smash-mouth football. Wa wanted to just let the kids go out and play football and not worry so much about all the different assignments we were laying on them. We wanted them to have fun playing the game."

It worked. The Prowlers wound up with their first home playoff game and first post-season win ever, thanks to contributions from throughout the line-up.

Offensively, Kaushagen followed up a 956-yard rushing performance as a junior with a tackle-breaking 983-yard effort as a senior. And while Kaushagen charged through the middle, the speed of Haugen (615 yards) and Svir (345 yards)

Award winners announced during Thief River Falls' 1991 high school football banquet Tuesday included, left to right, Jason Svir, co-most valuable defensive back; John Wallberg, named most valuable offensive and defensive lineman; Matt Kaushagen, who received the Ole Olson Memorial Most Valuable Player Award, the Coaches Award, the Tom Cat Award for leading the Prowlers' defensive charts and was named the most valuable offensive back while sharing most valuable defensive back recognition with Svir; and Kevin Johnson, the winner of the Ironman Championship plaque dating back to the conditioning competition that annually opens preseason drills.

Northland Community College football season wrap-up...

Monson heads award winners

Northland Community College sophomore Greg Monson has been awarded post-season Minnesota Community College Conference and National Junior College Athletic Association football honors for the recently-completed 1991 season, it was reported this week by Pioneers coach Rick Nelson.

A 6-3, 240-pound center from Grygla, Monson was named to the MCCC Northwest/Northeast All-Northern Division team and was also named to the five-state area NJCAA All-Region 13 squad.

Five other Pioneers were named All-Northern Division Honorable Mention – freshman runningback Sean Campbell (Arcadia, FL), freshman offensive tackle Kurt Kluzak (Rosemount), sophomore defensive end Flint Gandrud (Audubon) and sophomore defensive back Dan Boushee (East Grand Forks).

Boushee, a 5-11, 180-pounder who was a full-time starter in the defensive backfield, took over quarterback duties when starter Reggie Drummond went down with an injury and also played on the Pioneers' specialty teams, was named winner of the Pioneers' Most Valuable Player Award.

Other team awards presented by Nelson included the Craig Berndt Memorial Most Valuable Offensive Back – Campbell; Keith Corneliusen Memorial Most Valuable Defensive Lineman – sophomore Kurt Reck (Mentor); Most Valuable Offensive Lineman – Monson; Most Valuable Linebacker – sophomore Alvin Pratt (North Miami Beach, FL); Most Valuable Offensive Receiver – sophomore Dennis Carpenter (Oslo); Most Valuable Special Teams Player – freshman Steve Heggen (Argyle); and Most Valuable Defensive Back - sophomore Scott Degelder (Pembina, ND).

Northland finished with a disappointing 1-7 record this fall, losing a season-opening 28-7 nonconference decision to the Moorhead State University junior varsity, then dropping MCCC games to Northeast Division foes Itasca 27-20, Vermilion 40-7, Hibbing 28-0 and Mesabi 23-14. Northland did earn area bragging rights by starting MCCC Northwest Division play with a come-from-behind 32-31 win over the University of Minnesota-Crookston, but the season ended with divisional losses at the hands of Brainerd 22-8 and Fergus Falls 24-19.

Nelson and the Pioneers expected better. "We did not even come close to our expectations," he said. "We felt we were a better football team than 1-7. Physically there was no doubt in the minds of our coaches that we were better than we have been for the last couple of years. But I think we learned a lot this year about the importance of motivation. We had a good group of kids, and they worked hard. But...we didn't have the players who would step forward and really take charge. As a coach, I think you have to make sure you recruit that type of player – one with a lot of heart."

Northland's efforts were also hampered by injuries, particularly in the offensive backfield, where anticipated big second-year efforts by Drummond and runningback Kevin Massiah were interrupted by physical problems and promising freshman fullback Sylvester Davis suffered a broken leg just four plays into the 1991 season. Berndt would have been one of the Pioneers' top runningbacks, too, as a returning sophomore, but the former Grygla-Goodridge standout was killed in a off-season automobile accident.

Massiah rushed for 830 yards and Drummond passed for 714 in 1990 when the Pioneers finished 4-4. Limited playing time held Massiah to 385 yards rushing this fall, while Drummond settled for 484 yards passing. Massiah and Drummond are both from North Miami Beach and Davis is a native of Tallahassee, FL.

"You've got to learn to cope with injuries, but when you take four-five top players out of any line-up and it obviously makes it a lot tougher to win," pointed out Nelson.

Kevin White wound up as the Pioneers' leading rusher this year with 550 yards, but the 6-0, 185-pound freshman from Hialeah, FL got a bulk of those yards in a school-record 317-yard effort against UMC. Campbell netted 397 yards.

Drummond was 36-for-87 passing with four touchdowns, but he also threw 12 interceptions.

Carpenter caught 22 passes for 282 yards and five touchdowns.

Despite the problems in the backfield, Northland still moved the ball behind an all-new cast of offensive linemen that really developed as a unit as the season wore on, said Nelson. Monson, a converted defensive lineman, led the way.

Defensively, the Pioneers were hurt by the pass this year, but Nelson wasn't about to lay blame solely on the Northland secondary. Pass defense deals not only with the defensive backs, he explained, but also with a pass rush by the defensive line and coverage assignments that have to carried out by the linebackers.

It might have been a bust in the won-loss column, acknowledged Nelson, but the season still offered the satisfaction of working with a group of individuals from a variety of backgrounds and watching the friendships develop within the team.

Nelson feels the Pioneers' program will bounce back. A number of 1991 freshmen are expected to return, providing Northland with a solid nucleus to start the 1992 season. And a successful recruiting effort has a way of turning the two-year community college programs around in a hurry.

Maps Aid Hunters

Looking for a good hunting site? That search can be made easier with the new Public Recreation Information Maps (PRIM) published by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources Bureau of Engineering.

The maps are like several maps combined into one, bringing together federal state and and county lands and their recreational facilities that makes it easier to find public lands where hunting is permitted.

The PRIM maps system divides the state into 51 areas, with each map showing campgrounds, wildlife management areas, parks, state trails, waterfowl areas, boat and canoe accesses, forest and nature areas, trout streams and more.

Twenty-seven of the maps are now available, with more due out next spring. The maps are being sold in many sporting goods stores and quick stop station stores in Minnesota. They are also available at DNR regional offices, the Minnesota Bookstore at 117 University Avenue in St. Paul, and at the DNR Gift Shop at 500 Lafayette Road in St. Paul.

PRIM maps, which cost $3.95, plus tax, can also be ordered by phone and charged to VISA, MasterCard, American Express or Discover by calling toll-free, 1-800-657-3757.

Funding Helps Eagles

Chippewa National Forest officials announced recently that they will be receiving $1 million in Land and Conservation Funds to protect bald eagle habitat in 1992. The funding will be used to buy land that includes eagle nest sites or other areas of "critical habitat" for the national symbol.

The Forest Service pays fair market value for land it acquires, and purchases only from willing sellers.

Chippewa National Forest is known as home to the highest number of breeding bald eagles in the continental United States and has one of the greatest success stories in wildlife conservation. In the early 1960's, only 20 breeding territories were on the Chippewa National Forest. The forest now has over 160 breeding pairs within its boundary.

1991 football

gave the Prowlers a definite outside game as well.

Svir also added to the attack with his game-breaking quarterback scrambles, his work in the defensive secondary where interceptions stopped several drives and with kick returns that provided field position and/or points.

Kaushagen's contribution as a middle linebacker produced 388 points in the Prowlers' defensive scoring scheme that covered unassisted tackles, assisted tackles, fumble recoveries and forced-fumbles. Broten, an outside linebacker, was No. 2 in the Tom Cat charts with 279 points and Kragness, a nose guard, finished with 200.

Wallberg, meanwhile, controlled the line of scrimmage on both sides of the ball. "There's no doubt, John was the most dominant offensive and defensive lineman in Section 8 this year," pointed out Mumm.

A 6-4 finish is obviously a step in the right direction for the Thief River Falls football program, noted Mumm. And with 21 juniors earning letters this fall, the prospects for continued success appear bright, he acknowledged.

"If we work hard and stay healthy, we should be right there," said Mumm. "But we're not going to surprise people this time. Our kids made the improvement from No. 7-8 in the section to No. 3-4, but those last two steps will be a lot tougher. We're going to miss this year's seniors; they're going to leave some big holes to fill. But the ability is there. We just have to work for it."

Glenn Chiodo, Tim Olson, Gary Laidley, Trocey Wensloff, John Schmitz and Glen Peters made up Mumm's coaching staff this year.

Soupçon

By Sherry LaCoursiere

The following recipe comes to you from the oldest restaurant in the United States, the Union Oyster House in Boston, Massachusetts. The restaurant had its 165th birthday in 1991.

Union Oyster House Clam Chowder

2 ounces salt pork
1 small onion, diced
4 ounces butter
2 ounces flour
2 pounds fresh (or frozen) clams, diced
32 ounces clam juice
1 pound potatoes, diced
16 ounces half and half salt, pepper, tabasco and worcester-shire to taste

Bring potatoes and clam juice to a boil. Cook until potatoes are done. Add clams, along with surplus juice from them. Cook until well done and set aside.

(Do not overcook or clams will be tough.)

Skin pork, dice and saute in a pan. Cook until rendered. Add onions and cook until glossy. Add butter, melt and cook slightly.

Add flour. If mixture is too loose, add a little more flour. Cook until slightly colored. Bring clams, juice and potatoes back to boil. Add cooked roux.

Thicken and bring to a rolling boil and stir. Add previously heated half and half to desired consistency. Season to taste. Serve with oyster crackers or pilot crackers.

This pie was one of the winners of the Crisco Great American Pie Celebration. It was baked by Sherry Sanders of Great Bend, Kansas, and was judged "Best Crust."

My Best Apple Pie

Filling

4 cups sliced, peeled (1/4-inch slices) Golden Delicious apples (1 1/3 pounds or 2 to 3 large apples)
1/4 cup apple juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup light brown sugar, packed
3/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
2 tablespoons plus 1 1/2 teaspoons quick-cooking tapioca
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine apples, apple juice and lemon juice in large saucepan. Cook and stir on high heat 5 minutes, or until apples are slightly limp. Pour into large shallow dish.

Place in refrigerator, uncovered, until cool, about 20 minutes. Spoon apples and any liquid into large bowl. Add sugars, cinnamon, nutmeg, tapioca and vanilla. Toss until apples are coated.

Heat oven to 400 degrees

Crust

1 2/3 cups all-purpose flour
1 1/2 cups whole wheat flour
1/3 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon salt
3/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup butter-flavor shortening, chilled
1/2 cup cold water
1 egg
1 teaspoon white vinegar

Combine flours, brown sugar, salt and cinnamon in large bowl. Cut in shortening, using pastry blender or two knives, until mixture resembles coarse cornmeal.

Combine water, egg and vinegar in small bowl. Beat with fork until well-blended. Sprinkle over flour mixture, one tablespoon at a time, tossing lightly with fork until dough forms a ball. Press dough with hands to form three 5 to 6-inch "pancakes." (Wrap one in foil for later use. Refrigerate up to one week or freeze.)

Flour rolling surface and rolling pin lightly. Roll dough for bottom crust into a circle. Trim one inch larger than upside-down 9-inch pie plate. Loosen dough carefully. Fold into quarters. Unfold and press into pie plate. Trim even with pie plate.

Spoon filling into unbaked pie shell. Moisten pastry edge with water. Roll top crust same as bottom. Lift onto filled pie. Trim 1/2 inch beyond edge of pie plate. Fold top edge under bottom crust and flute. Cut slits in top crust for escape of steam.

Glaze

milk
granulated sugar

Brush top crust with milk. Blot excess with paper towel. Sprinkle with granulated sugar.

Bake at 400 degrees for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake for one hour, or until filling in center is bubbly and crust is golden. Cool to room temperature before serving.

Here is a fiber-full muffin recipe that would be great for breakfast or as an after-school snack:

Spiced Applesauce Muffins

1 1/4 cups unsweetened applesauce
1/3 cup sugar
1/4 cup honey
3 tablespoons vegetable oil
2 eggs
2 cups whole wheat flour
3/4 teaspoon soda
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 to 3/4 teaspoons cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1/8 teaspoon cloves
1/2 cup raisins

Combine applesauce, sugar, honey, oil and eggs. Sift remaining ingredients, except raisins, in a large bowl. Be sure to stir in any bran remaining in sifter.

Add applesauce mixture to dry ingredients and stir to moisten. Stir in raisins gently—do not overstir.

Turn into muffin pans. Bake at 375 degrees for 20 minutes, or until done.

(Recipe makes 12 muffins. Each contains 180 calories and 5 grams of fat.)

Northland.

Sally Ihne was appointed to the position of president of the Clearwater Community College Region upon the recommendation of Chancellor Gerald W. Christenson. She has served in this position on an interim basis for the past 14 months. As president, Ihne will continue to represent and coordinate the Clearwater region, which includes Brainerd, Fergus Falls and Northland Community Colleges. Ihne will also remain provost at Brainerd Community College, a position she has held since 1983.

Prior to becoming provost at Brainerd Community College, she served as dean of instruction at Northland. Her academic career began as a college English instructor in Wyoming at Casper College and the University of Wyoming.

Ihne holds a bachelor of arts degree from Western College for Women located in Oxford, Ohio, and her master of arts degree from the University of Wyoming. She has done additional graduate work at Oxford University, the University of Wyoming, the University of Pennsylvania, and the University of Iowa.

Ihne has been appointed to many local, state, and national organizations including: National Chair of the Small and Rural College Commission of the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges (AACJC), board member and consultant/evaluator for the Council of North Central Community Junior Colleges, member of the National Potlatch Foundation Scholarship board, and board member and past president of the Minnesota Association of Community Junior Colleges.

Dr. Haviland has been serving in the role of interim provost at Northland for the past 17 months. He came to Northland as vice provost in 1987.

Prior to coming to Northland, Haviland served as the Chief Executive Officer for the Aroostook Medical Foundation in Maine. He has also served as director of special and external programs at the University of Maine and Northern Michigan University.

Haviland has a bachelor's degree from the University of Miami, a master's degree in Education from Western Michigan University, a master's degree in business administration from the College of St. Thomas, a doctorate in education administration from Western Michigan University, and a certificate from the Institute for the Management of Lifelong Learning from Harvard University.

Haviland's community involvement includes: a member and past chair of the chamber of commerce education committee, Tri-Valley Child Care advisory board, Senior Citizen advisory board, Community Education advisory board, Displaced Homemakers advisory board, Recreation Complex Coordinating committee, and the KSRQ advisory board.

Susan Minnick was appointed to the position of vice provost after serving as interim vice provost for the past year. Before coming to Northland Minnick served as director of Outreach at Willmar Community College.

Minnick brought many strengths to her position at Northland, but probably the most valuable was her knowledge of the community college system and what it stood for. Minnick herself is a product of the community college system. She received her associate of arts degree from Austin community college, her bachelor of arts degree in elementary education from Winona State, and her master's degree of science in College student personnel from the University of Wisconsin, LaCrosse.

Prior to her position at Willmar Community College, Minnick was an elementary teacher.

Community involvement has always been a high priority of Minnick's and she is looking forward to setting permanent roots in the Thief River Falls community. She currently serves on the Tri-Valley Child Care Advisory board, as well as on the board for the Discovery Place Child Care Center.

Hopes for rebuilding Newfolden school dims ride Mammenga's authority.

School board members were quick to refute the charges laid out in the letter from Mammenga. One board member pointed out that it is true that the school district has three attendance centers, but only because it has consolidated with Holt and Viking. Several pointed out that while the district may be sparsely populated, it is geographically large. Trying to strong-arm the district into consolidation and send students to Thief River Falls or Middle River will not solve the problem only make it worse. School board members also criticized the Management Assistance Report as the opinion of one individual and a report they were told, they could "use or throw away".

Sen. Stumpf said the commissioner is "capitalizing on a fire sale" situation.

Sen. Stumpf said careful examination of the report reveals that "critical mass" is very subjective. For example, he said, 159 school districts are smaller than Newfolden and 167 have fewer secondary students. Stumpf also pointed out that the person who did the study was superintendent in Roseville, MN. Newfolden, he said, spent $1,000 less per pupil than Roseville.

Another board member pointed out that state statistics indicate that all counties lost population escept a small number. The loss of students, which is only a trend, is not just a problem in Newfolden. In addition, the financial problems experienced by the school district this year are only temporary as well and not unique to the school district. A large number of school also have passed excess levy referendums. The fact that the residents of the school district overwhelmingly approved the excess levy referendum also shows the support the school enjoys in the community and district.

Busch said the school board will begin the process of developing a comprehensive plan and rationale for rebuilding and making another presentation to the state. The school board doesn't want to speculate on not rebuilding of some sort of replacement and it appears that the school board has the full support of the community and area state legislators.

Quilter's Guild will meet

Julie Desrocher will give instruction in making a Christmas placemat when the Thief River Falls Quilters' Guild meets Tuesday, November 26, at 7 p.m. in the Thief River Falls technical college (use the east door).

Anyone who missed the October meeting can pick up the Challenge Quilt information at this session. Supplies needed for the placemat project will be a sewing machine, red and green (regular) thread, sewing kit and $1.50 to $2 for materials kit.

Anyone interested in quilting is invited to attend the meeting.

Gunsalus earns employee of year

Roger Gunsalus of Lake George, safety education officer for the Minnesota State Patrol in the Thief River Falls district, was among 11 such officers honored as employees of the year at the employee recognition program held recently in St. Paul.

Tony Kozojed, a native of Thief River Falls and now Minnesota State Patrol Chief, said the officers were given the honor for helping Minnesota earn the "safest state in the nation" designation in 1990.

Last year Minnesota had the lowest fatality rate in the country at 1.5 deaths for each 100 million miles driven.

Warren man shares thoughts

The child's version of events reported by the child in November 1990 was impossible. The child reported consistently that he was taken to a room with two beds and told he had to sleep in one of them with his grandfather in order to "save money". In reality, the room, which had been booked for Mr. Loeslie by the U.S. Wheat Association, contained only one king-sized bed. The state did not determine the number of beds in the room until the third day of the trial.

"Dr. Satterfield, a board-certified child psychiatrist with experience interviewing approximately 1,000 children alleged to be abused, was not allowed an independent assessment interview with the child. Dr. Satterfield testified to the phenomenon of "hoax cases," wherein certain indicators of "coaching" appear. Specifically, where a parent has a pre-existing dispute with the alleged perpetrator; where that parent attends courses on the sexual abuse of children; where that parent teaches the language of the accusation of the child; where that parent has a pre-existing mental problem; and where that parent holds back information suggesting the abuse did not take place, it becomes extremely important to rule out the possibility of coaching. All of the indicators of coaching existed in this case, said Attorney Kurzman.

"Additionally, all of the symptoms of an abused child were not present in this case, he said.

"Mr. Loeslie had cooperated fully with law enforcement prior to his being charged. He had voluntarily taken a polygraph and voice stress examination on the allegations and had passed both tests. The jury was not allowed to hear that he had taken and passed the polygraph and voice stress tests."

Golf course expansion on track for 1992

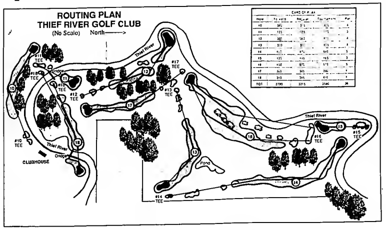
In the planning stages for a number of years, expansion of the Thief River Falls Golf Club course to 18 holes is expected to be well underway in 1992, according to Tom Kays, secretary-treasurer of the club and treasurer of the golf course expansion committee.

Basic cost of the expansion program—which involves the addition of nine holes without modifying the existing nine-hole course—has been estimated at $667,000. About $200,000 has been donated since December of 1990 and cash and pledges for the expansion currently total more than $550,000, according to information presented at a meeting of the golf course expansion committee Thursday.

To provide space for the course expansion, 83 acres of land have been purchased from Glenn Jorde and 10 acres from Lester Halvorson north of the present course and east of the Thief river. Added to the 125 acres presently owned by the club this land will increase the course size to 218 acres.

Tom Haugen of Shakopee, an architect who has planned several golf courses, has been hired to plan the new nine-hole layout which will make use of natural high and low ground, trees and other natural features. Specifications are nearing completion with a call for bids on the project anticipated on or before Jan. 1, 1992.

"With the success of the fund drive to date there is no question that the expansion is a 'go,'" Kays said, "and we would expect that a certain amount of work, including some necessary tree removal, will take place this winter."



The new nine-hole expansion will be heavily wooded and offer challenging options to golfers. "On just one of the new holes," Kays said, "there will be more trees than on the entire existing nine-hole course!"

Kays said that a number of local golfers play area 18-hole courses which include facilities at East Grand Forks, Bemidji, Perham, Warroad, Hawley, Moorhead and two each at Grand Forks, Detroit Lakes and Park Rapids. "Golfers like the idea of having 18 different looks in a round rather than nine looks twice," he said.

Lowell Swenson, who has been chairing the expansion committee and is one of the most enthusiastic promoters of the expansion, said the goal has been to raise funds up front and avoid debt that could drive up membership fees and reduce the number of participants.

Arctco leases S.D. facility to build hoods

Arctco, Inc. of Thief River Falls announced today that it has leased a building in Madison, SD, and purchased industrial painting and reaction injection molding (RIM) equipment to produce metton hoods and other parts for the company's Arctic Cat snowmobiles, and possibly for its new line of personal watercraft.

The equipment purchased from PPD RIM-SPEC, Inc., of Quebec, Canada will be installed in the South Dakota facility—a presently available, new 35,000-square-foot building—during February and March of 1992. Production will begin on a limited basis in April.

Chris Twomey, Arctco president and chief executive officer, said the Madison site was selected for the new operation because the company did not believe the necessary environmental permits required in Minnesota could be finalized in time to allow completion of construction so that production could begin in April of 1992.

Since the company had been purchasing metton products from PPD RIM-SPEC during the past three years, establishment of the South Dakota plant will not affect current employment levels at Arctco's snowmobile manufacturing facility in Thief River Falls.

"The purchase of this equipment will allow us to further control and improve the quality of our snowmobiles," Twomey said. "It is another example of how Arctco is continuing substantial investment in a line of products that is recognized as the industry standard. We expect to have excess molding and painting capacity at the Madison facility which we plan to fill with custom work for other manufacturers."

He added that the fiberglass department at the Thief River Falls plant has been in a gradual phase-out process and that employees who wished to transfer have been absorbed into other areas in the Arctco plant. He had no immediate projection as to employment numbers in the metton molding facility in South Dakota.

Arctco sales for quarter $79,444,000

Net sales of Arctic Cat snowmobiles by Arctco, Inc., of Thief River Falls during the second quarter reached $79,444,000 or an increase of 15 per cent from $69,272,000 in the second quarter a year ago.

Net earnings increased 17 per cent to $10,929,000 or 86 cents per share, compared with net earnings of $9,326,000 or 74 cents per share a year ago. Weighted average shares outstanding for the second quarter were 12,693,000 this year and 12,661,000 last year.

The second quarter of fiscal 1992 ended Sept. 30, 1991. For the six-month period net sales increased 14 per cent to $92,855,000 from $81,698,000 for the same period last year. Net earnings increased 19 per cent to $11,446,000 (90 cents per share) for the first half of fiscal 1992.

Money could alleviate curriculum problems

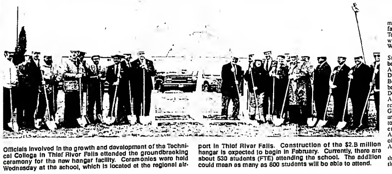
North Central audit team finds budget cuts have an impact on students

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

While stating that the curriculum of Lincoln senior high school serves and meets the needs of the students, Donovan Dulski, chairman of the North Central association audit team visiting here earlier this week, said that a number of the recommendations for improvement involved the need for expenditure of additional funds.

Dulski, principal at Moorhead high school, chaired the 25-member team of visiting educators from throughout the state which arrived Sunday evening and spent three days conducting a validation audit for Lincoln as part of its affiliation with the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools.

"Why do schools undertake this type of an audit?" asked Paivi Young, who co-chaired the Lincoln committee with Whitey Olson. "We do this because we at Lincoln high school pride ourselves on improving the quality of eduction. We as a staff are confident that good things will come out of this audit. As educators, we must remember that it is the students we have to keep in focus."



And it was the students that audit team members had in focus as they visited departments, attempted to assess strengths and weaknesses and determine the accuracy of the school's own self-assessment com-

Groundbreaking held for $2.8 million TC hangar

Officials involved in the growth and development of the Technical College in Thief River Falls attended the groundbreaking ceremony for the new hangar facility. Ceremonies were held Wednesday at the school, which is located at the regional airport in Thief River Falls. Construction of the $2.8 million hangar is expected to begin in February. Currently, there are about 530 students (FTE) attending the school. The addition could mean as many as 800 students will be able to attend.

Official groundbreaking ceremonies for the $2.8 million hangar facility for the Thief River Falls Technical College aviation program were held at the regional airport Wednesday.

Speakers included Sen. LeRoy Stumpf and Rep. Wally Sparby, both of Thief River Falls, Maryel Anderson, who chairs the School District 564 board of education; Bob Madson, representing the state board of technical colleges; and Don Stewart, representing Jobs Inc. Also joining the ceremonies were representatives of the contractors, Gary Hook, senior vice president, and Jim Larson, project coordinator. (Larson, formerly of Newfolden, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Larson), and representatives of the architects, Anderson-Dale Architects.

Many speakers noted that during the process they wondered whether this day would ever arrive. But with the day of construction to begin, they were thankful they were able to help.

Mayor Bob Carlson specifically thanked Orley Gunderson, president of the Technical College. "A man had a vision. He had a dream," said Carlson. "But sometimes, he said, we wondered what he was doing."

Carlson said everyone knows that money can be spent foolishly, but when you look at this investment, you know it wasn't spent foolishly.

Echoing his sentiment, Bob Madson, said the building is more than a hangar but an investment in education, students, the community and Minnesota.

Sen. Stumpf said the building was the result of the vision in this community.

Rep. Sparby said he hoped the hangar was just another beginning for the school. He said if we want to be number one in the nation, and

National health care favored by federation

Minnesota Senior Federation believes that a national health care system is the cure for the nation's health care problems, a spokesman for the organization stated at a health care forum sponsored by the Northwest Senior Federation Friday, November 15, at the Heritage Community center in Thief River Falls.

About 35,000 Minnesotans, including 530 in northwestern Minnesota, belong to the Minnesota Senior Federation.

The spokesman said that lack of access, poor health insurance coverage, waste and lack of fair funding plague the United States health care system. He said that a national system, like Canada's, or a single-payer health care systems in which a government-sponsored group pays health care bills have advantages over the United States system. The Canadian system, the spokesman said, has no deductibles, no co-payments, no charges for services and lower premiums.

About 40 senior citizens and others attended the meeting at which Leonard Olson, Casper Martin, Helen Tri, Marion Gusa, Olga Engevik and Betty Roadfeldt, all senior federation members, contributed to the discussion of the health care problem.

In opening the meeting, Dr. David Brown, president of the Minnesota Senior Federation's Northwest region, said that health care is the federation's number one concern state-wide.

Consensus of the meeting was that the state federation should look at health care systems of various countries and design one that is based on the best parts of each, and that seniors and others should be ready to move and act when they see something that is good or not so good.

Davidson exhibition on display at Touche Gallerie

Bemidji — "Landscapes, Birds and Pyramids," a solo exhibit of paintings by Marion Davidson, is currently on display through December 20 at the Touche Gallerie in Upper Hobson Memorial Union at Bemidji state university. The gallery is open to the public free of charge from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays. Liquor store hold-up thwarted

Bemidji — An alert citizen who reported a suspicious-looking car in north Bemidji helped thwart an armed hold-up Saturday night of the Northern Liquor store. Held in custody in Beltrami county jail was James Eric Holm of Grand Rapids, who will be charged with armed robbery and first-degree assault, according to a spokesman for the Beltrami county sheriff's department. The Law Enforcement center had received a phone call from a citizen shortly before the hold-up about a suspicious vehicle in a parking lot near Northern Liquor. The hold-up alarm was later set off at the store and Holm was apprehended in the parking lot. There were no injuries reported in the incident. (Bemidji Pioneer)

Humboldt community can use school building

Humboldt — District 2359 freed itself of some paperwork, but lost a much-needed practice site November 12 when it passed a resolution that the Humboldt-St. Vincent school building would not be used for student activities. The resolution releases the school from the obligation to file quarterly reports on the building. Residents of Humboldt asked that the building be allowed to be used by the community and that has now been approved. Even some community education may take place there. The building cannot be used for any student activities however. (Kittson County Enterprise)

Advent Sunday concert set for Erskine

Erskine — An afternoon of sacred Christmas music will be sponsored by the Pioneer Memorial Care center December 1 at 4 p.m. The second annual "Tune Up for Christmas" concert will take place at the Grace Lutheran church in Erskine. Musicians from the area have been invited to share their vocal and instrumental talents to inaugurate the Christmas season. Funds raised at the event will be used to purchase an organ for the chapel at Pioneer. (Thirteen Towns)

Public radio may air in Roseau in December

Roseau — Crews expect to begin work on December 8 for constructing a new Roseau translator for rebroadcasting Minnesota Public Radio. Dick Sjoberg of Sjoberg Cable TV, said all components are ready to assemble. He expects construction to last about a day. The primary coverage area will include Roseau and a radius of about two and a half miles around the city. (Roseau Times-Region)

The Russians are coming

East Grand Forks — Three young Russian students may accompany East Grand Forks Central middle school students to the Wolf Ridge Environmental Learning center next spring. Glen Trembath, a CMS instructor, was a delegate to Grand Forks/East Grand Forks' sister city of Ishim, Russia, last summer. An "agreement on friendship and cooperation" has been signed by officials in the Greater Grand Forks public schools and the Ishim schools. The immediate goal was to issue invitations to six Russian students and two translators to come to the East Grand Forks area for a three-week visit in April and May, which will coincide with the seventh grade trip to the Wolf Ridge Environmental Learning center near Lake Superior. (Exponent)

And more Russians...

Bagley — Soviet musicians will perform Monday, December 2 at 7 p.m. at the Bagley high school gym. The two-hour concert will feature a trio playing instruments and answering questions about the Soviet Union. The program is part of a 1991-92 Arts and Cultures series sponsored by the Region 2 Arts council, the Minnesota legislature and Bagley community education. A separate lyceum for high school students will be held prior to the evening performance. (Farmers Independent)

Northern demise for a southern animal

Baudette — A visitor from the south met its end on the frozen streets of Baudette last week. The body of an armadillo was found by Mark Sindelir of Baudette on the east end of the Highway 11 bridge over Baudette Bay. This one was not the first to make its way this far north. It happened about eight years ago and speculation at the time was that it smuggled itself north in a truck. The same situation appears to have happened again. (Baudette Region)

Thanksgiving is right around the corner and it is time to think about that Thanksgiving feast. I hope you will find some of these turkey tips and holiday recipes helpful this holiday season, whether you are a first-time cook or a more experienced one.

First of all, let's address that big bird that is the mainstay of Thanksgiving dinner. Here are some tips on how big a bird to buy and how to thaw, clean and roast it:

All about the Turkey

Purchase your turkey allowing approximately 3/4 to one pound per person. If you like lots of leftovers, stick to the one pound per person and you can't go wrong.

Thaw your turkey in the refrigerator, if at all possible. Plan on two to three days of refrigerator thawing. THIS IS THE RECOMMENDED WAY TO THAW THE TURKEY.

If you must thaw outside of the refrigerator, leave the turkey in its original wrap, place in several layers of newspaper and then in a brown paper bag and then thaw in as cool a place as possible. This type of thawing will take 20 to 24 hours for birds under 12 pounds, and 24 to 30 hours for those over 12 pounds. Check often to make sure the turkey is staying cool on the outside.

Turkeys can also be thawed in cold water, but this method is not recommended. If you must thaw your turkey this way, leave it in the original wrappings, and place into a cold water bath. Change water frequently, using as cold water as possible at all times. This method of thawing can take up to eight hours.

No matter how you thaw, try to cook your bird as soon as possible after it is fully thawed. A bird that has ice crystals inside can be handled by placing the icy spot under cold running water for a few minutes.

Stuff the turkey right before roasting. If you must prepare your stuffing ahead of time, refrigerate it in a separate container and do not put it inside the bird. Allow about 3/4 cup of stuffing per pound of turkey and you can't go wrong.

Before stuffing, salt the bird by rubbing, inside and out, with salt. Lightly stuff large cavity of bird, and stuff a little into the neck cavity, if desired (this will probably fall out anyway). Push drumsticks under metal band, or tie with string. Twist wing tips underneath of bird.

Place your turkey, breast side up, in shallow roasting pan. Rub skin with oil or butter, if you wish. Cap loosely with foil, pressing lightly at drumstick and breast ends to keep from overbaking.

Roast the turkey at 325 degrees, basting whenever you feel like it. The turkey will cook just fine without basting, but seems to be a little better if basted once in a while.

Roasting times are as follows:

Pounds:	Hours:
6-8	3 1/2 - 4
8-12	4 - 4 1/2
12-16	4 1/2 - 5 1/2
16-20	5 1/2 - 6 1/2
20-24	6 1/2 - 7 1/2

The turkey is done when the thick part of the drumstick feels soft when pressed between fingers and it moves easily up and down in socket. Let the bird stand 15 minutes before trying to carve.

Now, here are a few very traditional recipes that you might like to try this year. This is the recipe I used the very first time I made stuffing, and I still make it this way, with a few variations now and then (like diced turkey liver - that the kids hate):

Bread Stuffing

3 tablespoons chopped onion
1/2 cup finely chopped celery, if desired
1/4 cup butter or margarine
4 cups dry bread cubes (7 slices cut in 1/2-inch cubes)
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/2 teaspoon poultry seasoning
1/2 teaspoon ground sage
2-4 tablespoons water or chicken broth

Cook onion and celery in butter. Combine with bread cubes and seasonings. Toss with liquid to moisten. (Makes 3 cups of stuffing, enough for 4-5 pound bird. Double or triple for larger bird.)

This is a favorite Thanksgiving dish:

Candied Sweet Potatoes

6 medium sweet potatoes, cooked and peeled and cut into 1/2-inch slices (or 1 can sweet potatoes or Yams, sliced)
3/4 cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup butter
1/2 cup miniature marshmallows

Layer potatoes in buttered 1 1/2 quart casserole with brown sugar, salt and butter, ending with sugar and butter.

Bake, uncovered, at 375 degrees about 30 minutes, or until glazed. Add marshmallows the last five minutes and brown lightly.

This recipe will serve six people.

(I put my marshmallows on top before I bake the potatoes, cover them, and let them bake right along with my turkey for about an hour. This melts the marshmallows into a heavy syrup. You can always put some more on top and bake uncovered for five minutes for those who like the browned marshmallows.)

We don't have a holiday without this dish, and it's easy to fix ahead and have ready to bake with the turkey, too.

Scalloped Corn

1 beaten egg
1 cup milk
1 cup cracker crumbs
3/4 teaspoon salt
dash pepper
1 (1 lb. 1 oz) can cream-style corn (2 cups)
1 tablespoon butter or margarine, melted

Mix egg, milk, 2/3 cup of the crumbs, salt and pepper. Stir in corn and place in buttered one-quart casserole.

Toss melted butter with remaining crumbs and sprinkle over top. Bake at 350 degrees for 65 to 70 minutes. Serves 6.

Let's take a look at the "proper" way to make mashed potatoes, and where would we be without them with our delicious turkey gravy:

Mashed Potatoes

Pare potatoes. Cook in boiling, salted water until tender. Drain and shake over low heat to dry.

Mash with electric mixer, adding hot milk as needed. Continue beating on high speed until light and fluffy. Add salt, pepper and butter as desired.

There has to be pumpkin pie for dessert and this one is as easy as pie:

Pumpkin Pie

1 1/2 cups canned pumpkin
3/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 to 1 1/4 teaspoons cinnamon
1/2 to 1 teaspoon ginger
1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon cloves
3 slightly beaten eggs
1 1/4 cups milk
1 (6 ounce) can evaporated milk (2/3 cup) fairly large unbaked pie shell

Combine pumpkin, sugar, salt and spices. Blend in eggs, milk and evaporated milk, beating lightly.

Pour into pastry shell. Bake at 400 degrees for 50 minutes, or until knife inserted halfway between center and edge slips out cleanly.

Make this "easy as" pie for those who just don't care for pumpkin:

Southern Pecan Pie

3 eggs
2/3 cup sugar
dash salt
1 cup dark corn syrup
1/3 cup melted butter or margarine
1 cup pecan halves
unbaked pie shell

Beat eggs with sugar, salt, syrup and butter. Add pecans and pour into pie shell and bake at 350 degrees for about 50 minutes, or until knife inserted halfway between center and side comes out cleanly. Cool before serving.

(These recipes are, basically, all from my old stand-by wedding gift from many years ago, The Better Homes and Gardens Cook Book. What would I have done without it?)

ACTIVITIES

Toys

Christmas seems to be in the air, and with that comes the thought of children and toys. Good toys are very expensive, so the activity for this week is to think about homemade toys that we can make that cost very little.

Blocks are a natural medium for children, but they can be expensive. A very inexpensive way to provide large blocks for children is to make them out of the cardboard-like milk cartons. You can use any size that is available and if you use a variety, you will have a nice assortment of different-sized blocks.

Rinse out the milk carton and allow it to dry. Open the top completely, and stuff the milk carton with crushed newspaper. This will give the block a little weight so it is easier to stack. Then fold the top down so it is flat and tape it down securely. It may be necessary to trim the top a little to make it lie flat.

Now, you can stop and simply use the blocks or you cover the blocks with paper to make them look nicer. The paper can be anything you like: leftover wallpaper, the Sunday comics, construction paper or even gift wrapping paper. It is best to use glue to hold the paper to the blocks.

When making blocks, be sure to make enough so the children can actually build with them. The more experience they have with the blocks, they more elaborate the buildings become.

SCAVENGER HUNT

For next week's Activities feature, you will need white paper, glue, markers, crayons, scissors, old Christmas cards, wrapping paper and gift or wrapping ribbon.

BOOK OF THE WEEK

The Thief River Falls public library has a number of good books on toys for parents to check out including the following:

Fisher, John J. More Toys to Grow With. The sequel to Toys to Grow With, this book is great for parents of infants and toddlers and offers unique ideas for making ever day routines fun.

Kaban, Barbara. Choosing Toys for Children. Kaban outlines the toys which will aid development in children ages birth to five.

VIDEO VARIETY

It must be Thanksgiving, think the animals, at the end of this video now available at the Thief River Falls public library:

Muppet Musicians of Bremen. Leroy the Donkey, T. R. the Rooster, Rover Joe the Hound Dog and sassy Miss Catgut are determined to escape from their mean, rotten masters...and their masters are equally determined to keep them down on the farm. Will the gallant, jazz-playing animals make it to freedom and fame?

PARENTING TIPS

Visiting With Relatives

Thanksgiving is usually a time when families get together. We go to this family gathering thinking we will have a great time visiting with family and our children will have a great time too with their relatives. Unfortunately, it doesn't always end up that way. Sometimes problems with the children develop. Usually the cause is that each family has a different set of rules. So the question is: when you go to visit the grandparents or other relatives, who will do the disciplining and whose rules will apply?

Most of the time it makes sense for the house rules to apply. You can decide with your children that some behavior may be all right in Grandma's house, but not all right when you get home again.

However, grandparents shouldn't undercut the authority of the parents, and it is important for grown-ups not to use questions of control of the children to fight out their disagreements with each other.

As parents you the protectors of your children, even against grandparents or other relatives. You also have to protect your children from the unrealistic expectations or standards that relatives may have for them.

So plan ahead, talk to your children about the behavior that is expected at the house where you are going. If the rules are stricter than your children are used to, try to bring activities with that will satisfy the house rules and your children. If the rules are looser than yours either enforce yours or tell your children the rules are different and yours will apply when you are home again.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk about how each family is different and can have different rules. Talk about how you have set rules that you believe are best for your family.

Thanksgiving gas price down

Minnesota motorists will pay less for gasoline over the long Thanksgiving holiday than they did during Labor Day weekend, according to AAA of Minnesota.

The average price of $1.146 for self-serve unleaded regular is four cents lower than the Labor Day average and almost 23 cents lower than at last Thanksgiving. The national average price of unleaded gasoline is $1.129.

Average price in northern Minnesota for unleaded regular is $1.165.

Columnist Comments On Ex-Minnesotans

"Ex-Minnesotans Long For Home" is the heading on a column written by Jeff Bahr in the Living Section of the Omahan (NE) World-Herald, November 6, 1991. Present Minnesotans, including those of us who stay here through the onslaught of winter, should appreciate his comments as rouch as those about whom he writes. Bahr's column follows:

Take a good look at the people around you. Those you don't know well—and even some of those you do—may be harboring a secret.

They might be Minnesotans.

A lot of Midlanders have Minnesota ties. Sometimes it seems that everyone you meet grew up in Minnesota. Or the Person has a sister who lives there. Or the person would like to live there himself.

The Midwest is filled with people who grew up in the Land of 10,000 Lakes. Most of those people spend their lives aching to return. I don't know of a land that exerts a more powerful lure on its former residents.

I was not raised in Minnesota, but I did grow up within a snowball's throw of the border. So I have spent a lifetime observing Minnesotans. I have even picked up some of their habits. Every Christmas season, I begin to have a craving for lefse, a large, round potato pancake commonly served with butter or sugar.

We Omahans don't have an NFL team to call our own. Some people try to build up the notion that we are Kansas City Chiefs fans. Others contend that our team is the Chicago Bears or the San Francisco 49ers. But I bet there are more fans in Omaha of the Minnesota Vikings than of any other professional football team.

I also have long suspected that many people who pack the stands at Omaha Lancers hockey games originally came from our northern neighbor.

Mutual Attraction

Minnesota expatriates just seem to attract each other. When two people in a room discover toe other is from Minnesota, they cling to each other like long-lost friends. They talk for hours about mutual friends in Bemidji or Thief River Falls. They also have a tendency to organize. Witness the annual Minnesota Transplant parties in Nebraska.

Minnesotans don't realize they are so plentiful. But there are so many of them around that when I meet someone, I just assume he is from Minnesota.

Former Minnesotans also believe that outsiders have little knowledge of their home state. They will start telling you about a wonderful little theater called the Guthrie, as if no one south of Sleepy Eye had ever heard of it. Or they will tell you that they are actually from a suburb of the Twin Cities, but there's no point identifying it because surely you've never heard of it. They don't realize that Bloomington and Edina are as familiar to us as Grand Island or North Platte.

Minnesotans seem biologically compelled to brag about their home state. This is particularly true of natives of the Twin Cities. Minneapolis and St. Paul, they say, might be the most civilized cities in the country. They are right, of course. But people from outside Minnesota still get tired of hearing about the wonders of Lake Harriet or Southdale.

Homing Device

Most transplanted Minnesotans still have their hearts in Minnesota.

All my life I have known people who grew up in Minnesota and are obsessed about returning home. Now working at small radio stations in Montana, the Dakotas and western Nebraska, these people would give their right arms to get jobs at WCCO in Minneapolis.

Many people are closet Minnesota fans. They sneak away once or twice a year to visit their secret land of enchantment. Those people pick up a bag at the Walker Art Center or buy a sweater just so they can off-handedly say they bought it at Dayton's.

I can understand why Minnesotans love their home state. The Twin Cities' many sports teams and cultural attractions make life in the area richly diverse. Minnesota also is home to many corporations. The state has a wide influence on the region.

It's not that I don't like people from the land of 10,000 lakes. Some of my best friends are Minnesotans. Like everyone else, I have relatives in Minnesota. My parents even own a small piece of real estate in Minnesota. So we know what it's like to pay exorbitant taxes.

One of my favorite pastimes is trying to identify Minnesotans. Their polite behavior will usually give them away. I don't think I've ever met a Minnesotan who was rude.

You can also spot a Minnesotan by his accent. When I am on a Northwest Airlines flight that has a layover in Minneapolis, I usually can figure out which passengers are on their way home just by listening to them.

I would strike up conversations with some of them, but they would start telling me how wonderful the Guthrie Theater is. I've already heard that—about 10,000 times.

"BLESSINGS IN CHRIST"

In Ephesians 3:10-12, it says: "In whom we have boldness and access with confidence by the faith of Him."

"In boldness and liberty we can pray and let our requests be known unto God," Philippians 4:6. In confident assurance we can expect our prayers to be answered. For Jesus is the high priest who hears our requests. Also, we can have complete faith in Jesus, for He is the Son of God, who loves us and gave Himself for you and me.

Now, that is the kind of God I want to serve. Give your life to Jesus by receiving Him by faith today.

20 HOUR BLITZ
Friday, Nov. 29 –8 A.M. - 7 P.M. • Sat., Nov. 30–9 A.M. - 6 P.M.

Oversized load! Perkins Trucking of Apple Valley, MN, hauled a large object called a desorber through Thief River Falls Wednesday afternoon. The desorbar was being taken from Duluth to Regina, Sask. The load weighed 373,000 pounds, was 170 feet long, front to back, 20 feet high and 21 feet six inches wide. The rig has 94 tires and there are 10 tires on the push truck. A representative of the trucking company which has specialized in hauling over-sized loads for 20 years, called The Times Wednesday afternoon and asked if we would convey an apology to the citizens of Thief River Falls for any inconvenience and because there was some trouble with the Christmas decorations promised to donate $100 to the Area Food Shelf in Thief River Falls.

Shovel safely advises council

A heavy snowfall can be very picturesque. Powdery, delicate looking flakes covering homes, trees, driveways and sidewalks can often be beautiful and deceiving. Don't be fooled! Snow is wet and often heavy! In fact, many fatal heart attacks occur after heavy snowfalls when optimistic shovellers take on more than they can handle.

The Minnesota Safety Council recommends that individuals over the age of 40, or who are relatively inactive, be very careful when shoveling. If you have a history of heart trouble, do not shovel without a doctor's permission. Don't shovel immediately after eating or while smoking. The combination of cold air and smoking causes constriction of blood vessels and can be deadly.

Lifting a full shovel is like lifting any heavy object. Use your legs to lift, not your back.

Don't shovel to the point of exhaustion or fatigue. Instead, take frequent breaks. If you feel tightness in your chest, stop shoveling immediately.

Chiodo named volleyball MVP

Sophomore Toni Chiodo was named most valuable and hardest worker Tuesday at the annual Thief River Falls high school volleyball banquet.

Chiodo was also recognized as the Prowlers' leading scorer in both last-touch and service point categories this fall.

Senior Amy Eriksen was named the most improved player, while juniors Ali Peterson and Nessa Anderson shared the Coaches Award.

Junior varsity, C squad and freshman team awards were also presented.

The junior varsity honors went to junior Kristi Lindberg, most valuable; sophomore Allison Myers, hardest worker; junior Amy Enge, most improved; and sophomore Tracy Jordet, Coaches Award.

C squad recognition went to sophomore Cris Soto, most valuable; sophomore Sara Tyler, hardest worker; sophomore Gretchen Carlson, most improved; and junior Angie Efta, Coaches Award.

Freshmen squad players cited were Jenny Drury, most valuable; Jana Johnson, most improved; Andrea Moe, hardest worker and Coaches Award.

Athletic letters went to seniors Kathy Kvick, Maria del Mar Martinez, Pam Puppe and Eriksen; juniors Kristen Boughten, LuAnne Maslowski, Anderson, Enge, Lindberg and Peterson; sophomores Jamie Martell, Chiodo and Soto; freshmen Carie Lawrence and Kelly Skeim; plus student managers Dana Flesche and Stephanie Schwartz.

Participation certificates went to juniors Marie Lubitz and Efta; sophomores Jennifer Blackberg, Lori Erickson, Becky Hanson, Ken Holthusen, Traci Lindberg, Dana McGeary, Charity Pederson, Anna Peterson, Carlson, Jordet, Myers and Tyler; freshmen Michelle Haugen, Krista Kees, Kari Kirkeby, Amber Peoples, Keri Schommer, Jaynne Stanina, Drury, Johnson and Moe; plus student manager Tari Rux.

Martinez and Soto are foreign exchange students.

Eriksen, Kvick, Anderson, Peterson and Chiodo were all given captain status this fall.

After several years as one of the North Sub-Region 8AA volleyball leaders, Thief River Falls fell victim to graduation losses this fall and stumbled to a 5-19 finish. A string of 11 straight season-ending losses was capped by a 3-0 setback at the hands of Detroit Lakes in the first round of the North Sub-Section 8AA tournament.

However, Thief River Falls head coach Helen Anderson wouldn't sell her players short. "Despite the won-loss record, I feel we still came out winners as far as the improvements that were made throughout the season and the experience we gained at the varsity level," she said.

And with just three Thief River Falls seniors leaving the program, the Prowlers hope to rebound in quick fashion. "We are not going to dwell on the losses this year," said Anderson. "Instead, we'll look forward to the 1992 season. We will have a lot of returning players with varsity experience, and that should be a real plus to start the year."

Special banquet recognition was also given to Harlon and Jeanie Kvick, who were named recipients of the Dedicated Prowler Spirit Award for their dedication and enthusiasm, not only for the Lincoln High School volleyball program, but other school and community activities as well. "This is their last year with Prowler athletics, as far as having a son or daughter involved in the program," explained Anderson, "but we're sure we'll see them in the stands cheering on the Prowlers in the future."

1991 Red Lake County Central high school football...

Eric Kolstoe is RLCC leader

A spot on the 1991 Class C Academic All-State high school football team highlights the list of post-season honors for Red Lake County Central senior Eric Kolstoe.

A 5-9, 178-pounder who was used as both a runningback and quarterback on offense and anchored the Red Lake County Central defense at middle linebacker, Kolstoe was named the Mustangs' most valuable player and their top back while earning North Tri-County All-Conference honors.

Red Lake County Central coach Gary Brantl also announced that the 1991 Mustang Award went to senior Ron Engesether, while two other awards featured co-recipients – seniors Jay Malwitz and Ryan Bjerklie as the top linemen, junior Joe Lallier and sophomore Adam Lundeen as the most improved.

Malwitz and Bjerklie joined Kolstoe on the North Tri-County All-Conference team, while senior Bernie DeHate was given honorable mention status.

The Mustangs went 4-6 this fall, 2-5 in the North Tri-County Conference. Red Lake County Central opened with a 38-6 win over Laporte, then dropped three straight decisions to Fisher-Climax 20-6, Ulen-Hitterdahl 38-6 and Kelliher-Northome 26-14 before coming out a winner in a high-scoring shoot-out with Clearbrook-Gonvick 56-52. The Mustangs finished the regular season schedule with a 36-22 loss to Norman County West, an 8-6 win over Red Lake and an 18-6 setback at the hands of eventual Section 6 Nine-Man champion Win-E-Mac.

With the Okiee/Plummer cooperative surpassing the Minnesota State High School League enrollment figures for Nine-Man play, Red Lake County Central was bumped into Class C for post-season competition, where the Mustangs began sectional play with an 8-7 victory over Blackduck before losing to Fertile-Beltrami 40-0 in the semifinals.

Kolstoe led the Mustangs in scoring and rushing this fall with eight touchdowns, 50 points and 719 yards. He started the year at quarterback before being switched to runningback, where he set a Red Lake County Central single-game record with a 227-yard outing.

Scott Lorenson, a 5-10, 210-pound freshmen, stepped in as quarterback three weeks into the season and passed for 653 yards, including a RLCC single-game record 230 yard performance.

Malwitz was the Mustangs' top receiver with 16 catches for 242 yards, while sophomore Paul Melby set a RLCC record with a 67-yard touchdown pass reception.

Another Mustangs record set this fall was a 65-yard kickoff return for a touchdown by sophomore Shannon Willett.

Kolstoe led the Red Lake County Central defense with 68 tackles, while DeHate had 65, Bjerklie 58 and junior Jamie Hruby 51.

"We had mixed feelings when we were done," offered Brantl. "We don't like losing seasons, but the coaching staff was very pleased with the effort. We had some outstanding individuals efforts over the course of the season, and we had some fun. We won our homecoming game, we had that wild game with Clearbrook-Gonvick and we had just an outstanding playoff game effort against Blackduck."

And the Mustangs did it with an almost entirely new cast since they had just one starter back on offense and two returning on defense when the 1991 season got underway.

It took a while, too, to get adjusted offensively when two juniors who were expected to compete for the starting quarterback job were not on hand – one because of an injury, while the second decided to give up the sport.

The coaches were a little reluctant to hand the quarterbacking over to a freshman right off the bat, so Kolstoe, more adapted for a runningback spot, wound up behind center until Lorenson was deemed ready.

When the switch was made, the Red Lake County Central offense started rolling.

"Eric did a great job carrying the ball, and Scott, for a freshman, did an outstanding job for us," explained Brantl. "He made some mistakes, which you have to expect from a freshman quarterback, but he did some nice things, too."

And while the pieces fit together in the backfield, the offensive line developed into a solid unit, too, said Brantl, citing the play of Malwitz, a third-year starter at tight end, Bjerklie and junior Mike Nelson at tackles, junior Gus Vettleson at center and Melby at an end.

Defensively the Mustangs gave up some points this fall, but they didn't lack effort, pointed out Brantl. While Kolstoe was racking up the tackles at linebacker, defensive linemen like DeHate, Bjerklie and Malwitz turned in solid performances.

Number-wise, graduation losses will be minimal this time around, although the quality of the players leaving will be missed, acknowledged Brantl, who looks for the Mustangs' strong 1991 freshmen and sophomores classes to be valuable assets to the 1992 Red Lake County Central efforts. "We think we have some people who will fill in and do a good job for us," he said. "Losing somebody like Eric leaves a big hole, but we've got a good bunch of kids coming up. We should be okay."

Slow Drains?

You'll never have a slow running or clogged drain again!

The secret? Clean drains don't run slow. Slow drains, or periodic clogs, are signals that a thick layer of "gook" is choking your pipes. This gook coats the entire length of your pipe, from sink to sewer or septic.

Conventional drain openers cannot remove this build up. Even a small tunnel through the waste lets them flow through the pipe, leaving the gook behind!

Now, with just a few minutes each month, you can easily clean out your pipes like new — and KEEP them clean with Plumb Clean. Its totally unique formula clings and penetrates deep into the gook. That allows it to liquefy even years of build up. Plumb Clean will clean the entire length of your pipes. It will make your drains run like new, when used as directed. This penetrating action is so revolutionary, Plumb Clean is money back guaranteed!

Save Money. A 1 lb. container of Plumb Clean holds up to 41 drain treatments. Even if drain openers could fix slow drains, you would have to buy over 10 quart bottles to get the same number of treatments. Plumb Clean costs about 35¢ per treatment. We don't know of anything that cleans drains for less.

Safety. Conventional drain openers are dangerous chemicals. They can injure eyes on contact. They can release deadly vapors, in some situations. Some may damage your fixtures. Plumb Clean will not burn skin, or eyes. It will not release harmful fumes. When used as directed, it is 100% safe for people, and of course all plumbing.

So, if your drains are signalling you, get safe, guaranteed Plumb Clean today! Available at:

system and general aviation representatives to increase skills and numbers of airframe and powerplant (A&P) graduates. Objective was to have a larger supply of mechanics trained to meet the needs of air carriers and general aviation repair and maintenance facilities.

Hoff added that the technical colleges at Thief River Falls, Winona and Minneapolis which operate A&P programs have been working together to develop a common curriculum. Having such a curriculum would permit students to transfer more easily among the programs and would provide firms hiring the graduates to know what training students have received at all of the facilities.

Invited to participate in the quarterly meeting at Thief River Falls Wednesday, Hoff said, were Wade Padrnos, director of the non-destructive testing program taught at Hutchinson technical college and Bill Bahe, avionics director at the Alexandria technical college. He said efforts are being made arrange a procedure to permit graduates of A&P programs to take one year of the two-year non-destructive testing program in Hutchinson and graduate from that program with specialties in aviation.

Hoff said he is also working on identifying all of the many high school aviation courses being offered in the state with a view toward holding at least an annual meeting of the instructors in those programs with instructors from the post-secondary programs.

He also said that he doesn't believe aviation needs to be an exclusive program in the schools but information about it can be incorporated into other subject areas. Printed materials and videos from the FAA are available to schools through the state Office of Aeronautics.

The state has also produced a 15-minute video for high school students called "The Sky Is The Limit" which is intended to make students aware of approximately 50 career fields available in aviation. The video is being shown on a test basis and after critique and modification will likely be available for general use state-wide next spring.

"Demise of some long-standing names in the aviation industry has been in the news in the past few years," Hoff said, "and that may have dampened some enthusiasm for aviation as a career. Despite those circumstances, however, with even fewer airlines operating, there will be more planes in the sky and more jobs in the industry in the future than ever before.

"And those planes will include an aging fleet which will require more maintenance as well as new planes which will require knowledge of new technology. The challenges will be great and education programs in Minnesota should be, and are, preparing to meet them."

compared with net earnings of $9,615,000 or 82 cents per share for the first six months of fiscal 1991. Weighted average shares outstanding for the first half of fiscal 1992 and 1991 were 12,687,000 and 11,746,000 respectively.

"We are pleased with our second quarter results," noted Chris Twomey, president and chief executive officer of Arctco. "During the first six months of fiscal 1992 we continued our planned shift in seasonal earnings patterns by providing earlier shipments to dealers and distributors of products typically delivered in the third quarter.

"Accordingly," he said, "we expect that our third quarter fiscal 1992 revenues and earnings will reflect this shift. We expect fiscal 1992 year-end results to remain in line with company expectations."

For the second quarter of fiscal 1992 cost of goods sold was $57,438,000, leaving a gross profit of $22,006,000. Selling, general and administrative expenses of $4,901,000 left and operating profit of $17,105,000. Deduction of net interest expense of $546,000 left earnings before income taxes of $16,559,000. Income taxes totaled $5,630,000, resulting in net earnings of $10,929,000.

Sen. LaRoy Stumpf and Dr. Orlay Gunderson dig in during groundbreaking ceremonies for a $2.8 million hangar at the Technical College's aviation maintenance school located at the regional airport in Thief River Falls. The ceremonies were held Wednesday afternoon. It was attended by a large number of people who were involved in growth at the school.

Students can choose

Success in today's world is very dependent on quality education. Because children vary in their needs and interests, there is no one school that is best for all of them. An environment where one child may sparkle and achieve may be quite different for another child.

To help learners reach their fullest potential, the Minnesota Legislature has adopted several programs which provide children and their parents with a choice of schools or education programs. Parents are encouraged to look into schools to decide which education program will best meet their child's needs by visiting schools and asking questions of teachers, students, and administrators.

"Enrollment options (choice) programs make our education system more flexible and responsive to diversity among children and give parents the opportunity to be more involved in their child's education," said Commissioner of Education Gene Mammenga. "I encourage parents to think about what they want in a school and investigate to make sure their school is providing for those needs."

Two guides are available to help in the selection of a school: "How to Pick Your Child's School" may be obtained by calling your local district office; and "How to Select a School for your Child: A Family Guide" is available by calling the enrollment options hotline: 1-800-652-9747 (Greater Minnesota).

Families and learners may choose from the following enrollment options programs:

Post secondary enrollment options allows 11th and 12th graders to attend, full or part-time, a technical college, a community college, a private, liberal college or university, any of the state universities, or a private, non-profit two-year trade or technical school granting associate degrees for high school credit. Students must meet the requirements of that post-secondary institution. Students should work with their high school counselor to insure the courses taken will meet graduation requirements.

School district enrollment options or open enrollment permits kindergarten through 12th grade students to apply to attend a school outside the district in which they live. Applications must be received by the non-resident district before January 15 for enrollment the following fall. Accepted students must agree to attend the new district for one full year. School districts with desegregation plans require that applications be sent to the home district first for approval to leave, before it is sent onto the non-resident district. Applications into or out of Duluth, Minneapolis, or St. Paul may be made at anytime and enrollment may begin at anytime.

High School graduation incentives program is designed to encourage learners, who are having difficulty in school or who have dropped out of school, to complete their high school credits in alternative settings. Qualifying students may attend another traditional high school inside or outside their district, an Area Learner Center, an Alternative School or program, or a non-profit, non-public school which has been contracted by a district to provide non-sectarian educational services.

Diploma opportunities for adults encourages individuals aged 21 or older, who have not completed high school to return to get their diplomas. Qualifying person shave up to two years of free state aid to finish their requirements. Many of the sam programs available under High School Graduation Incentives are available to adults.

Area Learning Centers provide year-round, non-traditional education toward a high school diploma for students 12 years of age through adult on a full- or part-time basis. Students develop, with an instructor, learning plans which best fits their course needs and learning style.

Public and private alternative programs personalize the education of learners at risk of not completing high school. Classes are taught using non-traditional methods and allow for flexible scheduling. These programs operate during the school day and year.

Education programs for minor parents and pregnant minors are designed to ensure teens, who are pregnant or parents, complete their high school education. When requested, educational programs which fit the needs of the individual must be made available, by the school district, along with any necessary supportive services.

For more information about these enrollment options programs visit your school or district office, or you may contact the Enrollment Options Hotline, in Greater Minnesota 1-800-652-9747.

Money could aid curriculum

plied rather

"It was our purpose to review curriculum and facilities, not personnel performance," Dulski said at a press conference for local media Wednesday afternoon prior to an exit meeting with administration and faculty. He said his final report will be returned to Olson and Mrs. Young as co-chairs of the local committee, perhaps as soon as two weeks from the end of the audit.

Dulski commended the good atmosphere and climate in the school which he said showed up time and time again. He said the staff—including secretaries, custodians, support personnel and others as well as faculty and administration—was extremely supportive, cohesive and worked well together. He also said he found a good deal of pride in program and performance and strong community support.

A central point in the audit was the school philosophy which served as a basis for looking at programs. To no great surprise, he said, it was found that many times that philosophy was not adhered to, a common situation at many schools.

Lincoln has some areas that are extremely strong, he said, and he specifically mentioned the well-equipped weight room, mathematics and science facilities, and English—particularly the writing program. He said the emphasis on writing showed itself across the entire curriculum.

"The facility serves some departments well," he said. "The media center—which we used to call the library—is very good, the science department is modern and well-equipped, physical education facilities inside the building are good, bus service is well organized and the Alternative Learning Center is a good option for students who find that Lincoln doesn't meet the needs of all kids."

Dulski said that many learning styles are addressed at Lincoln and that there is great flexibility in many programs with opportunities for students to explore and succeed and were individual difficulties can be addressed.

Music facilities are lacking, he said, and the social studies program is spread throughout the building making it difficult for faculty to easily share and coordinate. Outside physical education facilities are lacking, especially in the areas of tennis and track.

From a facility standpoint itself, there are some rooms where temperature appears to be difficult to control and others where ventilation and noise factors are problems. He said he would be more specific in his final report.

If there is a weakness in the curriculum, he said, it is in the lack of coordination from kindergarten through grade 12 in specific subject areas. More in-service for faculty in those areas is needed, he said—again a situation which calls for the investment of time and money.

Dulski also said that in some departments textbooks were a problem, both in lack of numbers and in being outdated. Budgetary needs are evident in some areas, he said, and the need to provide in-service for staff needs to be reviewed. Need for storage area in some departments was also noted.

"One of my recommendations would have to be the adding of staff or the addition of hours to existing staff—custodial and secretarial as well as instructional," he said.

"We all understand the budget constraints that have been placed on schools, but your staff is stretched to the limit and budget cuts have had a direct impact on the students of this district."

He said that the "tech prep" concept required by the state legislature appears to be poorly understood as it relates to effect on the curriculum. This is another area where in-service for staff would be worthwhile.

Looking to the future, Dulski said the district can expect growth in the student population "at risk," those who are failing or having personal problems that will cause them to leave school. More attention will need to be given to these students, he said.

He acknowledged the "clamor by the public for change" and the general dissatisfaction of the public which is demanding a level of achievement by students before they are permitted to graduate.

The public must be involved in education, Dulski said, and the state must be willing to put money in to achieve outcome based education. The challenge to the school district, he said, is that it will need to spend some money.

Dulski thanked the district and the people at Lincoln for their cooperation and hospitality during the audit team visit, and he commended them for their interest in the school's improvement and their pride and positive attitude.

Young and Olson in turn thanked Dulski and the audit team for their sincere effort and many long hours of work.

The North Central program is about a seven-year cycle of self-evaluation, audit, recommendations and implementation. Lincoln has been a long-standing member of the association.

Applications taken for waterbank

Landowners in Pennington county can enroll wetlands in a 10-year program and receive an annual payment, according to Al Gustafson of the Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation district.

The rules require that wetlands be either Type 3, 4 or 5 and the landowner must also offer some adjacent land for nesting cover.

Payment rate for the wetland area is $10 per acre. The rate for adjacent land depends on the soil type and the established corn yield on that farm.

Contact the soil and water conservation district office at 1305 Dale Street in Thief River Falls or call 681-3348 for details.

Groundbreaking Wednesday for aviation hangar

we are, then we must continue to work together.

Gary Hook, senior vice president for the Midwest Division of Kraus-Anderson Construction company, said construction will begin with cutting out 20-foot wide footing lines in the asphalt Thursday or Friday. The lines will then be covered with straw and plastic sheeting to protect the ground from freezing. About February 15, the excavation will begin.

So many people were congratulating each other because the project had been four years in getting to this point. It had survived budget cuts and high bids.

Aviation maintenance is one of the fast growing occupations in the United States. Students graduating from the mainentnace aviation program can expect good jobs — jobs that pay starting wages of between $7 and $16 per hour.

Currently there are about 530 full-time equivlant students enrolled in the program. With the addition of a hangar the school will be able to have as many as 800 students attending the school. With an increase in the number of students, more teachers will have to be hired. Currently there are 23 instructors at the school. The school will have to hire additional teachers if more students begin attending the school. The school sets the equation at 25 students per teacher.

And of course, with the addition of students and teachers, the school is already looking at further expansion. Officials at the school are not expecting the demand for aviation mechanics to drop off. Al Mickelson, director aviation, said demand has leveled off but projects are that in 1995 there won't be enough aviation mechanics to fill demand.

Such an increase will certainly have an impact on the community, which is why so many people are involved in the growth process at the school.

Golf course expansion

in the community can be proud of," he said, "a course that can help the community by attracting players from a wide area. Golfers who travel to play golf want to play 18-hole courses.

"But we also want to be sure that everyone who wants to play golf can afford to play in the community. We are hopeful that membership costs will not have to be raised substantially and that green fees paid by visiting golfers will help pay for increased operational costs. We don't want golf to be an elitist game in Thief River Falls."

Currently the membership fee has been about $255 for individual members annually, slightly over $300 for couples and slightly under $400 for families.

The club has about 280 playing units (individuals, couples or families) with about 600 to 650 golfers.

Because the course expansion will not involve the existing course, the club can remain in normal operation during construction. With the major construction work to be done during 1992, members of the expansion committee are projecting that the new nine holes could be ready for play in mid to late season 1993.

The first golf course was built in the 1920s with the club officially formed June 17, 1922. It was rerouted to its present form about 1950 and the present clubhouse was built in 1969. Several years remain on the mortgage for the clubhouse.

Under arrangements made between the golf club and City of Thief River Falls the city will become the owner of the property. The golf club will lease the course from the city and operate and maintain it, and will serve as the construction manager for the city.

"The city has an existing parks and recreation department and engineering expertise which are of value to the club," Kays said. "All contributions to the expansion program will go to the city, although the city will not be involved in fund raising or debt payment. This project will be accomplished at no cost to the taxpayer."

Cash donations, pledges payable over a four-year period and promises of in-kind donations such as equipment use now total more than $550,000. Fund raising efforts will continue and if funds exceed the basic expansion costs they will be expended on other course improvements.

Members of the expansion committee in addition to Swenson and Kays include Roger Reuter, Bob Bridges, Dwight Tangquist, Sami Haj, Ston Upham, Darrell Bakke, Ames Grisanu, Gordon L. Peterson, Roger Tunberg, Tam Williams, Bob Dondelinger, Dr. Earl Dagg and Wally Krueger.

Second grader Sarah Hultgren designed the Totally Awesome Behavior (TAB) button to be used during the school year at Washington elementary school in Thief River Falls. She is shown with Pat Beauchane, who is in charge of leadership at the school, and the toy dog she received as a prize for winning the contest. Each student at Washington receives one of the TAB buttons to wear each day but loses it for the day if he or she misbehaves. Mrs. Beauchane said the program has been very successful in making students aware of proper behavior. Sarah is the daughter of Robert and Nona Hultgren and a student of Mrs. Cindy Vennes.

School Dist. 564 negotiations hit snag on technical college

Negotiations for the 1991-1993 teacher's contract in School District 564 have stalled on the method of inclusion of faculty at the Thief River Falls technical college in the bargaining process.

At what had been scheduled as an all-day "marathon" negotiating session last Saturday at the Best Western inn, talks were discontinued about noon. Negotiators for the Thief River Falls Education Association (TRFEA) have insisted that the technical college faculty continues to be included on an equal basis in the bargaining unit. Representatives of the board of education have sought to handle the technical college on a separate basis due to its large budget deficits and pending merger with other post-secondary insitutions in the area.

At the time talks broke off Saturday, TRFEA representatives indicated they would submit a request for mediation services. It is the role of a mediator to attempt to facilitote agreement by proposing compromises and making other suggestions to reduce or eliminate differences. Mediation is voluntary and not binding.

In prior negotiations the TRFEA and the school district's negotiating team had reached agreement on a number of contract language issues. On Saturday both negotiating teams exchanged initial salary proposals.

According to School District 564 figures there are nearly 147 full-time equivalent (FTE) teachers in the kindergarten through grade 12 (K-12) area and just over 67 FTE teachers at the technical college for a total of 214. Full-time equivalency is used because there are a number of faculty members who do not teach on a full class schedule basis.

For the 1990-91 contract—under which salaries are currently being paid pending a new two-year contract—total annual teacher salaries have been computed at $4,708,286 for pre-school through grade 12 and $2,029,489 for the technical college for a total of $6,737,775.

In addition to the basic contract, the school district in 1990-91 paid $507,707 as its share of FICA (social security), $12,271 in basic Teachers Retirement Association (TRA) payments, $540,226 in coordinated TRA payments (exclusive of social security), $379,183 in health insurance premiums, $9,910 in term life insurance premiums and $39,725 in long-term disability insurance premiums.

Additional district expense involves $13,435 for summer school salaries, $36,425 for extra hours paid in K-12 instruction, $132,313 in salaries for co-curricular activities in K-12 (athletics and fine arts) and $1,012 in technical college activities.

The district's K-12 full-time equivalency lists 43 teachers at Lincoln senior high school, 35 at Franklin middle school, 14 at Knox elementary, 13 at Mark Twain elementary, 13 at Northrop elementary, 17 at Washington elementary, four in adult education and Early Childhood Family Education and eight at the Northwest Vocational Center (FTE numbers have been rounded off to the nearest full number).

MCC awaiting latest word on building school

Officials at School District 441 are awaiting written word from the office of Minnesota Commissioner of Education Gene Mammenga regarding their ability to rebuild Marshall County Central high school.

About three-fourths of the school was destroyed by fire November 7 and the commissioner indicated to the school administration soon afterward that he would not give permission for the school to be rebuilt.

Research by the Minnesota Attorney General's office since that indication by the education commissioner has discovered law which permits emergency reconstruction of schools lost to disaster. Jack Tunheim, Minnesota's assistant Attorney General, is a native of Newfolden and a graduate of Marshall county Central.

According to Supt. Gene Busch, the law providing for emergency rebuilding permits only replacement of facilities lost. It will not allow expenditure of district funds other than insurance proceeds nor will it allow any significant changes in facilities to be built. The law also permits construction of replacement facilities by taking price quotes rather than conducting a formal bid process. The district is reportedly covered by up to $7 mil-

Disbarment is recommended for TRF lawyer

Supreme Court Referee David E. Christensen has recommended that Robert D. Stroble, an attorney in Thief River Falls, be disbarred.

The recommendation that Stroble be disbarred follows a complaint of Stroble's handling of funds and accounting in the estate and guardianship of Ann C. Brezney and Julienne Brezney on March 14, 1991. Respondent was also alleged to have mishandled funds in two trusts established for Geneva Overum, as well.

Most of the funds misappropriated by Stroble have been repaid. An estimated $83,475.24 has been repaid. An estimated $4,580.22, claimed in fees and expenses, remains in dispute.

Christensen, who was appointed as the Supreme Court referee, concluded that Stroble had violated several Minnesota Rules of Professional conduct. As a result of his conclusions, Christensen recommended that Stroble be disbarred.

In his memorandum after his recommendation, Christensen said that it was with regret that he makes the recommendation for disbarment. He said he has a certain amount of sympathy for Stroble, but the conduct of Stroble was of such a serious nature that he believes disbarment is appropriate.

The clerk of court with the Supreme court and Court of Appeals said only that the findings of the referee had been filed with the Supreme court and no action has been taken as of yet.

An investigation into possible criminal charges against Stroble is being conducted by the Bureau of Criminal Apprehension.

Drive-by shooting investigated

Police in Thief River Falls are investigating a drive-by shooting which took place Wednesday evening.

According to a police spokesperson, police received a report of a shooting in Greendale Manor trailer court at 11:40 p.m. Wednesday. Two men were sitting in a living room area when they heard an explosion they first thought was caused by fireworks. They then noticed that a bullet had passed about eight inches above a window through a wall and into the ceiling of the residence. A vehicle was noticed leaving east and then south.

Police dug a bullet slug from the ceiling and are investigating the incident.

New Sports Arena floor springs leaks

Park dept. hopes floor will last until spring

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Park and recreation department personnel in Thief River Falls are hoping they can nurse the new Sports Arena through until Spring. Brine leaks in areas outside of the main floor have been discovered and may result in the replacement of the entire floor.

Thief River Falls city council learned of the problems at the sports arena, and discussed a sewer rate increase, the purchase of additional land at the golf course and a letter of support for a proposed congregate housing project for seniors Tuesday night.

"We can no longer call it the 'new' arena," concluded Mayor Bob Carlson.

The sports arena at the fairgrounds has been called the new arena ever since it was built more than 20 years ago. But time has taken its toll on the arena. In 1989 13 brine leaks were repaired, and now more leaks have been discovered.

Mike Mongoven, department director, explained that the brine leaks were caused, in all probability, by moisture getting beneath the floor causing corrosion to take place on some of the pipes. Though Mongoven doesn't know whether there are leaks under the main floor, they are thinking about taking out a section of the floor next spring to look at the pipes in the floor. Mongoven said that it might mean the whole floor may have to be replaced. One estimate he provided councilmen with was $100,000, which is much less than they were led to believe it would cost earlier.

Mongoven presented the information to the city council so that they were aware of the problem and if the floor has to be replaced next spring to be prepared for an adjustment to the city's budget. Mongoven said they "hope to nurse it through till spring and hope they don't have to come back with bad news."

■ A sewer service rate increase has been proposed by the utilities committee.

The council is considering a sewer rate increased proposed by the utilities committee. The rate increase would raise about $40,000 for the sewer department and add about .50 to the service charge residential customers are already paying. It would also increase charges paid by other users as well, including business and industry.

Arlo Rude, utilities department supervisor explained that the rate increase was necessary to offset a budget deficit of $22,000, and for a cancer answers

For local assistance, please call Claudetta Forsberg at 681-2311 or Julie Desrocher at 681-2315.

Q: I was recently diagnosed with cancer of the cervix. I have two children, aged nino and 12. How can I explain what's wrong in a way they can understand?

A: It is difficult to deal with a complex disease at any age, and children especially may experience a wide variety of feelings including fear, sadness, confusion and anger. It is important that you explain your illness clearly and simply, in language they will understand. You may want to speak to them separately at first, if their levels of understanding are different.

It is very important for you to be honest with your children because they have a right to know about significant family matters such as this. Givs them a chanca to talk about their feelings. It is important that your children understand that the feelings they have are never wrong. It may be hard for them to accept your illness. Or they may even have fealings of guilt that they said, thought, or did something that made you sick. Be sure to leave them with feelings of hope that although this is a difficult time, better times are ahead. Make sure they know they will always be loved and cared for.

A serious disease like cancer can greatly change family life, especially if you need to travel to another city or state to get treatments and are gone often. Children may feel lonely and left out, and even jealous that you are getting so much attention. They may feel embarrassed about your illness and they may not know how to act around their friends at school who know about your disease. It will be helpful if there are other people to support and listen to your children when it is difficult for you to do so. Grandparents and family members, neighbors, teachers, coaches, religious figures, doctors, nurses or counselors can be called upon to help.

Q: Is it true that using chewing tobacco or snuff is not as harmful as smoking cigarettes?

A: Although it is well known that smoking is dangerous and can cause cancer, many people are not aware that smokeless tobacco can also be dangerous. Ads can make it seem as though chewing and dipping are safer than smoking, but there are risks involved in these habits, too.

Chewing involves placing a golf-ball wad of tobacco in the pouch of the cheek and sucking on it. Dipping means placing a pinch of tobacco (snuff) between the teeth and the lower lip where it stimulates and mixes with the flow of saliva.

Because many well-known people or personal friends use smokeless tobacco, adolescents may be drawn to it as a safe, socially acceptable alternative to cigarette smoking. However, most people do not think that sucking on a large wad of tobacco or spitting out tobacco juice is very appealing. Also, smokeless tobacco causes bad breath, dental problems and, if used for long enough, even cancer. This habit is neither safe, nor will it improve your image.

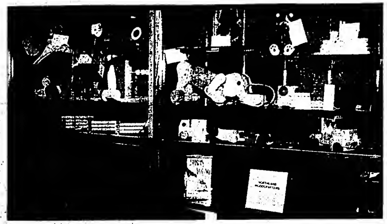
Smokeless tobacco does not carry a health hazard warning, but it does contain nicotine and other carcinogens which are habit-forming and can cause cancer. Oral cancers occur more often among people who use smokeless tobacco than those who do not, and long term chewing and dipping increase the risk of cancer of the cheeks and gums. Many smokeless tobacco users experience leukoplakia, or leathery white patches inside the mouth. These are caused by direct contact with, and continued irritation by, tobacco juice. Another problem may be a decreased sensitivity to taste and smell, causing greater use of salt and sugar, excessive use of which can also cause harm to the mouth and body.

The bottom line is simply to stay away from chewing, dipping and all other forms of tobacco use. Their risks outweigh any temporary high you can experience from them.

Q: If I find a lump in my breast, does it mean that I have cancer?

A: Discovering a lump can be scary and only a doctor can tell whether a lump is cancerous or benign, but 8 of 10 breast lumps are not cancerous. There are several common kinds of benign (non-cancerous) breast lumps.

The most common condition associated with benign breast lumps is cystic disease, which is also called fibrocystic breast disease or chronic cystic mastitis. These lumps or cysts are fluid-filled sacs that often enlarge and become tender and painful just before the menstrual period. Cystic disease usually occurs in women 35 to 50 years of age and tends to involve both breasts. Cysts most commonly develop in the portion of the breast closest to the armpit, and they are movable. Large cysts feel round and firm.



By practicing monthly breast exams, you will learn how your breasts normally feel. If you feel a lump that you have not felt during an earlier exam, especially if it does not disappear following the end of your menstrual period, see your doctor right away. If cancer is detected early and treated promptly, the chances for cure are best. For additional information on breast lumps, call the Cancer Response System at 1-800-ACS-2345.

Cancer Answers are produced by the American Cancer Society in cooperation with the Mayo Comprehensive Cancer Center.

Q: If I have regular check-ups and examine my breasts every month, why should I have a mammogram?

A: A mammogram can provide detection of breast cancers too small to be discovered by you or your physician. Mammography also shows other changes in breast tissue that could represent a sign of very early cancer. If you have no symptoms or family history of breast cancer, the American Cancer Society recommends that a baseline mammogram be done between the ages of 35 and 40 for later comparison if needed. Between the ages of 40 and 49, a mammogram is recommended every year or two depending on your physician's advice, and annually after the age of 50.

Remember, the earlier breast cancer is discovered, and the smaller it is at the time of discovery, the better the chance for cure.

Central high school choir to host Madrigal dinner

Crookston — The Christmas season will be heralded by cries of "Wassail, Wassail" as the Central high school concert choir hosts its fourth annual Madrigal dinner December 7 and 8 at the Bede hall ballroom on the campus of the University of Minnesota, Crookston. Plans are in full swing to recreate all the pomp and charm of Renaissance England with beggars and musicians mingling with the guests, offering their yuletide greetings in song. A court jester, town crier and cast of vagabond actors will add wit and royal humor to the occasion. (Crookston Daily Times)

Safety officers make county board aware of courthouse problems

Kittson County — Recent inspections of the courthouse by both the county's insurer and the two safety officers have turned up several facility problems that could result in OSHA fines if not remedied soon. Engineer Tom Kozojed and courthouse safety officer Bob Laude did not know how much the changes would cost the county. Most of the problems are electrical, because OSHA will dine counties using extension cords, cheaters, etc. Solutions include adding more outlets and power poles, using power strips and rearranging furniture. (Kittson County Enterprise)

Angle Inlet school to stay open

Angle Inlet — The school board voted not to close the Angle Inlet school, the only one-room school in the state, for the remainder of this year, following a public hearing Monday. At present there are four students at the school with total cost for keeping the school approximately $50,000 this year. Several Angle residents pointed out the high amount of taxes they pay, $147,000, each year as a comparison with the cost of the school. Residents also pointed out that there are now 75 permanent residents in the area, with growth from 32 in 1979 largely due to the presence of the school. (Warroad Pioneer)

Pitt post office will close December 1

Pitt — The Pitt post office will have its final official day of business November 30, with all mail for the town six miles west of Baudette to be distributed from that community's post office. The Pitt post office, which has been operating for 88 years, is the third to close in Lake of the Woods county in the past 15 years. Only the post offices in Baudette and Williams remain. The Pitt zip code however will remain in use for the time being. Fourteen families or individuals now hold mail boxes at Pitt and there are another 45 patrons on a rural route. (Baudette Region)

Questions And Answers

Social Security Responds

Q. Why was proof of identity needed to replace my lost Social Security card? Can't you verify the information I give you from agency records?

A. Your Social Security number (SSN) is valuable and checking recent forms of identity is a safety precaution to protect the accuracy of your earnings record. Since many businesses now maintain records based on your SSN it is even more vital to prevent your SSN from getting into the wrong hands.

All types of employment, private and public sector, have aspects of work never realized by their customers. One of several investigative items that Social Security employees do is that of checking documentation submitted to get a SSN. This summer a Social Security employee in the Grafton Office worked with Immigration and Border Patrol officials on a case involving allegedly forged documents to obtain a Social Security number. Five arrests resulted.

If you were born in the U.S. and have never had a Social Security number, you must complete the application (SS-5) and show documents that show your age, citizenship, and who you are. Usually, all we need from you are: Your birth certificate; and some form of identity, such as a driver's license, school record, or medical record. If you were born outside the U.S., you must also show proof of U.S. citizenship or lawful alien status. We must see original documents or certified copies. Uncertified photocopies are not acceptable.

To replace a card all we usually need is the application and identification.

If you already have a number, but need to change your name on our records, we need the SS-5 and a document that identifies you by both your old and new names. Examples include a marriage certificate, a divorce decree or a court order that changex your name.

All SSN activity can be completed by mail or in person. There is never a fee charged for any Social Security business.

Q. I just got a letter saying that the Social Security Administration was going to collect an old overpayment from my tax refund nest year. I have not received Social Security for years. is this for real?

A. Believe it. The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 provided authority for Social Security to use Tax Refund Offset (TRO) in collecting delinquent debts and over the past few weeks the agency has notified former beneficiaries with outstanding overpayments of planned tax refund withholding.

Basic case characteristics are that:

The debts are owed by former Social Security (not Supplemental Security Income) beneficiaries with unpaid, legally defined overpayments for which Social Security has terminated collection efforts; ie, writeoffs.

The writeoffs occurred because the debtors refused to cooperote, were financially unable to repay or could not be located.

Debtors are selected for TRO according to the following criteria:

- Debtor is at least 18 years old,
- Debt is greater than $100;
- Debt has been delinquent for at least 3 months and no more than 10 years;
- Debtor is no longer receiving benefits; and
- Debtor is alive (per Social Security records).

National profiles of contacted debtors show that the former beneficiaries received benefit types as follows:

- Student/child benefits: 72% (These people are now mostly in the 26-35 age range.)
- Disabled wage earners: 12%
- Widowed mother/father (received benefits because of minor children at home): 11%
- Other: 5%

In the past Social Security could ask for voluntary repayment but had little means of enforcing debt collection from former beneficiaries until the person again became eligible for monthly benefits which might not have occurred for many years.

For fiscal year 1991, and again in 1993, projections are that recovery of overpayments by TRO will return to the Social Security trust funds $47 million.

Collections of $47 million equate to providing benefits to over 4,000 family units in one year (based on a family unit receiving average annual benefits of $12,000).

State prepares unemployed for benefit extension

"While Congress is nearing agreement on a compromise bill to extend unemployment benefits, this department is preparing to administer the extension program as promptly as possible after it is law." Commissioner R. Jane Brown of the Minnesota Department of Jobs and Training announced.

"We also would like to clarify that because Minnesota's unemployment rate is one of the lowest in the country, the extended benefits will cover a period of either six or seven weeks, depending on which version of the bill is finally passed," Brown said.

Brown added that while some states anticipate delays in getting payments underway, Jobs and Training has a system ready to ensure prompt payments to Minnesota's eligible people.

All those potentially eligible will be notified by letter after the extended benefits bill takes effect. The letter will contain instructions on filing for the extended benefits in local area offices.

People are reminded that to be eligible their original claim must have been filed on or after November 18, 1990, and they must be currently unemployed through no fault of their own and available for work.

The details of the final bill are not yet available.

Soupçon

By Sherry LaCoursiere

Now the question is what to do with all of those holiday leftovers. Here are some good ways to use them once your family has had its fill of turkey sandwiches and microwaved mashed potatoes.

Make this recipe up in a hurry and make everyone happy:

Quick Turkey Curry

1/4 cup chopped onion
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 (10 ounce) can cream of mushroom soup
1/4 cup milk
1 cup dairy sour cream
1/2 teaspoon curry powder
1 cup cubed, cooked turkey or chicken parsley for garnish

Cook onion in butter. Add soup and milk and heat and stir until smooth. Stir in sour cream and curry powder, then turkey or chicken.

Garnish with parsley and serve with fluffy hot rice and small dishes of chutney, raisins, toasted silvered almonds, diced green onion and mixed pickles.

Use your leftover mashed potatoes like this:

Hot Deviled Potatoes

Leftover mashed potatoes (enough to serve 4), heated slightly
1/2 cup dairy sour cream
2 teaspoons mustard
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon sugar
2 tablespoons chopped onion

Heat sour cream (do not boil). Add mustard, salt and sugar and stir to blend. Mix into heated potatoes with onion.

Place in greased 1-quart casserole, sprinkle with paprika, and bake about 10 minutes at 350 degrees.

These tasty treats won't taste like leftovers:

Turkey Croquettes

3 tablespoons butter
1/4 cup flour
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup turkey or chicken broth
1 tablespoon parsley, snipped
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated onion
1/4 teaspoon salt
dash of paprika, nutmeg and pepper
1 1/2 cups finely diced, cooked turkey salt to taste
3/4 cup fine bread or cracker crumbs
1 egg
2 tablespoons water

Melt butter. Blend in flour and then milk and broth. Cook and stir until mixture thickens and bubbles. Cook 1 minute.

Add parsley, lemon juice, onion, salt, paprika, nutmeg and pepper. Cool and then add turkey and salt to taste. Chill thoroughly.

With wet hands, shape mixture into 8 balls, consisting of a scant 1/4 cup each. Roll in crumbs and shape into cones. Dip in mixture of 1 beaten egg and 2 tablespoons water and roll in crumbs again.

Fry in deep fat heated to 365 degrees for 1 1/2 to 3 minutes. Drain.

This is a quick casserole you can make for a crowd with your cooked turkey leftovers:

Turkey-Noodle Bake

1 1/2 cups milk
1 (10 ounce) can cream of mushroom soup
3 beaten eggs
3 ounces (2 cups) fine noodles, cooked and drained
2 cups cubed cooked turkey
1 cup soft bread crumbs
4 ounces shredded cheese
1/4 cup chopped green pepper
1/4 cup butter or margarine
2 tablespoons pimento

Blend all ingredients together and pour into greased 12x7 baking dish.

Bake at 350 degrees for about 40 minutes, until knife inserted off center comes out cleanly. Serve by cutting into squares.

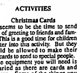
Make the very last of the leftover turkey into this dish:



Turkey Hash

1 1/2 cups coarsely ground cooked turkey
1 cup cubed cooked potato
1 (small size) can evaporated milk (2/3 cup)
1/4 cup finely chopped parsley
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon ground sage
dash pepper
1/4 cup finely crushed crackers
1 tablespoon butter or margarine.

Stir together turkey, potato, evaporated milk, parsley, onion, worcestershire sauce, salt, sage and pepper. Place mixture in greased one-quart casserole.

Toss cracker crumbs and butter and sprinkle over hash. Bake at 350 degrees until thoroughly heated, about 30 minutes.

TIMES FOR TODDLERS

ACTIVITIES

Christmas Cards

It seems to be the time to send cards of greeting to friends and family. This is a good time for children to enter into this activity. But they should be allowed to make their own cards to send to special people.

The equipment you will need is as varied as there are cards and children. Some of the things you may use are white paper, glue, markers, crayons, scissors, old Christmas cards, wrapping paper, gift wrapping ribbon and other "pretty" items.

Then set your children at the table and let them be creative! Some children want suggestions, while others become very independent in their creations. This is also a very enjoyable activity for adults, so go ahead and try it with your child.

The Thief River Falls public library recommends these Christmas books for your reading enjoyment:

Baird, Anne. The Christmas Lamb. A young sheep who feels neglected at Christmas tries several attention-getting tactics, such as disguising himself as a reindeer, with unfortunate results.

Bemelmans, Ludwig. Madeline's Christmas. With everyone else sick in bed with a cold on Christmas Eve, it is up to Madeline to run the school and she finds a remarkable helper in a rug-selling magician.

Berenstain, Stan and Jan. The Bears' Christmas. Daddy Bear tries to show his son how to use the sled, skates and skis Santa brought for Christmas.

PARENTING TIPS

Presents or Presence: What makes kids happiest?

What kinds of presents will you give your children this Christmas? A lot of parents believe that the way to a child's heart is through the toy store. Manufacturers spend a lot of money on commercials to convince us (and our children) that this is true, but according to Growing Child Newsletter, June 1991, a survey of 87 college students says otherwise.

When asked what made them happiest as children, 89 percent mentioned simple, spontaneous activities shared with parents or a friend. A walk with a parent or a casual picnic was the sort of thing that was warmly remembered. Even though 87 is not a very large number, the results of this survey are worth noting.

When you shop for presents for your children this Christmas, be sure that your lists include things that promote "presence" with you and others! Your child wants and needs your time and attention.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

When you are spending time with your child, talk about what your child wants to talk about.

Ice contributes to accident

Glare ice contributed to an accident near Warren Tuesday. As a result of that accident one man was taken to United Hospital in Grand Forks, ND, with a back injury.

According to Mike Johnson of the Marshall County Sheriff's department, they received a report of an accident one mile west of Warren on Highway 1 at about 4:40 p.m. According to the accident report, Randy Allen Johnson, 24, Fargo, ND, was going west on Highway 1, when he lost control of his 1979 Chevrolet. The car spun around on the highway and collided with an east bound pickup driven by Jason Jon Zak, 21, East Grand Forks.

Johnson's vehicle was considered a total loss and Johnson was taken to Warren hospital by ambulance and later transferred to United Hospital in Grand Forks, ND, with what was believed to be a back injury. Zak was not injured but his 1979 Ford pickup sustained about $2,500 in damage.

Two vehicles in accident Tues.

Ice contributed to an accident one mile south of Thief River Falls on Highway 32 Tuesday.

Minnesota state patrol received a report of an accident 4:42 p.m. November 26 one mile south of Thief River Falls on Highway 32. According to the report, a 1981 Toyota sedan driven by Roger Delton Johnsrud, St. Hilaire was going south on Highway 32, when a 1978 Ford pickup driven by Tammy Jo Larson, Thief River Falls, was attempting to pass the Johnsrud vehicle. Larson lost control of the pickup she was driving and it struck the Johnsrud vehicle and both vehicles went into the ditch and rolled.

There were no injuries resulting from the accident. Both vehicles sustained only minor damage.

Drains Run Slow?
You'll never have a slow running, or clogged drain again! The secret? Clean drains don't run slow.
Slow drains, or periodic clogs, are SIGNALS that a thick layer of GOOK is choking your pipes. Grease, hair, and other waste stick to your pipes, with every use. This gook deposits along the entire length of the pipe. It chokes your pipes gradually, as it gets thicker and thicker.

Conventional drain openers can't fix slow drains. They react chemically on the surface of the gook. To be effective, they must remain in contact with the waste. Even a small tunnel through the gook lets them flow out to the sewer, leaving the gook behind.
In the past, the only way to remove this build-up was to root-er your pipes. An expensive, temporary measure.
Now with just a few minutes each month, you can easily clean out your pipes... and KEEP them clean with Plumb Clean. Its totally unique formula clings, and penetrates deep into the gook. That is what allows it to liquefy even years of build-up. Plumb Clean will clean the entire length of your pipes. It will make your drains run like new, when used as directed. This penetrating action is so revolutionary, we stand behind Plumb Clean with a money-back guarantee!
Saves Money. A 1 lb container of Plumb Clean holds up to 41 drain treatments. Even if drain openers could fix slow drains, it would take over 10 quart bottles to get the same number of treatments. Plumb Clean costs about 35¢ per treatment. We don't know of anything that cleans drains for less.
Safe Too. Conventional drain openers are dangerous chemicals. They can injure eyes on contact. They can release deadly vapors, in some situations. Some may damage your fixtures. Plumb Clean will not burn skin, or eyes. It will not release harmful fumes. When used as directed, it is 100% safe for people, and of course, all plumbing.
So, if your drains are giving you a SIGNAL, act now. Get safe, guaranteed Plumb Clean today!

Farmers Provide Food For Tables.... And For Thought

For most people across the United States yesterday was a feast day, a time to partake of the abundance and variety of food that is provided by the nation's farmers and others in the food industry from farm to retail store. Thanksgiving day has become synonymous with family gatherings featuring huge meals.

Just as the original meaning and purpose of the Thanksgiving observance sometimes gets lost in the bustle and bustle of the day, the role of the nation's farm population in providing the bounty that fills our tables is also frequently forgotten. Indeed, in many homes far removed from farms, knowledge of the origin of our food is virtually nil. Problems of production and pricing and care of the land and livestock are unknown.

To show the importance of agriculture to a selected few (who were probably well aware of it anyway), the Minnesota Department of Agriculture hosted a "Miracle of Abundance" luncheon November 21. There were slightly more than 100 people at the event—the approximate number that one farmer can feed for a year.

According to the Minnesota Agricultural Statistics Service the menu was largely geared to Minnesota foods. But in looking at it based on each dollar that goes back to the farm, the service figured that the American farmer's share of the meal for each person was as follows: Tossed garden greens, 26 cents; grilled pork, beef and turkey tenderloins, 62 cents; Minnesota wild rice, 7 cents; broccoli, 26 cents; butternut/acorn squash, 26 cents; rolls, 7 cents; apple strudel, 26 cents; and other, 15 cents. Not a bad meal for a buck ninety-five!

Even farmers who complain about their small share of the retail food dollar recognize the costs involved in shipping, handling, processing, packaging and marketing their production to get it to the consumer. In fact, U.S. processed food industries represent the largest manufacturing segment in the country with sales totaling nearly $400 billion a year.

Of course, it takes the producer to get the ball rolling—to provide the product to process. And anyone in the country who eats food should be concerned about the ability of that original source to continue providing the supply, producing the raw product that requires the services of about 19 million workers to transport, process, store and market.

Now here's a little extra food for thought. On a general basis, America's farmers receive about 24 cents of each dollar spent by consumers for farm-raised food. But they only get 16 cents of every dollar spent for prepared meals eaten away from the home.

In many restaurants the accepted norm is to "tip" the person who waits on the table 15 per cent of the cost of the meal. In other words, the person who takes the order and carries the food from the restaurant kitchen to the table receives nearly as much as the farmer for producing the food.

Chew on that for awhile.

Voter Turnout Rates Declining....Should We Be Concerned?

"There is speculation that apathy is a major problem in this election," the pollster said to a person he stopped on the street. "What is your view on voter apathy?"

"I don't know and I don't care," was the reply.

While this is probably a story made up for effect, there is more truth than fiction to the general attitude of those eligible to be voters in America. Voter apathy is a national disgrace in a country which prides itself on free elections and representative government.

In the 1990 Congressional elections, according to the U.S. Census Bureau, only 45 per cent of the nation's voting age population voted. Voter registration fell from 64 per cent in 1986 to 62 per cent in 1990.

What is particularly disturbing is the reluctance of young voters to exercise their voting responsibilities. Voter turnout among persons aged 18 to 24 was only 20 per cent—just one eligible voter in five going to the polls. College students had a 28 per cent voting rate in this age category. Those not attending college had a 17 per cent voting rate.

In the total population, 63 per cent of college graduates were voters, compared to 42 per cent of high school graduates and 28 per cent of those who completed only elementary school. Forty-five per cent of employed persons voted, only 28 per cent of those unemployed. Percentage of women voting moved slightly ahead of the percentage of men voting in the 1990 elections.

There may be a number of reasons for voter apathy, not the least of which is the selection of candidates offered as choices by the country's major political parties. It is a concern which must be addressed. Certainly little change will be effected in quality of government without a greater participation at the polls.

"IT'S A PUT ON"

In Colossians 3:10-14, it says: and have put on the new man, which is renewed in knowledge after the image of Him that created him.

Some would say I think they are just putting that on. Well, the fact is, Jesus wants us to put on bowels of mercies, kindness, humbleness of mind, meekness, longsuffering, forbearance, forgiveness, and Divine Love. You can see that this would make a great impact on your life and others.

The only way you can put on these things, is by giving your heart and your life to Jesus. Ask Jesus to come into your life and put on His image in you.

fund to make repairs or modifications to the wastewater ponds. The wastewater ponds will need repairs or modifications within the next three to four years. The Minnesota Pollution Control Agency, Rude said, is recommending cities start a fund to save money for anticipated repairs or expansions of wastewater treatment facilities. This is due to the loss of Federal money to help pay for wastewater treatment facilities.

Sewer rate increases since 1980 include a usage rate increase in 1980 and 1985, and service charge increase in 1984, 1985 and 1987.

The proposed rate increase, which will be considered by the council at its next meeting, would be applied to the service charge of each customer of the wastewater department.

■ The purchase of 10 additional acres of land for the golf course has been approved by the council.

As an agent for the golf course, the city approved the purchase of 10 acres of additional land for a driving range at the golf course. The purchase is expected to cost about $8,000, however, the money will come strictly from donations to a special fund that are on hand and have been set aside for the golf course.

■ The City Council has approved a letter of support for a developer proposing to build congregate housing for senior citizens.

Skip Duchesneau of O.W. Jones, Walker, presented a proposal to build congregate housing in Thief River Falls. Duchesneau explained that congregate housing for senior citizens, provides extra services but allows residents to live on their own. Included at the residence would be a barber/beauty shop, craft shop, commons, activity center and a kitchen. The project would be financed through the FmHA, which is why Duchesneau requested a letter of support. The council approved the request for a letter of support.

Duchesneau said the project could be built behind Pamida and Kordel's. He doesn't expect construction to begin until 1993 with occupancy opening in 1994.

In other business, the council: approved a variance request from David Sjorstrand, 503 Markley Ave. S. and for First National Bank of Middle River; accepted a report on the 1992-1997 capital improvements plan; approved leases with TRFAHA for use of concession stands at the old and new arenas; approved a recommendation to submit a pre-appliction for AIP funding for overlay of the runway, taxiway, apron area and update of master plan; called for bids on a new truck chassis and packer for the sanitation department; approved a gambling license for the American Legion; and approved a dance application from Ryan Walseth for a dance at the armory.

Negotiations stalled

The existing salary schedule for 1990-1991 shows a salary range from $19,100 for a first year teacher with a bachelor's degree to a maximum of $37,613 for a teacher with a master's degree plus 45 credits and 15 years or more of teaching experience. Average salary in the district for 1990-1991 was $31,485. The basic salary schedule is for a 185-day contract in K-12 and a 179-day contract at the technical college.

Of the district's 147 K-12 teachers, 86 are in the three salary lanes of BS+30, BS+45 or BS+60/MS and 62 of these 86 are at the maximum step on the schedule. For the district's K-12 teachers as a whole, 105 of the 147 are on the maximum experience step of their particular education degree and credit lane.

For the district's technical college faculty of 67 (FTE) teachers, about 45 are on the maximum experience step of their education degree and credit lane.

Tables published in this issue of the Northern Watch show the existing 1990-1991 salary schedule which is the basis for negotiations and the distribution of K-12 and technical college teachers on the lanes and steps of the salary schedule.

lion in insurance.

"We haven't received anything in writing from the commissioner's office as of yet," Supt. Busch said on Wednesday afternoon, "but we are proceeding with preliminary rebuilding plans in accordance with information we have received from the Attorney General's office."

The superintendent said that engineers inspecting the building have determined that about a fourth of the structure can be salvaged, including the gymnasium, locker room, music room and shop area. The gymnasium will require a new floor and other repair. He said that engineers were also in the building last week with a view toward getting heat into the portions of the building that will be re-used.

Affirmation of the deputy state fire marshal's report that a coffeemaker in the faculty lounge probably caused the fire has been received, Supt. Busch added. Findings were that a rheostat in the coffeemaker malfunctioned and caused the heating unit to overheat instead of maintaining a moderate temperature.

High school classes continue to be held in several temporary facilities in the community and students and faculty are reacting positively to making the best of the situation, the superintendent added.

Collectively the stores provided 598,000 pounds of turkey, 230,000 pounds of potatoes, 92,000 loaves of bread and 46,000 pumpkin pies. Local Kmart employees also distributed boxes of candy to the St. Hilaire senior center, Heritage Community center, Valley Home, Oakland Park Nursing home and Riverside Terrace apartments, all in Thief River Falls. Mn/DOT seeks low salt diet

Minnesota Department of Transportation is looking for ways to reduce the amount of salt used for snow and ice control on state highways, according to Rodney A. Pletan, state maintenance engineer.

Salt remains the cheapest and most effective de-icing chemical available today but problems such as corrosion and environmental damage have prompted Mn/DOT to seek ways to reduce and even replace the use of salt where possible.

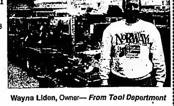
Recent efforts include field experiments with new equipment, techniques, technology and chemicals. Maintenance engineers and snowplow drivers across the state are testing several techniques and products.

St. Cloud: Prewetting the sand/salt mixture is a new application technique that looks promising. Salt does not work unless it is wet, so prewetting the mixture before it is spread may make it stick to the surface better and begin to work more quickly, thereby reducing the amount needed. Liquid applicators are attached to the back of the snowplow and spray liquid de-icers directly onto the sand/salt mixture as it comes out of the truck.

Duluth: A unique piece of equipment is a German built vehicle with a cylindrical underbody broom mounted between the axles. The steel and fiber bristles sweep up loose snow behind the front-mounted plow. The broom can even cut through snowpack and ice, although that quickly wears down the bristles. Removing the last remnants of loose snow means that less chemical will be needed.

Minneapolis/St. Paul and Duluth: New technology such as pavement sensors, friction testers, thermal mapping and accompanying software will provide better weather data so that maintenance engineers can better predict and control icy conditions on roads and bridges. Pavement sensors—embedded permanently in the pavement—send back temperature and moisture data from specific sites. The data will be used to monitor and predict pavement conditions, thus improving response time to slippery conditions.

Virginia, Duluth, Golden Valley, Oakdale, St. Cloud, Owatonna, Rochester, Detroit Lakes: Several commercial de-icing compounds continue to be used as additives or alternatives to traditional sand/salt mixtures. Some have anti-corrosive properties, others may have potential in environmentally sensitive areas. After several winters, evaluations can be based on a product's environmental impact, temperature range, speed, corrosion, cost, damage to bridges and concrete pavement and quantity needed. No single de-icer meets all of these criteria but it may be possible to match weather and pavement conditions with various mixtures.



Mn/DOT is also implementing an extensive training program for snowplow operators. The two-year program emphasizes the importance of minimizing the use of salt while keeping ahead of snow and ice accumulation—even during winter storms. Operators are also updated on weather, equipment, application and storage techniques and environmental awareness.

Mn/DOT is committed to reducing the amount of salt used on state highways. With dedicated snowplow operators and better equipment, technology and de-icers, it may be possible to appreciably cut back on salt while still keeping winter highways clean and safe.

Credit card companies explain rights of users

Consumers heading to retail stores for holiday shopping have more to worry about this year than just tight budgets and holiday expenses. They also have to be on guard against store policies that:

• Charge hidden fees for credit card purchases,

• Force consumers to spend more than they want,

• Subject consumers to potential credit fraud, and

• Invade customer privacy.

Bankcard Holders of America (BHA), a national, non-profit consumer protection group today warned consumers against these unfair practices and gave these tips for safe, enjoyable holiday shopping:

(1) Refuse to pay the extra fees some stores charge when you pay by credit card. Merchants sometimes impose surcharges on credit card purchases. A surcharge is an extra charge imposed by the merchant at the point of sale for purchases made by credit card.

Merchants who add surcharges to customer purchases are trying to pass on their costs of using the credit card system. Merchants pay a fee—usually 2 to 5 per cent of the purchase amount—on every credit card sale. This fee, called the "merchant discount fee" may be passed on to customers in the form of a surcharge.

Surcharges were illegal under the Federal Truth-In-Lending Act until 1984, when the ban expired. The credit card companies themselves, however, do not allow merchants to impose surcharges on their cardholders. Ten states have also made surcharges illegal.

"Surcharges invite a variety of abuses by retailers, including bait-and-switch tactics where they advertise one price but charge more for credit card payment", said Holstein. "Besides, accepting credit cards is known to generate higher average sales and more total sales for merchants", he added.

(2) Just say "NO" when merchants try to bully you into spending a minimum amount they require just for the "privilege" of paying with your credit card. Merchants sometimes impose minimum purchase requirements on customers paying by credit card. A minimum charge requirement is one in which a merchant refuses to accept a credit card for purchases that total less than a certain dollar amount. A merchant, for example, might refuse to accept a major credit card unless the consumer makes a purchase of at least $20.

"Consumers shouldn't be forced to give in to this high-pressure sales tactic simply because they want to use their credit cards," Holstein declared. "Credit cards mean safety and convenience for millions of Americans, and we shouldn't have to buy more than we need just to use them."

Some credit card companies strictly prohibit minimum purchase requirements. Others discourage minimum purchase requirements, but may allow them if a merchant does not also accept other credit cards.

(3) Refuse to allow merchants to record your credit card number when paying by check. Merchants frequently require customers who pay for purchases with personal checks to provide a major credit card number and expiration date, plus a telephone number. This information is then written directly on the check.

According to BHA, this practice invites fraud by exposing the consumer's bankcard number to anyone who sees that check between the time it is written and when it is returned to the consumer by the bank. The information is of no use to merchants, since credit card companies strictly prohibit merchants from charging credit cards to cover bounced checks. In addition, it's almost impossible for merchants to use credit card numbers to locate customers.

"In some states it is illegal for merchants to write a credit card number down in a check transaction. Even in states where it is not prohibited, consumers should resist", said BHA Director Elgie Holstein. "Requiring consumers to present a major credit card as identification, or even noting on the check that the consumer holds a credit card can be an appropriate merchant practice. It is dangerous, however, to require credit card numbers to be written on checks or otherwise recorded by the merchant."

(4) Don't give merchants your phone number, driver's license, or any other personal information when paying for purchases with a major credit card. This is a violation of consumers' privacy, and requiring it as a condition of sale is actually prohibited by some card companies.

"Merchants do not need a credit card customer's phone number," Holstein said, "since a merchant who correctly processes a bankcard transaction is relieved of further financial liability by the cardholder's bank. If there is a problem with the transaction—such as a cardholder exceeding his credit limit—the card-issuing bank absorbs the risk. The merchant gets paid anyway, so there is no need for the merchant to contact the cardholder."

Unfortunately, most consumers provide this personal information without realizing they may have a choice. Under some card companies operating rules, merchants cannot refuse a customer's purchase just because he or she refuses to provide personal information on a bankcard sales slip.

Holstein also offered consumers these tips to avoid credit card fraud during the busiest shopping season of the year:

• If your credit cards are lost or stolen, don't just notify your credit card companies—alert the three major credit bureaus that your cards have been stolen. A thief can use a consumer's identification (including major credit cards) to open "instant" credit accounts at numerous stores and quickly run up huge balances on the victims's "new" credit card accounts. You may not even know you have been victimized until weeks or months later when the bills for the new accounts go unpaid. Credit bureaus can add a "fraud statement" to the consumer's account, requiring positive identification before a new account can be opened.

• Don't carry more credit cards than necessary when shopping. A wallet full of credit cards means extra spending temptation for you during the holidays. If three of four of your cards are stolen, a thief can also buy loads of holiday merchandise on your cards. Although consumers are not liable for more than the first $50 of any fraudulent charges on credit cards (and in many cases, even this liability is waived), the inconvenience and anguish of having your cards stolen is sufficient reason to carry just the cards you really need.

• Beware of credit scams. Holidays are heydays for credit scam artists. Guard your credit card numbers by refusing to allow merchants to write your credit card numbers down on checks. Destroy credit card carbons. Check billing statements carefully for purchases you did not make or that were never delivered. Write to your card issuer immediately to dispute such charges. Never give your credit card number over the phone unless you are certain that the company is reputable. Beware of offers of "guaranteed" credit cards—especially if there is a steep fee just to get the application.

Teacher and pupil enjoyed a visit recently when George Mostue of Thief River Falls and Synneva Swanson of Oklee got together at her home in Oklee. Mostue, who is 92 years old, was Swanson's fifth grade pupil in the rural Deer Park school in 1909. She is now 102 years old. The story of George and Synneva's visit is told in Gretchen Bello's "Prairie Rambling" column in the Tuesday, November 26 issue of the Thief River Falls Times.

Harvest period time to check for erosion

"Harvest provides farmers with more than just the opportunity to see the fruits of their labors," notes Cheryl Sistad, secretary/manager of the Marshall-Beltrami Soil and Water Conservation district office at Grygla. "It is also a chance to note erosion problems and determine how they can be solved."

According to Ron Harnack, executive director of the Minnesota Board of Soil and Water Resources, farmers should look for areas where small gullies or rills have formed. This year's heavier rains will help highlight problem areas.

Erosion control practices landowners may want to consider include grassed waterways, sediment basins, stripcropping and conservation tillage, Harnack said.

Farmers may be eligible to receive state cost-share funding for these practices. The Marshall-Beltrami SWCD administers the state cost-share on a local level and fund are still available for such practices.

"Erosion is a serious problem in Minnesota," Sistad said. "In 1987 the Soil Conservation Service estimated that over half of Minnesota's cultivated lands had an annual soil loss rate of more than twice the acceptable level.

"Besides decreasing the productivity of the land, sedimentation from erosion is considered the single greatest threat to Minnesota's water quality."

Landowners interested in installing erosion control measures should contact the Marshall-Beltrami SWCD at 294-6144. The SWCD can provide technical assistance and funding for cost-sharing of eligible practices.

Gov. proclaims Winter Storm Awareness week

Gov. Arne Carlson has declared the week of December 1-7 as "Winter Storm Awareness Week". Pennington county sheriff Bob Wold also joined the governor in asking residents to take precautions during the winter driving months.

National weather service records indicate that 36 per cent of all winter storms affect some part of Minnesota. Notable storms have included the Armistice Day blizzard of 1940, killing 49 people, the "Blizzard of the Century" in 1975, and a deceptive storm in 1984 that cost the lives of 21 people. However, the record breaking "Halloween Superstorm" of 1991 will be remembered as one of the worst winter storms to hit Minnesota. Thankfully, there were no reported deaths due to exposure, however, considering the number of stranded motorists, this could easily have happened. Many of the deaths associated with winter storms can be avoided with our combined efforts in making the general public more aware of winter storm hazards.

This annual Winter Storm Awareness week campaign is designed to create an increased awareness for the general public as well as emergency response agencies.

The department of public safety offers the following suggestions for a winter survival.

1. Talk it over before you travel. Simple planning can save you trouble and even save your life.

2. Prepare your vehicle. Be sure you have your vehicle in good winter driving condition. Be sure to take along the emergency equipment. Never travel with less than one half tank of gas.

3. Know the weather. Listen to forecasts, road reports and storm warnings. Dress appropriately. Pack extra scarves and mittens. Allow extra time for essential trips in severe weather.

4. Make it easy to be found. Tell someone where you are going and the route. Report safe arrival. If stalled, tie a colored banner (from your winter survival kit) on your antenna or hang it out a window at night, remove the lens cover from your dome light and turn it on. Road crews or rescue units can see a small glow at a considerable distance once the blowing snow stops. (Use emergency flashers only if you hear approaching vehicles.) Keep one person on watch. Don't all rest at the same time.

5. Stay in your vehicle. Walking in a storm can be very dangerous. You can lose your way, wander out of reach, become exhausted, collapse and risk your life. Your vehicle itself is a good shelter.

6. Avoid overexertion. Attempting to push your car, trying to jack it into a new position or shoveling snow takes great effort in storm conditions. You could risk heart attack or other injury.

7. Keep cool — two ways: 1) calm down and think. The storm will end and you will be found. 2) Don't work enough to get hot and sweaty. Wet clothing loses insulation quality making you more susceptible to the effects of hypothermia.

8. Keep fresh air in your vehicle. It is much better to be chilly or cold and awake than to become comfortably warm and slip into unconsciousness. Freezing-wet or wind-driven snow can plug your vehicle's exhaust system causing deadly carbon monoxide gas to enter your vehicle. Don't run the engine — unless you are certain the exhaust pipe is free of snow or other objects. Keep the radiator free from snow to prevent engine overheating.

9. Keep warm without fuel. Keep your blood circulating freely by loosening tight clothing, changing positions frequently and moving your arms and legs. Huddle close to one another. Rub your hands together or put them under your armpits or between your legs. Remove your shoes occasionally and rub your feet.

10. Don't expect to be comfortable. The challenge is to survive until you're found.

Winter driving tips:

For a start — you should acquire a healthy respect for cold weather, snow and ice. They are demanding on both car and driver. As cold affects the human body, it also affects metal, rubber and other materials in your car. It can reduce the effectiveness of your vehicle's battery by at least 50 per cent. It can freeze tires flat on the bottom for at least the first half-mile of travel. It can thicken your car's lubricants, making starting harder and an engine warm-up an absolute necessity before you pull out of the driveway.

• Be able to see and be seen. Clean frost and snow off all windows, mirrors, lights and reflectors. Equip your car with good wiper blades and keep an ample supply of windshield washer fluid. If visibility is poor, use your full headlamps.

• Get a feel for the road when you first start out. Careful acceleration to test wheel-spin and gentle braking to test skidding will dictate how fast you can safely travel.

• Be gentle with both the accelerator and the brakes as you drive. A light foot on the gas is less likely to produce wheel spinning on ice and snow. Braking is best accomplished by an easier pumping action on the pedal. Locking the brakes will cause loss of steering control.

• Stretch your following distance. Ice or snow can increase your stopping distance from three to 10 times.

• Make turns slowly and gradually, especially at heavily traveled intersections which can become "polished" by repeated slipping and sliding of tires. Brake before you come to a curve, not while you are in it.

• Turn into the direction of the skid if the rear of your car breaks traction and begins to slide. Count on at least a small second skid as the car straightens out and be prepared to counter this sliding action too.

• Scattered slippery spots and ice patches can cause problems. Stay away from the brake, take your foot off the gas and steer as straight as possible until your car slows to a safe speed.

• You can avoid a collision by intentionally steering your car off the road and into a snowbank in an emergency situation. You may get stuck, but you'll avoid an accident and possible damage and injury.

Donations for Hanson benefit

Fund-raising benefit to assist Clarence Hanson of rural Trail with travel expenses for daily medical treatment is being conducted by friends in that area.

Donations may be mailed to Leonard Johnson, committee chairman, at Route 2, Goodridge, MN 56725 or left at the Aid Association for Lutherans office in Thief River Falls. AAL is providing matching funds for the project.

Comments on state liquor industry wrong

According to the Minnesota Municipal Beverage Association (MMBA), recent comments made by State Auditor Mark Dayton concerning the profitability of Minnesota's municipal liquor operations are inaccurate.

Contrary to Dayton's statements, if a municipal liquor operation does not transfer funds to other city departments, it does not necessarily indicate the facility is not profitable. Many cities use their municipal liquor funds as a reserve for future city indebtedness and facility improvement.

For example, profits from the city of Bigfork's liquor store have been going into a liquor-store improvement fund, which is financing a new store building. Through October 1991, the store has turned a $25,000 profit.

Of the 91 operations Dayton listed as 'unprofitable', 71 fall into this category.

In addition, Dayton stated 'the primary purpose of municipal liquor stores is to provide an additional source of revenue for essential municipal operations'. This statement is incorrect. He fails to mention 'control of alcoholic beverages'.

'Control' is a very important issue in both large and small communities. In fact, while the primary goal of most municipal liquor operations is a balance between 'profit and control', in some communities 'control' is the primary goal.

Overall, the report shows sales and profits increased at Minnesota's municipal liquor operations. Consequently, the condition of municipal liquor operations is excellent — and not as bleak as Dayton indicates.

ITT borrowers may share in some paybacks

Recent multi-million settlement of a class action lawsuit against ITT Financial Services will provide paybacks to certain borrowers. Persons who had ITT loans between 1981 and March 1991, and who bought non-credit term life insurance may be able to share in the division of more than 17 million dollars. Other borrowers who bought credit life and disability insurance or credit property insurance may be able to share in a 30 million dollar credit line toward future purchase of other insurance through ITT.

In addition to these financial rebates, ITT can no longer sell non-credit life or property insurance. If the company chooses to sell credit property indurance or credit life and disability insurance, it must explain the exact costs and benefits to each borrower. The settlement also required that ITT quickly respond to any future written and oral complaints about the insurance it sells. If the complaints are not resolved and the complainer goes to court, the court can award attorney's fees in addition to any other award granted.

If you had an ITT loan and think you may have bought non-credit term life insurance, credit life and disability, or credit property insurance, you should receive a rebate notice from ITT in the mail very soon. If you have moved or if you simply do not receive a notice, contact Richard Nadler at 325 Cedar Street, St. Paul, MN 55101, (612) 227-7873 to see if you can share in this settlement.

Well-maintained cars deliver better fuel efficiency

A well-maintained car will deliver the maximum fuel efficiency designed into it by the manufacturer, according to the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association of the United States.

Today's cars deliver outstanding fuel economy with surprisingly little owner effort, notes James P. Steiger, MVMA's director of fuels, lubricants and special projects.

"The factors involved in optimum fuel economy are the same basic maintenance items that owners should check periodically," says Steiger. "Car Care Month serves as a good reminder.

"Technological advances in the last decade or two have reduced basic maintenance to a very short checklist. Proper engine oil, tire inflation and engine tuning are the key things an automobile owner should monitor to get everything — including fuel economy — out of the car that manufacturers design into it."

Radial tires and low-friction engine oils are two new technologies that have helped the auto industry more than double the corporate Average Fuel Economy to about 28 miles per gallon since the mid-1970s. But they can't be ignored by car owners, says Steiger.

"Radial tires have been standard equipment on most cars since the early Eighties because their lower rolling resistance improves fuel economy," he says. "They must be properly inflated for maximum benefit. With self-serve gas stations, tire pressure is commonly ignored on more than half the cars now on the road."

Tire pressure changes with seasons, notes Steiger, so checking regularly is especially important in fall and winter to maintain proper pressure for optimal fuel economy. "Each 10-degree temperature drop lowers tire pressure by one pound and fuel economy about half of one per cent," he notes. "A tire properly inflated at 70 degrees may — at 20 degrees — be under-inflated by five pounds with a 2.5 per cent loss in fuel economy."

When checking tire pressure, motorists should also be alert to uneven tread wear caused by misaligned wheels because this will also increase rolling resistance and fuel consumption, Steiger adds.

Since the mid-eighties, engine oils have been available with special additives to improve fuel efficiency by reducing friction between an engine's moving parts. Oil labeled "Energy Conserving II," available since 1988 and recommended in car owner manuals, must provide a minimum of 2.7 per cent better fuel economy than ordinary oil.

"Whether they have their oil changed or do it themselves, owners should always ask specifically for EC II," Steiger advises. "Because some brands of oil meet the recommended viscosity grades and performance classifications, but lack the energy conserving additives."

Engine tune-ups are needed less often than 10 years ago because of unleaded gasoline, detergent additives and new engine technologies like electronic ignition and fuel injection, he adds, but some owner care is still necessary.

Fouled spark plugs, once a major problem, have faded with the disappearance of leaded gasoline. Fuel injectors that have replaced carburetors on most cars may clog, but the detergent additives in brand-name gasoline help prevent that. Many electronic ignitions don't use a rotor, but those that do should have the distribution cap and rotor replaced at least at the 60,000 mile mark.

"Many of today's cars may be out of tune but the difference can be subtle, making it hard to tell if your engine is out of tune and not delivering the best fuel economy," Steiger adds. "But automobile emissions tests required in many states are a good indicator if your engine needs a tune-up. If your car fails, or comes close to failing on the various emissions checks, chances are pretty good it's out of tune.

"overall, today's cars require very little owner maintenance to run well and deliver maximum fuel efficiency. And owners should remember that these efforts will keep their cars more enjoyable and valuable, save them money at the gas pump and help the country use less energy."

1991-92 Section 8 high school hockey preview...

Roseau is slight favorite

Two-time defending champion Roseau has been made a slight favorite to repeat its Section 8 high school hockey title this winter, according to the annual coaches poll conducted by Frank Fee of Crookston.

The balloting was close. Roseau and Moorhead both received six first place votes, with the perennially-strong Rams edging the up-and-coming Spuds 102-100 in total points, based on eight points for a first place vote, seven for second, six for third, etc.

Thief River Falls wound up with two first place votes and 89 points to finish third in the preseason poll announced this week, finishing just ahead of Bemidji with one first place vote and 86 points.

Brainerd, Warroad, Fergus Falls, East Grand Forks, Crookston, Alexandria and Red Lake Falls also received votes. Bagley, Crosby-Ironton-Aitkin-Pequot Lakes, Detroit Lakes, Hallock, Indus, Lake of the Woods and Wadena-Deer Creek did not.

Fifteen of the 18 Section 8 head coaches participated in the poll. The three who did not respond were among the five new head coaches in the area – Gary Clafton, Bagley; Pat Forte, Brainerd; Tom Pascuzzi, Hallock; Bruce Olson, Roseau; and Craig Anderson, Crosby-Ironton-Aitkin-Pequot Lakes.

Section 8 has two fewer teams this year, with Little Falls and Long Prairie switching sections.

Top Section 8 scorers back from a year ago include Andy Brink of Bemidji (19 goals, 24 assists, 43 points) and Mark Amundsen from Lake of the Woods (21-19-40), plus Moorhead teammates Jason Blake (21-15-36), Louis Paquin (16-16-32) and Josh Arnold (14-17-31).

Statistically-speaking, Troy Brekke of Moorhead is the leading returning goalie. He sported a 2.3 goals against average and an 89 percent save figure in 8.1 games a year ago. Ryan Wilson of Alexandria also had an 89 percent save figure, along with a 2.8 goals-against-average in 14.4 games, while Terry Brown of Hallock finished with an 88 percent save figure and a 3.4 goals-against average in 14.9 games.

This is the first year of two-tier post-season hockey. In February, the Section 8 coaches will seed teams 1-through-18, with the top eight vote-getters playing in the Tier 1 tournament, while the others play in Tier II. All first round quarterfinal games will be played at the site of the higher seeded team throughout the section. Semifinals and finals for both Tier I and Tier II will be played in Thief River Falls.

A capsule look at each of the 18 Section 8 teams, done by Fee, the Section 8 statistician:

Roseau - Lose all-state goalie, top three defensemen and most of your scoring and what do you have? The Section 8 favorite. Tough act to follow for new head coach and former Roseau player Bruce Olson, who arrives from Minot, ND. Top returnees include Jason Wensloff (6 goals, 8 assists) on defense and three-year starter Dale Lund (14-18) at forward. Junior Ross Boldt played four games in the nets last year and gave up just one goal.

Moorhead - The Spuds will have another young squad with just four seniors returning, but its a nice foursome: Jason Blake (21 goals, 15 assists), Ryan Kappes (14-13) and Steve Olflora (3-6) up front, along with defenseman Rhett Marstan (2-24). They'll be joined by several outstanding Moorhead youth hockey teams, like Louis Paquin (16-16) and last year's super frosh Josh Arnold (14-17). Sophomore goalie Troy Brekke played in eight games as a freshman, finishing with a 2.3 goals-against average. Strength is in numbers and talent. If the Spuds' young defense comes through, they'll be tough to stop.

Thief River Falls - Prowlers lost top two scorers, both goalies and most of their defensemen, but do return six forwards and a defenseman from last year's improved product. Aaron Brotan (8 goals, 18 assists) is back for a third year and is still only a junior, as are Nathan Knutson (9-8), Rick Ostby (9-2), Carter Rogalla (5-6) and Jason Svir (5-4). Lone defenseman returning is also a junior, and a good one – Marc Haugen (4-11). Goalie Barry Dowers, one of only four seniors on hand, played one varsity game last winter.

Bemidji - Lumberjacks are looking to 11 seniors and a returning junior goalie to give them the leadership to challenge for the Section 8 crown. Speedster Andy Brink (19 goals, 24 assists) is arguably the most talented player in Section 8. John Somrock (12-17) and Mike Donaghue (3-11) will try to help Brink in the scoring department, while Toby Kvalevog returns in goal, where he carried a 3.4 goals-against average and an 88 percent save figure in 22 games last year.

Brainerd - To get back in the Section 8 championship game, the 1991 runner-up Warriors will have to replace five of their top ten scorers, but they do have the Johnson twins back: crafty Jason (12 goals, 12 assists) and speedy Jerr (9-17). They also have 10-goal scorer Grant Ellingson, and most of the defense is back, including Ryan Liebel (5-13) and Chris Mitchell. Big spot to fill is in goal, where all-stater Keith Bartholomaus played all but parts of a couple of games last year.

Warroad - Good turnout for the Warriors who had 14 returning letterman among 41 players reporting this winter. Warroad may feature the best pair of defensemen in Section 8 in smooth-skating Shaun Pomplun (11 goals, 7 assists) and Derek Ewald (17-4). Lee Kolstad (8-18), Ted Heppner (10-11), Scott Moyer (8-13) and Chuck Meeker (8-14) all return up front, along with Mitch Nash in goal, where he had a 3.5 goals-against average and an 88 percent save figure in 12 games.

Fergus Falls - Otters return top three scorers in Brady Fredrickson (18 goals, 11 assists), Greg Buckmeier (11-12) and David Olson (7-16). They should be strong in the nets with two returning goalies, including Ben Schierer, who had a 3.8 goals-against average and an 88 percent save figure in 23 games last winter. There are 11 lettermen back, including three of four defensemen.

East Grand Forks - Green Wave lost six of eight leading scorers, but do have potential big goal scorers in Jason Bies (18 goals, 10 assists) and Nick Bowen (8-10) on hand. Five returning letter-winning defensemen are also back, including Dan Harvey (2-4) and Derek Brznicka (2-9), but they do not have a goalie with any varsity experience.

Crookston - Pirates looking to improve behind Mike Peterson (14 goals, 10 assists), a four-year varsity performer. Five of the seven scorers behind Peterson last year graduated, but look for Eric Berg (6-8) and Paul Johnson (2-9) to pick up the slack. Pirates also need a goalie to replace Jeff Brekken.

Alexandria - Cardinals should be able to keep the puck out of the net with Ryan Wilson returning in goal, where he had a 2.8 goals-against average and an 89 percent save figure in 15 games a year ago. They also have most of their defensemen back, including Mark Kloubec (5 goals, 12 assists) and Steve Block (2-9). Question mark will be the ability to put the puck in the net with 60 percent of the scoring lost to graduation. Getty Johnson (7-7) and Adam Lee (6-5) are the top forwards back.

Red Lake Falls - Eagles graduated top four scorers, starting goalie and two of four defensemen off an 18-5 team. And complicating matters, the only netminder with varsity experience was lost to a football injury, leaving the chore to freshman Jesse Barbot. Should be strong at center ice with Mark St. Marie (15 goals, 7 assists) and Robbie Schultz (10-19). Mike Schafer (3-4) and Wade Cardinal (5-7) return on defense.

Bagley - Flyers lost only three seniors to graduation, but they represented 60 percent of their scoring. Peter Merschman (12 goals, 14 assists) is the top returning scorer. Aaron Hough (4-10) should help out and Scott Beckett returns in goal, where he had a 8.1 goals-against average in 20 games last year.

C-I-Aitkin-Pequot Lakes - With Pequot Lakes added to the Crosby Ironton-Aitkin cooperative, 25 skaters reported for the start of practice. Dave Boeckerman (10 goals, 8 assists) is expected to be the No. 1 forward. Terry Durant (0-4) is the top defenseman and Pete Fisko is in goal, where he had a 8.3 goals-against average in seven games last year.

Detroit Lakes - The Lakers hope their football success (a Class A state semifinal berth) carries over to hockey. Small numbers eliminated a junior varsity program, and half of team had a late start because of football. Mark Kath (7 goals, 4 assists) is the top scorer back, while Blair Westrum (0-11) is the top returning defenseman. Both goalies were lost to graduation.

Hallock - Bears return four seniors, including big defenseman Jason Johnson (12 goals, 13 assists), a four-year starter. Erik Finney (6-13) is also back on the blue line, and both goalies return – Terry Brown, who had a 3.4 goals-against average and an 88 percent save figure in 10 games and Chris Ingeman, who had a 6.2 goals-against average in seven games.

Indus - The young Trojans won just once last year. They return goalie Bryan Palm and leading scorer Tony Mannassau (8 goals, 7 assists) from last year.

Lake of the Woods - Bears have to replace top two scorers and entire first line from a year ago in Mark Amundsen (21 goals, 19 assists), Eric Larson (10-13) and Ryan Usiski (10-4). But goaltending and defense will have to come through. Ed Gene is back in goal after sporting a 4.0 goals-against average in 21 games. Returning defensemen include Greg Berg (4-17) and Bill Peterson (3-8).

Wadena-Deer Creek - Graduation hit Wadena hard, but they've added Deer Creek as a cooperative partner. They lost 10 seniors, including six of top nine scorers, and Lance Mayer (13 goals, 13 assists) is out until after Jan. 1 with a shoulder injury. Scott Woods (14-14) and Matt VanBruggen (6-9) return up front, and both goalies are back, including Jason Murray, a three-year varsity performer, who had a 4.7 goals-against average and an 84 percent save figure in 18 games, and Chad Brendel, who wound up with a 3.8 goals-against average and an 85 percent save figure in eight games. The Wolverines are anxious to see what super Bantam Jeremy Erickson can do at the high school level.

DNR issues safe driving warning for snowmobiles

With the winter sports season's early onset, the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) is urging snowmobile owners and operators to follow the basics of safe and responsible snowmobiling.

There were 12 fatal snowmobile accidents in Minnesota during the winter of 1990-91. The consumption of alcohol was determined to be a contributing factor in 50 percent of the fatalities, and might have been a factor in four other deaths, according to Leo Haseman, DNR Enforcement Division director. Excessive speed was also found to be a primary cause.

Of the 12 fatalities, nine were the result of collisions with fixed objects, such as trees or ice chunks, two involved collisions with other snowmobiles, and one snowmobiler drowned by driving on ice into open water.

While state law prohibits the operation of snowmobiles on public lands and waters in excess of 50 miles per hour, Haseman said that safety requires much slower speeds under most circumstances.

"A safe speed is always dependent on riding conditions and the ability of the operator," Haseman said. "A rider must be able to see potential hazards while there is still time to stop or maneuver to avoid collision."

Visibility is greatly reduced at night and the accident statistics reflect the increased risk of snowmobiling after dark, Haseman said. Last year it was found 85 percent of the fatalities occurred at night, primarily because of tunnel vision created by headlights and the tendency to override the reach of the headlights. Visibility at night is often further reduced because of blowing snow or frosted windshields and visors.

DNR Safety Training Coordinator Mike Hamm said novice riders are at greater risk. He recommends that new snowmobile owners get safety training. He also advises snowmobile owners and operators not to lend machines to those who haven't had sufficient experience or training in snowmobile safety.

Snowmobile safety training is offered in communities throughout the state by a corps of volunteer instructors. By law, people ages 12 through 17 need the snowmobile safety training certificate, except those with valid drivers licenses. However, parents and other adults who have rarely or never been snowmobiling are encouraged by Hamm to attend.

Middle River-Marshall Co. Central...

Rebels football improves in '91

Second year of the Middle River-Marshall County Central cooperative featured a marked improvement over the inaugural 1990 campaign when the Rebels' switch from 9-man to 11-man high school football was met with an 0-8 finish and more blow-outs than an old bicycle tire.

Granted, on paper, this year's 2-6 showing wasn't much to brag about in the win-loss department, but the Rebels' level of competitiveness in the Valley Plains Conference was lifted several notches. They lost a 12-6 overtime game to Red Lake Falls, dropped a 22-15 double-overtime decision to Hawley, a 7-0 contest to Lake Park-Audubon and played eventual champion Warren tough in post-season Section 8C play before dropping a 13-0 quarter-final verdict.

Other outcomes included losses at the hands of Dilworth-Glyndon-Felton 30-0, Warren 37-20 and Fosston 19-6, along with wins over Ada-Borup 21-6 and Fertile-Beltrami 13-12.

"We felt we made some great strides this year," said Middle River-Marshall County Central head coach Eldon Sparby. "Last year there were one or two games we were in. This year we had legitimate shots at winning six of them. We really felt we were just a couple plays away from being 6-2 instead of 2-6."

A year's worth of experience in 11-man play helped improve the Rebels' stock in the competitive Valley Plains Conference, according to Sparby. "It took us a year to adjust to playing 11-man football," he explained. "It's a different game. You have to be able to run at people instead of around them. And there are more people trying to stop you."

Outstanding seasons by David Blazek and Danny Koehmstedt led the Rebels, and they were rewarded with post-season honors that included all-conference recognition for both of them. Blazek, who led the team in rushing (754 yards) and scoring (60 points) and was second in the Rebels' defensive charts behind Koehmstedt, was presented with team MVP honors and was named Back of the Year. Koehmstedt, meanwhile, was voted Middle River-Marshall County Central Lineman of the Year.

"David and Danny were obviously our leaders," said Sparby. "They both did an outstanding job for us on both sides of the ball. But we had some other people who really came through, too.

Jared Boe, Terry Helm and Gilbert Olson might not have received as much notice as Blazek and Koehmstedt, but they came through big-time, said Sparby. Boe excelled after being switched from linebacker to defensive end early in the year, while Helm and Olson filled key spots at the tackles on both offense and defense.

Helm and Boe shared the Rebels' Most Improved Player Award this fall, while Olson and Troy Myhrer were included on the Valley Plains All-Conference honorable mention list.

"It was an enjoyable year," offered Sparby. "Other than the Dilworth game, we thought we had a chance to win each time we took the field. It was easy to keep the kids enthused from week to week."

The 1991 Rebels featured underclassmen at the skill positions – quarterback, runningback, receivers – but there will be big holes to fill at the tackles with the graduation of Helm and Olson. "Those are key positions in 11-man football," pointed out Sparby. "If we're going to be competitive, we'll have to come up with a couple of tackles."

Tree grant goes to TRF

Thief River Falls was among 27 Minnesota communities awarded tree planting grants by the Department of Natural Resources Forestry Division. These grants use money from the federal Small Business Administration's Natural Resources Development Program.

The funds from these grants must be used for tree planting efforts by communities that purchase tree stock and/or hire tree planting services from small businesses, according to Jonathan Stiegler, Community Forestry Programs coordinator.

"This source of funding is very helpful to communities that typically do not have the funding to finance large tree planting efforts," Stiegler said.

Sixty-one communities statewide applied for the grants, but funding was only available for the top 27 community planting projects, Stiegler said.

In addition to Thief River Falls, communities awarded grants were Apple Valley, Brained, Cloquet, Coon Rapids, Cottage Grove, Dodge Center, Duluth, Farmington, Glenwood, Golden Valley, Ham Lake, Hopkins, Hutchinson, Little Canada, Mankato, Maple Grove, Minneapolis, Moorhead, Mounds View, Park Rapids, Plymouth, Ramsey, Robbinsdale, Roseville, St. Louis Park and St. Paul.

Most planting projects are expected to be completed during the spring 1992 planting season, Stiegler said.

Throughout the nation, more than $14 million will be granted by the small Business Administration, with Minnesota receiving $254,310. Half of Minnesota's grant monies will go to community tree planting programs, according to Stiegler. The other half will support planting programs on county and state lands.

Grant money will be used to reforest 844 acres on 42 state land sites, Stiegler said. Beltrami, Clearwater, Crow Wing, Itasca, Koochiching, St. Louis and Winona counties will receive grant funds for reforesting a total of 1,187 acres. All program grant funds are matched 50-50 by the receiving community, county or state agency.

Turn In Poachers dispatchers keep busy answering phones

Dial 1-800-652-9093 any time of the day or night in Minnesota and you will hear a real, live person, not an answering machine, say, "Turn In Poachers. How can I help you?"

Since the non-profit Turn In Poachers Inc. organization was established by a group of concerned Minnesota sportsmen ten years ago this fall, more than 27,000 Minnesotans have called the TIP hot line. Nearly 6,000 citizen tips were substantial enough to be turned over to law enforcement authorities for further investigation. Those investigations have led to the arrest of more than 3,300 poachers.

Nancy Huonder, Information Officer with the Enforcement Division of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR), answers the TIP line during regular business hours, Monday through Friday from her office in the DNR building in St. Paul. TIP is one part of Huonder's regular job, maintaining the flow of vital information in support of a statewide team of specially trained law enforcement professionals who protect Minnesota's natural resources from illegal use and abuse.

Huonder interviews each TIP caller to determine if there has been a violation of law, and whether or not the caller has enough information to launch an investigation.

Sometimes the caller just has a "what if" question about the law, or wants to know when a hunting or fishing season opens. "We refer all of those calls to their local DNR conservation officer or the appropriate DNR office," said Huonder. "We only have one TIP line and we have to keep it open so callers can report law violations."

For several years, Huonder and other volunteers took the TIP hot line home with them at night and on weekends. Calls were forwarded to an answering machine, which was checked every two hours, day and night, to provide, as much as one person could, a timely response to reports of impending violations. In the fall of 1987, TIP became a live, in-person 24-hours-per-day, seven days-a-week operation. The number of TIP calls more than doubled that year and doubled again by 1989.

What happened? Now, when Hounder isn't answering the TIP hot line, other law enforcement professionals are. Five dedicated, professional dispatchers on hand maintain a round-the-clock schedule at the Minnesota Department of Public Safety dispatch center in Detroit Lakes. Their office is the nerve center for radio and phone communications for State Highway Patrol and DNR conservation officers in a 10-county area of west-central Minnesota. Just recently, the dispatch center has also become the answering service for 911 calls made from cellular telephones in western Minnesota and eastern North Dakota.

In addition to handling emergencies and relaying information to officers in the field, Detroit Lakes dispatchers answer calls "after hours" on the statewide, toll-free TIP hot line. That includes every evening, every holiday and every weekend, year-round. It's not an easy job.

"Sometimes people call us and ask for tips about where the fish are biting," said dispatch supervisor Dale Peterson. "We get a lot of general questions about hunting and fishing, and of course we have to tell those callers that is not the function of the TIP hot line."

Public safety dispatchers are an excellent answering service because they are experienced communicators trained in gathering the kind of information that officers need to check out a possible law violation.

"That's what we try to determine first," said Peterson. "There's no point in taking down a lot of information only to find out that somebody's put out a salt block."

Hounder travels to Detroit Lakes periodically to conduct TIP refresher training and provide updated information on natural resource laws so the dispatchers can better determine if a report actually involves a violation or not. "You have to know what the legal bag limits for fish and game are," explained Hounder. "For example, 100 perch may sound like too many to some people, but that is a legal possession limit."

Each dispatcher works alone most of the time, answering phones, handling radio calls and relaying information to officers. "We often have to break off several times answering a TIP conversation to answer the radio, or a 911 call," said dispatcher Brenda Thompson. "Most people are pretty understanding about it, but sometimes a caller will get really angry. They don't always realize where they're calling and that we have this whole other job to do at the same time."

Busiest TIP times of the year are opening weekends during the fall hunting seasons. Last year, on opening weekend of deer season, the dispatch center received over 500 TIP calls. "Then it becomes a full-time job," said Peterson. During weekends like that, Hounder will spend time in the dispatch center herself to handle the hot line.

Solid tips about alleged violations are passed on to the conservation officer serving the area where the violation was reported. Virtually every location in the state is covered.

DNR officers work in close cooperation with local law enforcement and Highway Patrol officers across the state, sharing the same radio frequencies and the same legal authority to enforce all state laws. For example, if a conservation officer apprehends a burglar or a drunk driver, they have full legal authority to make an arrest or hold the suspect for local officers. A state trooper or deputy sheriff, meanwhile, can legally arrest a deer poacher.

To make the TIP system even more effective, the dispatch center will soon be equipped with a computer terminal so dispatchers and officers in the field will have quick access to on-file information and previous game-law violations.

Citizen volunteers of TIP Inc. continue to raise funds – primarily through membership drives, statewide banquets and annual sales of an exclusive TIP Inc. wildlife print – to pay for the cash rewards. TIP callers can remain anonymous if they wish, and still collect a reward – up to $100 for minor small game or fish violations, up to $200 for big game or endangered species and up to $1,000 or more for flagrant or commercial violations. Rewards are paid upon an arrest. Tipsters don't have to wait for a conviction, but better than 99 percent of TIP arrests result in a conviction.

TIP reward payouts have averaged $20,000 per year since 1981. thousands more went unclaimed because three out of every five TIP callers refuse to accept any reward. They're more concerned with protecting resources, or they're just fed up with a neighbor or relative who has made a habit of breaking the law, according to Hounder.

These days, the TIP hot line is busier than ever, averaging more than 100 calls a week. Last year, hot line tips referred 1,050 cases to the attention of authorities, who made a record 365 arrests – all as a direct result of 1-800-652-9093.

MSHSL News

Today's image: "bigger is better" and "bigger at any cost"...the double lie.

"We're hearing more and more reports that steroid use has broken out in the general school population," said Dorothy McIntyre, state coordinator of TARGET Minnesota, the chemical health program of the Minnesota State High School League. "It's the Rambo/Terminator syndrome – the kids are now starting to use steroids to look good in muscle shirts and to enhance athletic performance. Minnesota schools and parents must be aware of what could be happening in their communities and begin to take steps to protect their students."

National surveys show widespread steroid use and there is reason to speculate that the rate of steroid use among Minnesota students may be higher than the national average because of their accessibility. As early as Sunday, Dec. 13, 1987, the Minneapolis Star Tribune reported that:

"Federal authorities this year (1987) listed Minnesota as one of eight major centers in the country in the $100,000 million-a-year black market for anabolic steroids. The others are Texas, California, Florida, New Mexico, Illinois, Pennsylvania and Arizona – areas that, like Minnesota, have sizeable numbers of championship-level weight lifters who form a network for steroid distribution."

So, to the list of drugs of abuse – tobacco, alcohol, cocaine, crack, marijuana, etc. – add steroids.

Steroid Use

- Use begins early. More than half of the adolescents who use steroids tried them for the first time by age 16. Because of the early onset of use, adolescents frequently increase dosages, variety and cycle length over time, which may lead to other drug use.
- Athletes are vulnerable. Steroid users are generally highly motivated, will train intensely to improve themselves and are concerned about their appearance and receiving peer approval.
- There are health risks. In an effort to enhance size and performance, and just to "look good," individuals risk scarring acne on legs, backs, chest and shoulders, damaged heart, arteries clogged with cholesterol, shrunken testicles, tumors of the liver and prostrate glands. All of these health maladies can be caused by steroid use.
- Long-term health issues for steroid users. The danger includes liver tumors, kidney damage, strokes and cardiovascular diseases. Adolescents face additional and special dangers. Steroids may stunt their growth by prematurely turning cartilage to bone, effectively stopping further bone growth.
- What should coaches, parents and friends look for? Warning signs include acne that doesn't go away, high blood pressure, trouble with kidneys, lower back pain and steroid (roid) rage: explosive anger caused by excessive testosterone in the body.
- Are steroids mood-altering chemicals? Absolutely! Users tell about the unpredictable behavior, lashing out at anyone, and the eventual loss of friends who won't accept violent behavior. Friends are afraid of what the user might do. Users say that the rage leaves when they quit using steroids. One must question any explanation that athletes are simply becoming more aggressive as we witness more fighting on the courts, rinks and playing fields. One can only imagine what it must be like, for a steroid user to be angry almost all the time!
- Students are easy prey for the black market. They are sold the most unknown substances with strength and dosage unknown or even contaminated, and for the highest prices. Sharing needles raises concerns about aids. An initial purchase of an 8-10-week supply cycle costs several hundred dollars. Students may begin dealing other drugs to provide funding for their next cycle of steroids.
- Action is under way. In 1989, the Minnesota Legislature responded to requests for action from the schools and medical community and passed legislation which defines anabolic steroids as Class 4 controlled substances covered by felony penalties. This action led to the addition of steroids to the eligibility rules of the Minnesota State High School League, which impacts all high school athletic and fine arts activities. Proof of their use can lead to ineligibility.
- Parents and coaches of high school athletes must send a clear message. They should say, "We are so opposed to your use of steroids that we would rather lose every game than have any of you use them." Winning must take its proper perspective in high school sports.
- Education is an important key. The first step in a school's chemical health program is to break the silence surrounding the subject of steroids and to risk learning what the kids may already know: the amount and extent of steroid use in the community/school. Denial of a problem leads to silence, which leads to abuse and kids in trouble.

Schools and parents can help students to understand the price that each drug extracts from the user and that there is no free trip to increased size, performance or appearance.

Students should be able to:

1. Recognize the damage that steroid use does to their physical health;
2. Recognize the damage that steroid use will do to their personal life, friendships and family;
3. Recognize and appreciate the positive mental and emotional outlook that living without drugs brings;
4. Understand the value of a good personal reputation;
5. Be willing to make a decision to not use drugs.

With the beginning of a new school year, it is an opportune time to begin talking together. Together we can make a positive difference in the lives of students across Minnesota, stress MSHSL officials.

BSU model building program developing

Some students of Bemidji State University's model building program end up in Mickey Mouse jobs.

Others find themselves exploring the final frontier.

Walt Disney's Imagineering Division and Conair Aerospace are just two of the organizations which have established connections with the BSU program. Student interns and program graduates can be found in leading aerospace, architectural manufacturing and engineering firms throughout the U.S.

Bemidji State University, located in northern Minnesota with an enrollment of 5,500, might seem an unlikely choice to offer the country's only four year specialization in model building. However, the program has been in place for over a decade, ever since industrial technology faculty at the school became aware of the absence of a comprehensive course of study in model building.

Art Hedlund, recently retired associate professor of industrial technology at BSU, explained that the program was initially developed in response to students' frustration.

"In my drafting course I would have students design and build models," Hedlund recalled. "Invariably they would ask if there were any other classes which would allow them to build models, and I had to say no. After a while I began to wonder why we weren't providing such a program, so I started doing some checking."

Hedlund discovered that model building courses were available at a few two year institutions and as part of specific programs or study, such as the University of Minnesota's architectural major. However, these lacked the depth and scope which were becoming increasingly vital for the model building profession.

Through consultation with the American Engineering Model Society and professional model building shops, the BSU faculty were able to tailor their new program to the specific needs of industry. The University's industrial technology and technical illustration/graphic design programs provided the foundation for the model building concentration, assuring that both the mechanical and design aspects of model building were developed.

Students, who complete the model building specialization through either the industrial technology or the technical illustration /design major, are introduced to all facets of the model building process through such courses as drafting, machining, materials and processes, metal casting, robotics, computer aided design, and architectural and engineering model construction. In addition, they study management and personnel skills as well as completing the University's liberal education requirements.

According to Dr. James McCracken, associate professor industrial technology, the diversity of study in the program is what sets it apart from courses at other institutions.

"In the model building profession, you never know what you will be asked to do. Model builders might find themselves working successively on a building model, creating a prototype of a new product, and putting together a display," he noted.

"In the past companies have hired people who specialize in one area—for instance machining or design—and then had to broaden those people's skills. Bemidji State University takes four years to train its students in all aspects of model building, so the company's training process can be accomplished in a matter of months rather than years."

Jeff Hanson of Horace, ND, a senior in the program, agreed that gaining a working knowledge of a variety of techniques will better prepare him to assume a position in industry after he graduates.

"This is the most well-rounded approach I've seen," Hanson commented. "I could have gone to a technical school to just learn how to build models, but BSU emphasizes creativity as well as technique. Along with the engineering and mechanical aspects we're also exposed to courses in design and working with color and paints—all the things you need to know to function as a model builder."

Over the years the student model builders and BSU's model building program have proved themselves. The University continues to broaden its connections with outside industry, and the program has received a number of significant donations of equipment and materials from companies with which they have worked.

Despite the interest and support of industry, McCracken noted that the model building program at BSU is often misunderstood by outsiders, including the parents of students who indicate an interest in the program.

"We sometimes have a hard time convincing parents that this is worth a four-year degree. The first question they ask me is, 'Can my son or daughter make a living with this?' I often get a strange response when I tell people I teach model building. Apparently they have the idea that I'm teaching about electric trains or how to put kits together."

"I think model building is one of the world's best kept secrets," McCracken continued. "The everyday consumer may not be aware that this profession exists, even though virtually every consumer product has been through a model stage at one time."

Awareness and use of model building may very well increase, however, if the employment trends of the Bemidji State University program continue. Graduates have consistently enjoyed the 100 per cent placement rate; often the university has more inquiries from industry than graduates in a given year. The program currently graduates between 15 and 25 model builders per year, with enrollment expected to double over the next several years.

McCracken reports positive feedback from program graduates and their employers. "Our graduates have been very happy. They tend to feel confident going into their profession and fit in well because of their background," he concluded. "And their employers are extremely satisfied. Students come out of this program not merely with the technical skills to do the job, but also a professionalism and strong work ethic which makes them valuable additions to any company."

Students in the Bemidji State University model building program put the finishing touches on some of their projects. Bemidji State offers the country's only four-year specialization in model building with 15 to 25 graduates a year and 100 per cent placement. Enrollment is expected to double in the next several years.

Health Awareness Week at TRFTC and Northland

Students senates at the Thief River Falls Technical college and Northland Community college are combining efforts to present "Health Awareness Week" December 2-6. Student participation is encouraged and public attendance at any or all of the programs is also invited.

"This week will be multi-focused in nature and address a wide range of personal and social health issues," states Mark Thornton, technical college aviation and nursing student and chairman of the Health Awareness Week committee.

"Students who participate in the seminars offered this week will be provided information that will allow them to make those important and sometimes 'tough' daily decisions that will directly affect their quality of life while here at school and in the years to come," Thornton added.

Included on the schedule of informational programs are three local presenters and two well-known national speakers on topics of great social interest—substance abuse and AIDS.

Opening session on Monday, December 2, will be held at 2 p.m. in the Northland Community college theatre. Tammy Vatthauer, registered dietitian at Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls, will be the speaker on "Between Bacon & Birdseed—A Sensible Approach to Nutrition."

"Optimal Health on the Tundra" is the topic of the presentations to be made by Dr. Jim Langland of Falls Clinic Division of Dakota Clinic, Ltd., in Thief River Falls on Tuesday, December 3. He will speak at 1:30 p.m. at the Northland Community college theatre and 7:30 p.m. in rooms 11-12 at the TRFTC aviation center at the Thief River Falls regional airport.

On Wednesday, December 3, Dr. Leo Herber of the Falls Clinic Division of Dakota Clinic, Ltd., will give presentations on the topic "Toward a Smoke-Free Tomorrow." He will speak at 2 p.m. in the NCC theatre and 7:30 p.m. in rooms 11-12 at the TRFTC aviation center.

(A week-long no smoking clinic featuring the five-day plan to stop smoking will be offered to interested students free of charge during the week of December 9-13.)

Karl A. Randall, motivational speaker on the topic of substance abuse, will be featured Thursday, December 5, at 2 p.m. in the NCC theatre and 7:30 p.m. at the aviation campus, rooms 11-12. Randall is described as a person "who overcame personal tragedy and defeat to bring a story of hope and dignity to thousands in the Midwest region."

Friday, December 6, the speaker will be Amon Peterson, Minnesota's longest living AIDS victim. Peterson will discuss the facts, myths and choices regarding "AIDS—The Number One Health Issue of the Nineties" at 2 p.m. in the Northland Community college theatre and 7:30 p.m. at the technical college aviation campus, rooms 11-12.

"Hundreds of dollars in door prizes will also be given during the week's programs," Thornton said. "Please come and take advantage of these presentations and discover ways to become a happier, healthier, more productive individual."

Outcome-based education is MN goal

by Gene Mammenga
Minnesota Commissioner of Education

What is Minnesota doing to ensure that all students are successful in reaching higher standards? One major initiative is outcome-based education.

Simply put, it is a system that spells out beforehand the specific knowledge and skills students are expected to demonstrate upon completing a course of study. It assumes every student is capable of success if given enough time and support to achieve the outcomes.

This has several consequences for the way instruction and schools are organized. It means a sharper focus of curriculum, instruction, and assessment on a select number of outcomes. It means more variety of classroom materials, teaching strategies, and assessments adapted to the diversity of student learning styles.

No two students learn in exactly the same way or at the same pace; they cannot be taught the same way either. And if a student is having difficulty mastering the material, just providing more of the same does not work; instruction must be varied to accommodate individual needs.

The most radical aspect of this approach to educational improvement is that it places the success of the learner above all else. This has potentially far-reaching consequences, including:

- More teacher involvement in and ownership of the instructional process, and new leadership roles for teachers;
- More involvement by parents in developing an individualized learning process for their child and supporting their child's schooling—success is based on common goals among the school, student and parents;
- Organizational changes such as flexible groupings of students (large and small groups, one-on-one instruction, cooperative groups), combing two or more disciplines, mixing students of different age levels, or year-round schools—whatever works to accomplish the outcomes.

These are potential, not inevitable consequences. Every school will feel its own way toward implementation. Outcome-based education puts the focus of action where it belongs, at the school building level, where reform efforts have the greatest impact and where the people making those reforms—the school administrators, staff, parents, and other community members—have the greatest stake in their success.

So where is Minnesota in implementing outcome-based education? All over the map. Some districts are building awareness, some are beginning to develop outcomes, some are training staff, and others are starting to modify school organization.

The state is assisting districts by:

- Developing outcome models for district use as they redesign curriculum;
- Developing assessment models for district use as they report results to their communities;
- Developing assessment models for teacher use in measuring student progress
- Developing instructional models for district use in redesigning learning opportunities to ensure student success;
- Providing training to school staff regarding outcome and curriculum writing, assessment development, and instructional design; and
- Providing technical assistance at the request of districts as they transform the schools.

Currently the state is in the process of adopting a new graduation standard that will be the first in the nation to base graduation on demonstrated achievement of outcomes rather than completion of courses or credits. Every parent and employer will know that a graduate of Minnesota high schools is, in fact, possessed of the knowledge and skills essential to success in employment and further education.

These are some of the steps the state is taking in implementing outcome-based education. But central to the success of this effort is local commitment and involvement. All parties must work together and take responsibility for their part in the process.

The days are long past when parents and communities can delegate to schools the job of educating the young. That task is too great and requires a community response. In the words of an old African proverb, "The village educates the child." We must rekindle that ancient wisdom and make it a flame that burns brightly in every community in this state.

Lincoln H.S. bands plan concert Tues.

Lincoln high school bands under the direction of Bruce Felt will be presented in concert Tuesday, December 3, at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln high school auditorium.

Participating in the first concert performance for each band this year will be the freshman band, concert band and wind ensemble.

Each of the band will play a wide variety of music ranging from contemporary band literature to modern pop, movie and television themes, according to Felt.

"Highlight of the concert will be the wind ensemble's performance of Gustav Holst's First Suite in Eb, a standard of the band repertoire for the post 50 years," the director noted.

Admission will be $2 for adults and $1 for students. People who purchased coupon books from members of the Lincoln marching band are invited to use the coupon which is good for two free admissions to each of the bands' three concerts this year. Coupon books will also be sold at the concert at a cost of $12 each.

School District 441 gets approval to rebuild

Board chairman David Bakke sees widespread impact from Education Commissioner Mammenga's decision

Supt. Gene Bush of School District 441 at Newfolden holds a letter from Minnesota Commissioner of Education Gene Mammenga during a school assembly Tuesday afternoon in the Newfolden elementary school gymnasium. The letter, which Supt. Busch read to the students, contained Commissioner Mammenga's approval for School District 441 to rebuild Marshall County Central high school which was destroyed by fire November 7.

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Word from Gene Mammenga, Minnesota Commissioner of Education, that he has agreed to act favorably on a building request from the Newfolden school district holds great significance for the state as well as the district in the mind of David Bakke, chairman of the School District 441 board of education.

"I look at this as more than a successful effort for our local district," Bakke said following the public announcement of Commissioner Mammenga's decision Tuesday during a student assembly at the Newfolden elementary school gymnasium. "I believe it shows that there is a place and a future for small schools in Minnesota."

Bakke, board treasurer Mork Carlson, Sen. LeRoy Stumpf and Rep. Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls and Rep. Jim Tunheim of Kennedy met with the commissioner Monday afternoon at a meeting hastily called in Grand Forks.

"We came to an agreement that was mutually satisfactory," Bakke said, "and he (Mammenga) said he would fax a letter to us Tuesday containing the terms we agreed upon. The letter stated exactly what we understood the agreement to be and we are very satisfied with it.

"In fact, when we left the meeting he told us to rebuild to the best that we can afford. We are thankful that everything seems to be working out for the best and it is time to get on with the rebuilding process."

At a student assembly called for 2:30 p.m. Tuesday in the elementary school gymnasium, Supt. Gene Busch read the letter from Commissioner Mammenga. The reading was followed by playing of the school fight song and cheers and applause from the students.

Mammenga's letter states the following:

"Following discussions with local officials, I have agreed to act favorably on a building request from the Newfolden School District.

"The normal review and comment process will be expedited given the following guidelines:

"The replacement building will be planned to serve as a traditional school and as a center for community services/education-related activities. While it will presently serve as a secondary school, it will be constructed to allow for maximum future adaptability.

"I have been assured that serious planning discussions with neighboring school districts are presently scheduled and that these discussions will relate to enhanced cooperation between the districts both in building utilization and curriculum expansion."

Members of the board and administration are currently visiting buildings designed by different architects and then will interview architects before hiring one to design the rebuilding project.

Supt. Busch said the board presently expects to use the emergency rebuilding laws to expedite construction. This will eliminate the lengthy bid process and provide for greater flexibility in construction as there will be no general contractor.

Heat is expected to be available in the salvageable portion of the burned building early next week.

Mammenga says cooperation affected change in decision

"Combination of circumstances" led to approval of board request to rebuild burned school

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

A combination of circumstances led Minnesota Commissioner of Education Gene Mammenga to reach a new decision regarding the rebuilding of Marshall County Central high school, the commissioner said in an exclusive telephone interview Thursday afternoon.

Among the major circumstances was the willingness of the School District 441 board to be "open and reasonable" in engaging in discussions and cooperating with other districts in looking toward the education of the future, he said.

The commissioner said he had not changed and did not apologize for his views that smaller school districts must combine to provide effective education for tomorrow.

"What makes me feel good about my view," he said, "is that it seems that where it's been done, it works. Students and parents become comfortable with it and all the bad things that people say will come about just don't happen."

In the case of Marshall County Central, however, the circumstances led him to believe that it was not the situation to attempt to make a stand and prove his point. Among those circumstances were:

No dissenting opinion—In most situations, the commissioner said, there is a division of opinion in the community as to what should be done. In the case of Marshall County Central, support for rebuilding seemed to be unanimous.

Availability of funds—The district would be able to rebuild the school with the use of adequate insurance money and without economic burden to the taxpayers of the district or the state.

Special levy approval—Voters in School District 441 approved a special levy of $250,000 a year for five years beginning in 1993 at the general election November 5 (fire destroyed the school November 7). The vote was 424 in favor and 168 opposed.

"Without the special levy the district would have had a statutory operating debt," Mammenga said. "With the levy the district will have the necessary operating capital."

Record of Marshall County Central in graduation percentage and success of students going on to higher education was not given a good deal of credit. "The education of today and yesterday may well not be the education of tomorrow," the commissioner said. He said he finds that most schools in Minnesota have such a record and "I don't think we can put too much emphasis on what has been done in the past or even what is being done today. We have to look to what will take place in the future."

And while he recognizes the value of a school to the survival of a small community, he said that "quite frankly I don't believe that is my concern as commissioner of education. I told the people in another district just last night that real estate values are not my responsibility. My charge is to see to it that students have the proper tools for a good education, not to have the schools serve as an economic linchpin for the community.

"I'm also frank to admit that the severing of a school is a negative factor in a community, but there are often trade-offs for that loss in educational advantage."

Mammenga said it is apparent to him as he looks at the state-wide perspective that there is going to have to be more cooperating among districts. And where there are divisions of opinion it is necessary for both sides to feel they are winning.

"When a school is built it is built for 30 or 40 years down the road," he said. "It is easy in the emotion of the moment to lose perspective of the long range situation."

Mammenga said he wishes the School District 441 board well "as it continues its discussion of cooperation with other districts."

Fuel truck, train, collide

Only minor injuries sustained in crash and fire at Greenbush

Two men escaped with minor injuries after a Burlington Northern train and a semi truck hauling gas and diesel fuel collided near Greenbush Thursday. Fire destroyed the truck and train after the collision.

Minnesota state patrol reported receiving a report of a train and fuel truck crash at 2:15 p.m. just east of Greenbush on County road 4 Thursday. According to the report, a fuel truck driven by Curtis Allen Brown, route 3, Detroit Lakes, age 42, was crossing the railroad tracks on county road 4 just off Highway 11 when it collided with a northbound Burlington Northern train. As the truck was dragged about 150 yards down the track, it spilled its load of diesel fuel and gas and then ignited. Brown escaped with a broken nose and some bruises. The train engineer, Armondo Moronez, route 1, Fisher, age 49, was taken to Karlstad Hospital and treated for a bruised hip.

Greenbush, Badger and Karlstad fire departments were dispatched to the scene of the accident. According to Russell Wicklund, fire chief in Greenbush, the fire was under control in about one and one-half hours, but it destroyed two train engines, four train cars and the caboose. Wicklund said they had to stay with the fire until late into the evening because one of the cars, which were all loaded with wood for Marvin Windows, was still hot. Brown's truck, which was owned by Ervin Haverkamp of Detroit Lakes, contained about three-quarters of a tank of gas and about one-quarter of a tank of diesel fuel. It was also destroyed in the accident.

The intersection does not have crossing signals. The accident is still under investigation. Burlington Northern officials were not available for comment at the time this article went to print.

LHS Key club sets food drive for next week

Members of the Lincoln high school Key club, a student organization sponsored by the Kiwanis club of Thief River Falls, will be conducting a food drive at four food stores in Thief River Falls next week, December 9-14.

Collection containers are being placed at Erl's Food Market, Hugo's Supermarket, Ken's Hartz and Northland Foods, according to Sara Olson, president of the Key club. Shoppers are being encouraged by club members to place canned goods or other non-perishable food goods in the containers for donation to the Thief River Falls community food shelf.

Members of the club will collect the items donated and bring them to the food shelf in the basement of the Falls Mall the week following the collection drive. They will also participate by donating items themselves.

ACTIVITIES

Read Aloud

As the Christmas season starts, and we start to get more and more involved in shopping, baking, decorating and other things, sometimes small children get the impression that they are overlooked. Sometimes when this happens they start to do things to get attention, that we think are inappropriate and we start to discipline because of their behavior. It is a good idea to spend the same quality time with your child as you have in the past.

Some very easy ways to accomplish this and to keep both adult and child happy are reading some of the many Christmas books that are available. A quick trip to the library will give you many of these. Find a cozy spot and cuddle in together and enjoy the adventures of your favorite Christmas characters.

PARENTING TIPS

Coping with the Holidays

This is a very busy and often hectic time of year. We have so many estra things that we are trying to do. Sometimes we get so caught up with all these things that we forget about young children and what they need. For instance, schedules may get upset, naps are late or even skipped. Meals may also be off schedule and what about all those estra holiday goodies that ruin appetites. We need to stop and look at the holiday season from our children's point of view. The following suggestions can help you to enjoy the holidays with young children.

• Try to arrange your schedule around your child's normal routine. Be sure he/she gets enough sleep and a well balanced diet.

• Simplify your holiday. Focus on sharing it with your children instead of staging it for them. Before you involve your children in holiday activities ask yourself, is this activity one that my child is ready to enjoy? For instance, a face-to-face meeting with Santa may be frightening for a two-year-old. It may be better for the young child to meet Santa through a story book or simply wave from a distance.

• Let your child help as much as possible. Remember that your child is more interested in the process than the produce. In other words, he/she will really enjoy helping to frost cookies, but won't be too concerned with what it looks like when he/she is done.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk about the holiday decorations in your home and around the community. Talk about colors, shapes, lights, symbols, etc.

Santa Claus will be at the Thief River Falls post office lobby Thursday, December 12, from 6 to 7:30 p.m. to receive letters addressed to him (no postage is required) and visit with the senders.

Expanded window hours have also been scheduled at the post office for two Thursdays and three Saturdays during the holiday season, according to Dick McCloskey, postmaster.

Thursday window hours will be from 8:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. December 12 and 19. Saturday window hours will be from 8:30 a.m. to 12 noon December 7 and 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. December 14 and 21.

Postal workers will also set up portable postal service at Valley Home on December 11 and 18 at 2 p.m., at Oakland Park nursing home December 11 and 18 at 10:30 a.m., Skylite Apartments December 12 and 17 at 10:30 a.m. and Riverside Terrace Apartments December 10 and 17 at 2 p.m.

At each of the four above locations all mail services will be provided to assist the elderly with their mailing needs.

For after-hours mailing needs of the general public, full service contract stations are operated at Northland Foods and Hugo's supermarket.

"Postal patrons are again urged to mail Christmas cards and packages early to assure delivery before Christmas," McCloskey said.

Foot care clinic set at Grygla

Foot care clinic is scheduled by Marshall county nursing service for Wednesday, December 18, at 9:30 a.m. in the Grygla community center. Nurses will soak feet and trim nails for a charge of $4 per person.

CHRISTMAS COOKIE BOOK

Soupçon By Sherry LaCoursiere

For the next couple of weeks I will give you delicious Christmas cookie recipes, tested tried and true tasty treats.

I made these cookies for the first time last year, and they are now on my "must bake" list. Not only do they look pretty, but they taste good, too.

Chocolate-Covered Cherry Surprises
40 maraschino cherries, well drained
1/4 cup rum or brandy, if desired
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1/4 cup powdered sugar
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup flour
6 ounces chocolate chips (1 cup)
1/4 cup light corn syrup
1 tablespoon water

Soak cherries in rum for 30 minutes. Drain well. (Eliminate this step if you do not want to use liquor.)

Cream butter, powdered sugar and vanilla. Add flour and mix well.

Wrap about 1 teaspoon of dough around each cherry to completely cover.

Bake on ungreased sheets at 350 degrees for 8-10 minutes, until lightly browned on edges. Cool.

Coating

In small saucepan, combine chocolate chips, corn syrup and water. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until chips are melted.

Place cookies on wire racks over waxed paper. Spoon chocolate coating over cookies to cover (re-use dripped coating).

Makes 40 cookies.

These cookies are drizzled with chocolate and make a delectable treat.

Chocolate-Iced Buttersweets
1 cup powdered sugar
1 cup softened butter
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons vanilla
2 cups flour

Cream sugar, butter, salt and vanilla until light and fluffy, then add flour and blend well.

Shape dough into balls, using 1 teaspoonful dough for each. Place 2 inches apart on ungreased cookie sheet. Make imprint in center of each cookie with thumb.

Bake at 350 degrees for 12-16 minutes, until lightly browned on edges. Remove from cookie sheets immediately.

Filling
1 cup powdered sugar
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 ounce package cream cheese, softened
1/2 cup chopped nuts
1/2 cup coconut

Cream powdered sugar, flour, vanilla and cream cheese until light and fluffy; stir in nuts and coconut. Fill each warm cookie with about 1/2 teaspoon filling.

Frosting
1/2 cup chocolate chips
2 tablespoons water
2 tablespoons butter
1/2 cup powdered sugar

In small saucepan, melt chips with water and butter, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Add 1/2 cup powdered sugar and blend until smooth. Drizzle over cookies.

I found these cookies in a newspaper in 1989, contributed by Jan Vallager of Crookston. Now my children (and my mother) won't let me stop baking them:

Candy Bar Cushions
1 cup butter, softened
2/3 cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 1/2 cups flour
8 (5/8 ounce) milk chocolate bars

Cream butter and sugar until fluffy. Beat in egg and vanilla. Stir in flour gradually.

Place half of dough into a spritz maker, using ribbon plate. Press strips the length of an ungreased cookie sheet. Press candy squares lightly into the dough.

Place remaining dough in cookie press and press in strips over chocolate squares. Sprinkle with colored sugar and then mark squares with table knife.

Bake at 375 degrees for 12-13 minutes. Immediately cut into the marked squares and cool. Makes 4 1/2 dozen cookies.

Try these pretty cookies this year.

Grandma's Cherry Winks
2 1/4 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
3/4 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
2 teaspoons milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup chopped nuts
1 cup chopped dates
3/4 cup maraschino cherries, chopped
2 1/2 cups corn flakes, crushed

Sift together flour, soda, sugar and salt. Combine shortening, sugar, eggs, milk and vanilla. Beat well. Blend in dry ingredients and mix well.

Add nuts, dates and cherries, reserving a few cherries for top decoration.

Roll dough into small balls, then roll in crushed corn flakes and top with cherry slice. Bake 8-10 minutes at 350 degrees.

I found these yummy cookies in the Grand Forks Herald once upon a time too. They were submitted by Mary Barvels of Lake Bronson.

Candy Cane Cookies
1 cup shortening, part butter, softened
1 cup powdered sugar
1 egg
1 1/2 teaspoons almond extract
2 1/2 cups flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon red food coloring

Mix butter, sugar, egg and almond thoroughly. Stir in flour and salt. Divide dough in half. Blend food color into one half.

Roll 1 teaspoon of each color dough into 4 inch long strip. Place side by side and twist together. Place on ungreased baking sheet, curving top down to look like candy cane. Sprinkle with sugar.

Bake about 10 minutes at 375 degrees. Makes about 4 dozen cookies.

(I make my candy canes much smaller, using about 1/2 teaspoon of each color dough.)

It's Hard To Say No To Our Kids....But This May Be The Time

It's decision time again for the School District 564 board of education. At their meeting on Monday afternoon, December 16, the board members are expected to act on a request by a group of parents and students to permit the Lincoln high school choir to make a trip to Europe in June of 1993.

The school board is accustomed to making tough decisions regarding millions of dollars and hundreds of employees and questions on policies and curriculum and programs of one sort or another. While all affect students in general and in one way or another, the decisions do not generally impact in a direct and personal way on a specific request from specific people. This one does.

It's hard for parents to say "no" to their children, especially when the request for permission to do something would probably do them no harm and perhaps provide them some benefit. It's not easy for a community to turn down a positive activity involving some of its fine young people. A community should encourage its youngsters, and this community does that.

But it is our opinion that the school board should say "no" to the request for the choir trip to Europe in 1993.

There are several reasons for reaching this conclusion, none of which will seem reasonable to those promoting the trip and all of which can be argued or rationalized if you have an opposing opinion.

Expense—Taking a group the size of a high school choir overseas for a 10 to 14-day trip will cost a lot of dollars regardless of how good a rate is negotiated for travel, lodging and food. Fund-raising from the community of approximately $48,000 in addition to what choir students and their families would have to provide individually is a substantial amount. This money would have to come from people in the community, many of whom have lived a lot longer than the students and have rarely harbored the hope they could ever afford to take such a trip themselves.

Uncertainty—Travel always entails a certain amount of risk. Travel to foreign countries, although common today, entails added risk. Waivers of responsibility notwithstanding, there is a feeling of responsibility if not a legal responsibility as well for the welfare of those representing the school and the community.

Educational Value—Unlike travel by foreign language classes or individuals with specific foreign interests, educational value to participants would be limited to little more than the experience of having been somewhere different and forming a hurried first impression. Little of a lasting educational nature stands to be gained from the trip, and that must be a major consideration.

Appreciation—Despite the maturity and sophistication of today's young people, we don't believe teenagers would sufficiently appreciate foreign travel, especially when having the opportunity would involve a modest amount of effort or sacrifice on their own parts to attain. It's something like a five-year-old catching a 30-pound muskie on his first fishing trip for perch; what does he have left to anticipate?

In Summary—Lincoln high school choir members are deserving young people and director Darcy Reese has done tons of work and has demonstrated loads of talent in working with them since she came to town a few years ago. A focal point of anticipation, such as a trip for competition and as a reward for effort, certainly would be expected to create interest in a music program and provide motivation to practice.

The Thief River Falls community supports its young people and has demonstrated that support in many ways in the past—including helping to pay for past choir trips. It would likely be willing to support further trips of a reasonable nature in the future.

But in our opinion a European trip is too ambitious and we would say "no" to the request.

Spirits Uplifted At Newfolden

Word that School District 441 would be permitted to rebuild Marshall County Central high school was greeted with enthusiasm by faculty and students at an assembly in the elementary school gymnasium Tuesday afternoon. Parents were similarly happy when the students brought the information home after school.

Since fire destroyed much of the 20-year-old high school building November 7 and Minnesota Commissioner of Education Gene Mammenga said he would not give a favorable review to an application to rebuild, uncertainty has stalked that central Marshall county community.

But there was more than uncertainty at Newfolden, Holt and Viking. There was a determination to stand and fight for what the people believed to be right and proper. They united in defense of their school and all it means to the community. They wrote letters, made phone calls, consulted legislators, researched laws, contacted the Governor and made their case for reconstruction based on past performance of teachers and students and proper planning by administration and school board.

Now the mood has changed with Commissioner Mammenga's decision to act favorably on the district's rebuilding request. There is a collective feeling of relief, but also a feeling of satisfaction and a spirit of triumph mingled with pride.

We congratulate the residents of School District 441 on their perseverance and tenacity and their determination to accomplish what they—and we—believe was right. And we expect their cooperative togetherness will continue as they plan for the future of their school which still faces the problem of declining enrollment that existed when they approved a special levy for operations at the November 5 general election.

Marshall County Central may not be out of the woods, but the trail isn't as narrow and the trees aren't nearly as tall or as thick as they were a few days ago.

Wheat Growers argue export future troubled

Future of U.S. agricultural exports could be in jeopardy unless Congress acts to protect the integrity of federal farm export programs, according to the National Association of Wheat Growers.

In testimony before a House agriculture subcommittee, NAWG president Ron Rivinius said increasing imports of foreign grain could threaten the federal programs under which a majority of U.S. grains are exported unless an end use certificate system is implemented.

U.S. farm export programs require that the commodities moving under federal assistance must be "entirely" produced in the United States. Rivinius said his organization was concerned that the lack of an adequate monitoring system for imported grain could lead to U.S. and foreign grain becoming commingled and, thus, ineligible for government export assistance.

The movement of Canadian wheat into the United States has become routine, Rivinius said, and "we are not presently aware of any requirement that will enable our Agriculture Department or Customs Service to keep tabs on the movement and intended use of this grain."

Rivinius said Canada currently is able to track its grain imports by requiring importers to file an end use certificate which specifies how the grain will be used after it is imported. In his testimony, Rivinius said the NAWG supports legislation introduced by Rep. Collin Peterson (D-Minn.) and others that would require a similar certification procedure in the United States.

When it comes to protecting the integrity of U.S. origin grain, "Clearly, it will be easier to keep track of the identity, location and use of the approximately three million tons of grain imported into the United States each year than it would be to account for the regular U.S. annual production of 300 million tons," he said.

To The Editor:

In celebration of Farm-City Month observed this past November, I would like to address your readers concerning the safety of the food we eat every day.

I am sure there are some people in the Pennington area who are concerned that pesticide residues make our food less than safe to eat. This isn't true. In fact, without pesticides, insects and rodents can infect crops with unhealthy micro organisms. Molds and bacteria can interact with certain crops to produce poisons. Pesticides help us grow safer, and certainly more plentiful, food supplies.

The medical community backs up what we farmers believe about food safety. "There is no food safety crisis," former U.S. Surgeon General C. Everett Koop told Congress in June. Pesticide residues present on the food supply "occur at such minute levels that they present no risk of harm to human health," Dr. Koop said.

"While approximately 9,000 people die from bacteria-caused food poisoning each year, there is no scientific evidence showing that residues from the lawful application of pesticides to food have ever caused illness or death."

Pesticides are extensively tested before they are even put on the market. Only one out of a potential of 20,000 compounds are ever manufactured. Chemical companies typically spend $35 million over 10 years of testing to bring a product from test tube to farm supply dealer. Most of that time and money are spent on making sure the product is safe to use on food crops.

Besides that, the EPA carefully checks laboratory tests to be sure pesticides are really safe. Once food is brought to market, the FDA and many state agencies test foods for pesticide residues.

So go ahead and eat an apple a day—it's safe. In fact, eat whatever you like, knowing that we farmers, and many agencies are taking special steps to be sure it's good for you.

Sincerely,
LuAnn Carow, President

To The Editor:

Very recently I lost my husband to cancer. He had been in and out of the hospital where a lot of caring people did their best.

He spent his last days at home surrounded by familiar things and his family. We made him as comfortable as possible, our children helping, but I don't think we could have done it without the help of the Northland Community Hospice program.

Until my husband got sick I had heard very little about this program. It really deserves more publicity. I have never known a more caring and dedicated group of people; perfect strangers who would just come and sit an hour or so to give the family a rest.

Among these people are two super ones who deserve so much more recognition, praise and credit for what they do. They are on call 24 hours a day. These two ladies have families of their own and yet they were always there when we needed them. Sometimes they would even spend the night.

There is no way we can ever thank them enough. They will always hold a special place in our hearts. So once again, our sincere thanks to Lourie Anderson and Linda Ronchetti.

Sincerely,
Madonna Molstad and Family

Minnesota hikes registration fee for snowmobiles

Increase from $18 to $30 for the three-year registration of a snowmobile in Minnesota is expected to provide about $750,000 a year to the state's snowmobile trail fund, according to Bill Kullberg of the Minnesota United Snowmobilers association (MnUSA).

"The fund increase is to be used strictly for trail development," Kullberg said, "and should keep the snowmobile account in the black. Without the increase, the state Department of Natural Resources was predicting that the account dedicated to the building and maintenance of Minnesota's snowmobile trails would have gone into the red in less than two years."

The new law also requires point-of-sale registration of snowmobiles, designed to stop abused by purchasers who don't register their machines.

The legislation also directs the DNR to study and make recommendations on the state's snowmobile gas tax fund and on the stability of funding for grooming the state's 10,000 miles of snowmobile trails.

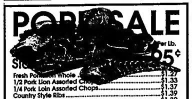
PTX Food Corp. locates plant at Fosston to manufacture for food processing industry

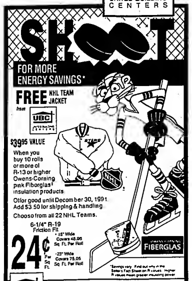
Another industry has come to norther Minnesota. PTX Food Corp. of Elmsford, NY, is establishing a food ingredient processing plant is Fosston. The Agricultural Utilization Research Institute (AURI) announced that it will enter into a partnership with PTX Food Corp. to provide technical assistance and funding necessary to promote fermentation operations.

"We are pleased the PTX Food Corp. will be locating in Fosston," states Keith Sannes, director of technical services for AURI. "This project will benefit the whole area."

AURI is a public, non-profit corporation which promotes rural development through development of new uses and value improvements for Minnesota agricultural development through development of new uses and value improvements for Minnesota agricultural commodities.



PTX Food Corp. is an international company which manufactures and sells food ingredients used by the food processing industry. PTX has developed the processes to make organic acids from fermented or "cultured" cheese whey and starch. The products are added to a variety of foods which require natural additives. According to Sannes, the cultured whey additive is popular with the food flavor industry because it enables manufacturers to improve food flavors with naturally fermented products.



With AURI assistance, fermentation production equipment to culture whey and starch will be installed at the former Fosston Land O'Lakes plant. In addition, AURI is providing engineering and product development assistance. PTX also plans to have labs for research and development housed at the Fosston facility to support manufacturing a series of natural food ingredients using advanced fermentation technologies.

PTX Food Corp. is locating in Fosston because the agricultural products needed for fermentation are readily available, and nearby facilities are well suited to their needs. AURI is assisting PTX because the company provides industrial uses for Minnesota commodities in rural Minnesota. Says Sannes, "It's a company that knows the markets for its products and has a demand for more product. This can only mean good things for Fosston and northern Minnesota."

NCC men open with 99-88 win

Travis Brown scored 26 points and John Clark had 24 as the Northland Community College men's basketball team out-scored Rainy River 99-88 Tuesday at International Falls.

It was the Pioneers' first outing of the 1991-92 season against a Minnesota Community College Conference foe.

"For the first time out, I thought we did a pretty good job," said Northland coach Chet Engelman. "Our objective going in was to get as many kids as possible into the game in a hurry, and we did. All 13 were on the court in the first eight minutes, and 11 of them ended up scoring. We've got a ways to go, of course, but all-in-all, you've got to be happy with it."

Northland led 52-46 at halftime. The Pioneers were 41-for-93 from the field (44 percent) and 14-for-17 at the free throw line. The Voyageurs were 34-for-80 from the floor (43 percent) and 15-for-25 at the line.

The Pioneers, who are hosting the Northland Pepsi-Cola Invitational this weekend, will meet UND-Lake Region Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

Blue Devils earn post-season awards

Five Grygla-Goodridge football players were named to the Top of the State All-Conference team, and Jeremy Rychlock was selected as the league's most valuable lineman, capping a memorable state runner-up season for the 1991 Blue Devils.

Rychlock, Mitch Bernstein, Brandon Blaine, Shane Wilkens and Justin Lunsetter represented Grygla-Goodridge on the all-conference squad, with Jeremy Johnson included on the honorable mention list. All six are seniors.

Grygla-Goodridge fell one point short of a Nine-Man state title – a 7-6 defeat at the hands of Chokio-Alberta in the championship game to kick off Prep Bowl X at the Metrodome.

It was the Blue Devils' third straight visit to the downtown Minneapolis facility. After a 7-1 regular season, Grygla-Goodridge handled East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 43-6 at Goodridge and beat Stephen 20-7 at Grygla to win their second Section 8 title in three years. Because of the winter-like weather that hit the state early this fall, the entire state playoff package in all five classes was conducted at the Metrodome, where the Blue Devils defeated AlBrook 25-12 in the quarterfinals and routed Cromwell 44-6 in the semifinals before a 10-game win streak ended a week later in the title game.

"It was quite a season," acknowledged Grygla-Goodridge coach Darwin Hagen. "I was more excited and more nervous each week."

The Blue Devils started the year with several players on the sideline because of off-season Minnesota State High School League rules violations. They shut out Badger-Greenbush 14-0, but lost to Kittson County North 24-0 while shorthanded. With a full line-up they finished the regular season with wins over Hallock-Kennedy 21-6, Tri-County 22-20, East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 34-9, Valley North 36-12, Argyle 27-0 and Stephen 21-7 to gain a share of the Top of the State Conference title with Kittson County North and Stephen.

"At the start, we figured if things clicked we would have a pretty good season, but you never know for sure," said Hagen. "By mid-season we were starting to play some pretty good football. The kids really started playing with a lot of confidence."

Outstanding defense was the key to the Blue Devils' march to the playoff finals, but Hagen said the Grygla-Goodridge offense should not be sold short. "We played some good defense, but the offense did its job, too," he explained. "The offense controlled the ball and helped put the defense in good position."

Lunsetter was a headline-maker on offense, rushing for 1,529 yards and scoring 16 touchdowns. It was the Blue Devils' fourth straight season featuring a 1,000-yard performance by a runningback – a feat accomplished by Craig Berndt in 1988 and 1989, and by Chris Aune in 1990.

The Blue Devils rarely put the ball in the air, but Bernstein did complete 27 of 67 pass attempts for 429 yards and eight touchdowns. Wilkens was the top receiver with 10 catches for 164 yards.

Defensively, Lunsetter led the Blue Devils with 134 tackles, while Wilkens and Donovan Quam both came up with six interceptions.

Fourteen seniors filled most of the spots in the 1991 Grygla-Goodridge line-up, and their graduation will leave a bundle of holes to fill when the 1992 season rolls around. But five juniors will provide the nucleus for next year's team, and Hagen said the program is in solid shape number-wise at the younger levels.

Wolverines fall 70-44

Warroad guard Holly Carlson scored 32 points Tuesday, leading the host Warriors past Grygla-Goodridge 70-44 in girls high school basketball.

It was the second start and second loss of the 1991-92 season for the Wolverines, who dropped a 50-37 first-game decision to Badger-Greenbush the previous night.

The Warriors' pressure defense caused problems for the Wolverines, who trailed at the quarter stops 19-6, 28-18 and 46-23.

"We self-destructed," said Grygla-Goodridge coach Mike Gast. "Their press bothered us more than it should have. We're not real good ball handlers. I know we play a lot of younger kids, but they're going to have to play older than what they

Mustangs lose 52-48 match-up against Indians

For the second time in two season-opening starts, the Red Lake County Central girls were unable to carry a third quarter lead through the end of the game Thursday as the Mustangs dropped a 52-48 decision at Mahnomen.

The Indians led 12-10 at the end of the first quarter, but the Mustangs were up 21-20 at halftime and began the fourth quarter with a 37-33 lead.

"Our lack of experience is showing up in the fourth quarter," said Red Lake County Central coach Rick Koivisto, whose team fell to Fertile-Beltrami 55-42 earlier in the week.

Dawn Bochond scored a game-high 19 points to lead the Mustangs, while Jill Radniecki netted 11 and Cheryl Greenwold had 10.

Red Lake County Central was 16-for-51 from the field (31 percent) and 16-for-26 at the free throw line. Mahnomen went 23-for-74 from the field (31 percent) and wound up 4-for-12 at the line.

Sixteen first half turnovers didn't help, mentioned Koivisto. "We had way too many turnovers, especially in the first half," he said.

The Mustangs play Clearbrook-Gonvick Monday at Clearbrook and will host their annual Red Lake County Central Invitational Dec. 12 and 14.

1991-92 boys high school basketball season...

Middle River stocked with veterans

Experience will be a big plus for Middle River this winter as the Skippers head into the 1991-92 boys high school basketball season with five of their top six players back from a 14-9 team.

Leading scorer Wade Walton, who averaged 18 points per game, was lost to graduation, but he was the lone senior on last year's squad. Seniors Gilbert Olson and Jarrett Walton, plus juniors David Blazek and John Sparby were starters last winter, while junior David Nelson came off the bench as the sixth man. Olson, who averaged 9.9 points and 7.7 rebounds per game, was an all-conference pick. Walton carried a 10.5 scoring average, Blazek 7.7 and Sparby 7.6 on a very balanced 1990-91 team.

That same balance should prevail this winter. "We've got four starters back with a season under their belt," noted Middle River head coach Eldon Sparby, "and they're all very evenly balanced, talent-wise. I don't think we've got the one kid who will score 15-18 points every night, but we've got a number of kids who can contribute."

The Skippers, who are normally on the small side, will be able to field a line-up that range in height from 6-0 to 6-2. "We're not big, but we're bigger than we have been for a while," noted Sparby.

Juniors Jason Simmons, Richard Wappula and Dan Koehmstedt, along with sophomore Jake Rantanen, also figure to see playing time for the Skippers, who hope to be competitive in the North Border Conference, where Roseau is a heavy pre-season favorite.

"If we could throw Roseau out of the league, we could have a legitimate shot at the title," quipped Sparby. "Teams like Grygla, Warroad, Newfolden (Marshall County Central) and ourselves should be pretty balanced."

Middle River was scheduled to open the season tonight (Friday) against Lake of the Woods in Baudette. The Skippers' second start – their home opener – will be Dec. 13 vs. Badger-Greenbush.

MCC basketball survives

There is no truth to the rumor that Marshall County Central boys and girls basketball teams will be changing their names from the Nordics to the Road Warriors this winter.

But it would certainly fit. Part of the myriad of problems facing School District 441 officials following a November fire that wiped out the Newfolden school deals with athletics – basketball. The two teams are scrambling for everything from practice facilities to uniforms.

Court time includes the sharing of the antiquated Newfolden elementary school gym, plus facilities at Middle River, Strandquist and Northland Community College – when available.

Marshall County Central girls started the season with a jamboree appearance wearing volleyball uniforms, and began the schedule with basketball practice tops that arrived just prior to Tuesday's opener at Middle River. The boys were scheduled to open tonight (Friday) against Red Lake County Central in Plummer.

- MCC Girls -

Search for some scoring ranks high on the priority list for Marshall County Central girls coach Tom Mjelde following the graduation losses of Darcene Moen (19.9 points and 9.2 rebounds per game) and Kinzie Anderson (10.2 ppg). Moen was a 1,000-point scorer in her high school basketball career.

"Scoring is our main concern," acknowledged Mjelde. "Anybody can play defense. We have to find somebody to put the ball in the basket."

It's a young team, with just two seniors – Kim Davidson and Michelle Nelson – and only three juniors – Sandi Gustafson, Mary Rokke, Dawn Soustad.

Sophomores Shanon Mogner, Sara Lokstad and Jill Fosholm will be seeing varsity playing time, and there are some younger players who give promise to a solid future for the program.

"We're really young," admitted Mjelde. "We have to get some playing time under our belts."

The Nordics went 16-9 a year ago, losing a 42-38 double-overtime decision to Stephen in the District 32A finals.

- MCC Boys -

Marshall County Central boys head coach Ron Ueland won't let graduation losses or lack of facilities cast a cloud on an optimistic outlook.

Only three lettermen are back from last year's senior-dominated 17-6 squad, but Ueland said the program is still in solid shape. The 1991-92 varsity will be staffed by players coming off a 19-2 junior varsity.

"I like to think of it as reloading, not rebuilding," offered Ueland. "We don't have any 'prime-time' players, but our three lettermen are real solid players, and we have another half-dozen or so who should step in and do a nice job for us. We're confident we can be competitive."

Senior captain Robbie Anderson, plus juniors Ivan Hirst and Tim Olson, are the returning lettermen.

Rest of the squad includes seniors Leif Stennes, Jared Olson, Kent Benett, Chad Bjorgaard and Jason Leader; juniors Jeremy Tallum, Shane Borg, Chad Hanson, Travis Knutson and Steve Nelson; sophomores Scott Zak, Scott Yonke, Aaron Skadsem, Shawn Leach and Dean Engen; plus freshmen Brandon Borg and Kent Rokke.

"We've got good speed and fair height," mentioned Ueland. "The kids worked really hard in the off-season. It should be a real interesting year for us."

The Nordics' 1991-92 'home' schedule will include five games at Northland Community College – including a Tuesday match-up with Warren – four in Middle River and one at Lincoln High School in Thief River Falls. But the schedule isn't a major concern, according to Ueland. "Logistically, it's a headache, of course," he said, "but I've never really put that much stock into a home court edge. It may be tough, but maybe we can use it as a badge of courage."

Among the graduation losses were were Jeremy Underdahl (16.9 points per game), Jason Honson (16.7), Ron Inman (10.7), Keith Boe (9.9) and Mike Rokke (6.8). Underdahl hit the 1,000-point mark during his high school basketball career.

Sara Lokstad sets Marshall Co. Central scoring record...

Nordics beat Wolverines

Sophomore Sara Lokstad scored a school-record 33 points Thursday as Marshall County Central defeated Grygla-Goodridge 67-36 in a girls high school basketball game played at Grygla.

Lokstad bettered the Nordics' previous single-game scoring record – a 31-point effort by Darcene Moen – set just last year.

The outcome put Marshall County Central at 1-1 and Grygla-Goodridge at 0-3.

"We shot the ball better than we did against Middle River," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde, whose team shot just 22 percent in a 52-41 loss to the Skippers Tuesday. This time a bundle of lay-ups improved the figure to 40 percent (30-for-75). "Sara did a nice job inside, and we passed the ball extremely well."

Kim Davidson added 10 points to the Nordics' total. Senior Kathy Smeby, who missed the first two Grygla-Goodridge games because of a knee injury, donned a brace and collected a team-high 15 points. Freshman Amber Wilkens added 13.

"We played awful defense," reported Grygla-Goodridge coach Mike Gast. "We gave up way too many points on lay-ups."

Marshall County Central had quarter leads of 18-8, 28-17 and 55-30.

The Wolverines were 15-for-60 from the field (25 percent) and 6-for-14 at the free throw line, where the Nordics went 7-for-10. Marshall County Central had a 40-27 rebound advantage, and Grygla-Goodridge topped the turnover charts 26-21.

Marshall County Central will play Warroad Monday at Northland Community College, beginning with a junior varsity game at 6:30 p.m. The Nordics visit Roseau Thursday. Grygla-Goodridge will meet Lake of the Woods Monday in Grygla before heading to the Red Lake County Central Invitational Dec. 12 and 14 in Plummer.

Pioneers lose opener at Rainy River, 78-73

Rainy River spotted Northland a 10-0 head start, then came back to beat the visiting Pioneers 78-73 Tuesday in women's Minnesota Community College Conference basketball at International Falls.

It was the 1991-92 season-opener for the Pioneers.

"We started strong," noted Northland coach Sue Barnd. "We got the fast break going right away. But they (Rainy River) made some adjustments, and we started making some silly passes. We had way too many turnovers."

It was tied 33-33 at halftime and the Pioneers were within a basket at the end before the Voyageurs finished with a five-point spread.

Rhonda Rothschadl scored a game-high 24 points for the Pioneers. Teammate Alice Dunning came up a 15-point, 13-rebound first-game performance, while freshmen Jill Brantl and Melanie Martin both scored 11 points.

Daphne Walker and Danielle Jones scored 22 and 20 points, respectively, to lead the Rainy River attack.

Northland shot an impressive 55 percent from the field (28-for-51) and had a 9-for-13 showing at the free throw line. Rainy River was 4-for-11 at the line.

The Pioneers, who are hosting the Northland Pepsi-Cola Invitational this weekend, will play Itasca Tuesday at 6 p.m. in Grand Rapids.

Middle River tips Warroad with defense

According to head coach Tom Neibauer, the Middle River defense was suspect coming into the 1991-92 girls high school basketball season. But Thursday, his Skippers won with defense as they shut down visiting Warroad 42-29 for their second win of the week.

Middle River had a 10-3 first quarter lead and opened up a 23-9 halftime cushion. It was 34-21 at the end of the third quarter.

The defense bailed out the offense this time, acknowledged Neibauer. The Skippers turned the ball over 36 times. "Offensively, it was ugly," said Neibauer. "But with the young team we have, we're not going to win pretty all the time."

Holly Gram led the Skippers in two ways, grabbing 12 first half rebounds, and then scoring eight of her game-high 17 points in the third quarter. Krissi Super added 10 points to the Middle River attack. Holly Carlson, after two big offensive nights to start the year, again led the Warriors, but this time was limited to 11 points.

Middle River was 14-for-31 from the field (45 percent) and 14-for-25 at the free throw line.

The Skippers host Roseau Monday.

Winter Boat Storage

Now that the boating season is over, it's time to prepare craft for winter storage. An hour or two spent putting your boat and motor to "bed" will pay big dividends next spring, said Tim Smalley, Minnesota Department of Natural Resources boating safety specialist.

Smalley recommends the following procedures to make the job easier:

• Fill the fuel tanks and add a good fuel conditioner. The conditioner stabilizes the fuel for up to one year and prevents gum and varnish from entering the fuel system.

• Flush the cooling system, remove plugs, and drain all water from inboard and inboard-outboard engines. This step can save you the headache and expense of a cracked engine block.

• Check spark plugs and replace if necessary. While the plugs are out, inject rust preventative oil into the plug holes. Then crank the engine a few times to make sure the oil is spread inside the powerhead.

• Check the entire fuel system for leaks. United States Coast Guard studies have shown that the use of gasoline with alcohol additives (gasohol) may have harmful effects on rubber fuel lines and metal fuel tanks, even to the point of causing dangerous leaks. Fuel tank corrosion can cause rust to clog the fuel filter and the engine may stop at a most inopportune moment. Smalley recommends replacing any deteriorated items and carefully checking fuel filters for rust.

• Drain oil and refill the crankcase on inboard-outboard and inboard engines. Also, replace the oil filter.

• Change gear case lubricant on lower unit of outboards and inboard-outboards. Even a small amount of water trapped in the gear case can cause damage, especially if allowed to freeze.

• Check props for nicks and damage. Even slight damage can mean the loss of performance. Worse yet, since damage is usually not done to each blade uniformly, the resulting imbalance vibrations can cause fatigue damage to other parts of the engine or drive. Up to a point, dealers can restore a propeller to like-new condition for a fraction of the cost of a new one.

• Store outboards in an upright position.

• Boats should be cleaned inside and out and covered, even when stored indoors. Remember to allow for air circulation under the cover to prevent mildew from getting a start.

• Drain any water accumulated in the bilges and leave the transom drain plug out. To avoid embarrassment at the boat ramp, leave a note in an obvious spot to remind yourself to replace the drain plug in the spring.

• Examine trailer tires and grease all wheel bearings, replacing them if necessary.

• Put the trailer up on blocks. That will make your tires last longer and your boat a lot less likely target for theft.

"Taking a little time in the fall to get that motor ready for winter will mean you'll be one of the first boaters back on the water when warm weather returns," Smalley noted.

Middle River opens with win over MCC girls...

Skippers top Nordics 52-41

Middle River jumped out to a 16-4 first quarter lead and rolled to a 52-41 girls high school basketball win over Marshall County Central Tuesday.

Originally scheduled to be played at Marshall County Central, the 1991-92 season opener for both teams was switched to Middle River because of the fire that destroyed the Newfolden school earlier this fall.

Middle River eighth grader Krissi Super led all scorers with 16 points as the Skippers maintained a 29-16 halftime spread and opened up a 45-26 third quarter cushion. Kim Davidson led Marshall County Central with 14 points, while teammate Sara Lokstad contributed 10.

Although the schools are cooperative partners in some athletic programs, the competitive community rivalry still exists, acknowledged Skippers head coach Tom Neibauer. "In Middle River, any time you beat Newfolden, it's a good win," he said.

"Offensively, I was satisfied," added Neibauer, "but our defense needs a lot of work."

It was the first of what will be a season full of road games for the Nordics and head coach Tom Mjelde.

"We started slow," acknowledged Mjelde. "We had some good shots, but they wouldn't go in. The kids hung in there and didn't quit, but we got down too far at the start."

Middle River shot a solid 47 percent from the field (18-for-38), while Marshall County Central struggled through a 22 per cent shooting performance (13-for-57). The Skippers were 16-for-27 at the free throw line, where the Nordics went 15-for-21. Middle River finished with a 32-29 rebound edge, but the Skippers gave up 19 offensive boards to the Nordics, who topped the turnover charts 17-16.

Jacki Kiesow grabbed 11 rebounds for the Wolverines, but the Warriors finished with a 37-35 edge on the boards.

Deer Poaching Restitution

A Becker County resident who recently pled guilty to a misdemeanor charge of possessing five deer over the limit, was sentenced Nov. 18 in Detroit Lakes by Seventh District Judge Thomas Schroeder.

Rodney Lee Weiss of rural Park Rapids was sentenced to 90 days in jail and fined $700 – the maximum penalty in a misdemeanor case – plus $85 in surcharges and court costs. Thirty days of the 90-day sentence was suspended. However, Judge Schroeder ordered Weiss to begin serving the 60 days immediately. Weiss' deer rifle and the illegal venison were confiscated.

In addition to the jail sentence and fine, Weiss was also ordered to pay restitution, under provision of Minnesota's new Wildlife Restitution Act, in the amount of $500 per deer. The $2,500 will be credited to the state game and fish fund.

The Wildlife Restitution Act was passed by the 1989 Minnesota Legislature. In 1990, a lengthy legal process established individual monetary values for most species of fish, game and nongame wildlife in Minnesota. The Wildlife Restitution Act requires prosecutors and judges to consider these values when fish and wildlife resources have been illegally taken, possessed, injured or destroyed; and allows restitution payments to the assessed in addition to fines and other criminal penalties imposed by the court.

Strong finish sends Falcons past RLCC

Fertile-Beltrami out-scored Red Lake County Central 17-3 down the stretch Tuesday as the host Falcons pulled away from the Mustangs 55-42 in season-opening girls high school basketball.

It was a dead-even game until the Mustangs' offense went cold at the end. The teams played to a 9-9 first quarter tie and were still deadlocked at halftime, 21-21. Red Lake County Central had a one-basket, 34-32 lead at the end of the third quarter and maintained a 39-38 edge before the bottom fell out.

"We really played well for 3 1/2 quarters," said Red Lake County Central coach Rick Kolvisto. "Then the lid closed on us."

Still, it was a solid first-game effort, said Kovisto, especially for a program trying to overcome heavy graduation losses.

Cheryl Greenwald scored 17 points and Jenny Walter had 12 for the Mustangs. Tricia Swenson scored eight of her game-high 18 points in the Falcons' fourth quarter run.

The cold fourth quarter dropped the Mustangs to 21 percent shooting for the night (13-for-63). They were 14-for-19 at the free throw line, where the Falcons were 3-for-8. Fertile-Beltrami out-rebounded Red Lake County Central 36-28.

Middle River girls basketball...

Skippers are starting against tough teams

It won't take long to find out where the Middle River girls fit into the North Border Conference basketball picture this year, pointed out Skippers head coach Tom Neibauer.

Hit hard by graduation losses, Middle River faced the challenge of beginning its title defense against three top contenders in a season-opening seven-day run. Fortunately for the Skippers, the match-ups with Marshall County Central, Warroad and Roseau were all slated for the Middle River gym.

"We start with three of the toughest teams on our schedule," said Neibauer. "If we can come out of it winning two of the three games, we should be in pretty good shape."

But double-figure scorers Darci Hanson (13.1 points per game) and Kim Peterson (12.1), along with three other seniors on last year's 17-8 squad, are not around. In fact, Denise Johnson and Holly Gram are the Skippers' only 1991-92 seniors.

Juniors Andi Nelson and Sherie Melby (who missed the opener because of illness), sophomores Sara Melby and Robyn Iverson, freshman Heather Anderson and eighth grader Krissi Super will lead this year's squad.

Melby, Super and Johnson present the Skippers with top-notch passers, and in Iverson and Gram they have a couple of inside players. But defense is a major concern at this point, according to Neibauer. "Last year we were the No. 1 team in the conference in defense," he pointed out. "We're a long ways from that right now."

Clearwater County Commissioner Named to state group

Bagley — Clearwater County Commissioner Warren Larson was elected vice president of the Association of Minnesota Counties recently at the AMC's 83rd annual conference. Larson has served as a Clearwater county commissioner for four years and served as AMC's second vice president during 1991. (Farmers Independent)

Roseau women "deck the bridge"

Roseau — Jackie Holwell, Colleen Olson, Pam Erickson, Carol Bradley, Cindy Holwell and Jeannie Hamness, all Roseau residents, took time recently to deck the Roseau bridge by attaching live garland and red bows to the sides. Lights may be added later and, if the city likes the decorations, artificial garland will be purchased next year so it can be reused after that. (Roseau Times-Region)

DOT installs new weather monitor at Fosston airport

Fosston — The Minnesota department of transportation has installed a new state of the art weather monitoring system at the Fosston municipal airport. According to David Buness of Fosston, one of the installers, the automated weather system provides the latest technology to area pilots and residents. A computer at the Fosston airport is fed information from a 30-foot tower and three remote sensors located on airport property and monitors nine different weather conditions: wind speed and direction, cloud ceiling height, visibility, rainfall, temperature, barometric pressure, relative humidity and dew point. (Thirteen Towns)

Guides and resort owners unite at meeting

Williams — Area guides and resort owners called a meeting recently to organize and unite in an effort to stave off the annual influx of Canadian regulations that has made doing business on the American side of the Lake of the Woods difficult in recent years. Information has been received by the group that the Canadian government is considering a requirement that American guides on Lake of the Woods have work permits if they entered Canadian waters. The guides claim it would kill their business and would damage the business of the resorts at the Northwest Angle, which is almost surrounded by Canadian waters. According to individuals present at the meeting, Canadian officials would not be willing to give out work permits to American guides as long as there were unemployed Canadian guides. The group is planning meetings with Canadian resorters and possibly some lobbying. (Northern Light)

Ancient remains reburied at Grand Mound

International Falls — The remains of approximately 350 Native American people, who lived in the Rainy River area between 1,200 and 2,200 years ago, have been reburied in a small reconstructed earthen mound at the Minnesota Historical society's Grand Mound historic site west of International Falls. The site was chosen for two reasons: it is a protected archaeological site and it was from this Laurel period (200 BC to AD 800) mound group that almost half of the remains and materials originally were excavated. The reinterment represents the return of approximately one-fourth of the human remains and grave goods identified in the University of Minnesota's archaeological holdings. This particular assemblage resulted from excavations in 1933, 1939 and 1956. Tribal spiritual helpers were on hand to assist the procedure. (Baudette Region)

Index reporter is co-author of humorous diet book

Ada — When every other diet trick has failed and taking off a few extra pounds is necessary, where can a desperate dieter turn? The Absolute Last Chance Diet Book, which was written by John Kolnese of Hendrum and Tim Halle of Ada, answers this question. Halle is a reporter/photographer for the Norman County Index. The book explains that people take dieting too seriously and gives such advice as "Never gut your fish." The book is available at B. Dalton Bookstores and Spencer Gift stores. (Norman County Index)

Erskine man runs into fuel pumps at Conoco station

Erskine — Donald Jorgenson, 72, of Erskine, totaled a 1978 Ford pickup that he was driving after running into the Conoco station fuel pumps and building at Fuel 'N Things about 10 a.m. Wednesday, November 27. A fuel pump under the pickup caught fire and was put out by the Erskine fire department. The Polk County Sheriff's department had to pry Jorgenson out of the vehicle with crow bars. (Erskine Echo)

Deadline for transit survey is extended

Red Lake county residents who received a survey regarding the need for transportation services are reminded to return the survey to the Northwest Regional Development commission (NWRDC) by December 13, an extension of the previous deadline of December 6.

A self-addressed stamped envelope was included with the survey. Responses will be compiled at the NWRDC and the information obtained will be reported to the Red Lake County Committee on Aging, Tri-Valley Heartland express and other interested groups.

The transportation and aging programs are assisting the committee on aging with the county-wide survey.

"Cooperation of those receiving and returning the survey is very much appreciated and will help to better meet the needs of individuals in Red Lake county regarding transit service," states Sandy Warner of the NWRDC office.

"If you received a copy of the survey and have not yet returned it, please do so as soon as possible."

SD 441 gets approval to rebuild high school

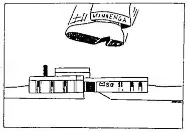
The school's heating plant was virtually intact following the fire and only a change in pipe routing and closing up of open areas will be required to heat the shop, gymnasium, music room and locker room areas which are expected to be re-used

"We have to get heat into the areas so they can be dried out and the cleaners can start their work," Supt. Busch said.

At the school assembly Tuesday afternoon, Supt. Busch told the students that with all the other burdens they had with scattered temporary classrooms and curtailed activities, they now also have the burden of proving to the community and the state that rebuilding the school is the right decision.

He said there is a future for the small school in Minnesota and—in reference to the commissioner's suggestion of merger with School District 564 at Thief River Falls—"we don't want to be Prowlers, we still want to be Nordics, right?" The response was enthusiastic applause.



Board treasurer Mark Carlson assured the students that the rebuilding effort would be "full speed ahead" and Supt. Busch added he hoped the gymnasium could be ready for use for graduation of the Class of 1992.

Rep. Wally Sparby said he thought the plan laid out was a good plan to make sure the rebuilding would take place. He thanked the students and their parents for support and said the letters he had received would be answered "if you will just give me a little time."

Rep. Jim Tunheim said the approval promised by the commissioner should help people in the community recognize how important any of them are. He said the switchboard at the governor's office was often filled in the past few days with many of the calls being from Newfolden.

Principal Ron Paggen told the students it was a "joyful day" and despite the cold weather the news of approval for rebuilding "should warm all of us up." He said the tragedy of the fire had brought the people of the school district together and that people are showing enthusiasm for the school and its programs.

As a symbol that Marshall County Central is coming back, a large evergreen tree on the high school grounds will be hung with Christmas lights. No date has been set at this time for an official lighting ceremony.

Now outdated following Education Commissioner Gene Mammenga's decision to permit Marshall County Central (MCC) high school to be rebuilt, this cartoon was drawn by John Lee, president of the MCC student council, when the commissioner had announced earlier he would give an unfavorable review to the rebuilding plan. It was displayed in the school office where his mother, Joan Lee, is payroll clerk.

John Lee, president of the Marshall County Central student council, was caught unprepared when he was called upon to speak for the student body at Tuesday's assembly. It was announced at the assembly that approval had been received to rebuild Marshall County Central high school.

Not much remains of a truck that was struck by a Burlington Northern train at an intersection near Greenbush. The truck was hauling gas and diesel fuel which ignited after the truck was dragged down the track about 150 yards. Two train engines, four train cars hauling wood, and a caboose were also destroyed in the accident. The driver of the truck and the train engineer escaped with minor injuries. Charges of racism end hopes for casino

Charges of racism anger and embarrass community

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Racist threats and two last minute phone calls caused the Red Lake Band of Chippewa to turn from Thief River Falls as a possible site for a casino, according to Bill Hallett, the tribe's economic development director.

The tribal council for the Red Lake Band of Chippewa decided on Tuesday to study Red Lake Falls and East Grand Forks as possible sites for a proposed casino. Hallett said Thief River Falls and Crookston are out of the question at this point.

Hallett said "nobody is as disappointed as I am with the decision that was made during a tribal council meeting Tuesday". Hallett said one of the biggest reasons for not going with Thief River Falls was comments from a few racists.

Hallett said during the meeting the chairman read some comments from two telephone calls to the council that morning. One was from David Grothe of Thief River Falls, that he claimed, threatened to picket and "other things". He also said the council received a telephone call from Mark Hanson of Thief River Falls that was threatening.

Hallett said it was especially disappointing in that he and a few others had spent so much time on the proposal. He also said it was disappointing in that a good relationship had been developed with business leaders in the community of Thief River Falls.

Don Stewart, community development director, said he was "very, very frustrated and angry," but was waiting to talk to Grothe and Hanson to see what they said.

Mark Hanson, chairman of the Pennington County Township Officers Association, said he was really surprised at the accusations because it was a pleasant conversation. He said he basically told the person he talked to the same information he provided at the public meeting held in the city auditorium this fall. That information included the results of a poll conducted by the township association. He said the fact that he called during the tribal council's meeting was a coincidence because he didn't even know they were holding a meeting at the time.

David Grothe, who has been a leading opponent to the proposed casino, said he was not pleased with the tone of how it ended. It was not a pre-determined telephone call; there was no planning, he said. It was also not his intent to sound threatening.

Since the announcement of the tribal council's decision, Grothe said he has received a steady stream of telephone calls. Of the individuals angry with him, only one has given his name. Grothe said he guesses he knew what the consequences of making the telephone could be and he was willing to accept that.

In response to a request from The Times, Grothe prepared the following comments regarding his telephone call to the tribal council office:

"A very gracious lady received the call. I gave her my name and said that I wanted to inform the tribal leaders that in spite of the city and county's decision, we would continue our opposition to the casi-

Lodging tax increase looked at by Chamber

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Last Thursday, Chamber of Commerce officials presented the finance committee of the Thief River Falls city council with a proposal to increase the city's lodging tax.

"Nothings cast yet. It's still in the brainstorming stages," said Julie Olson, director of the Convention and Visitors Bureau. Olson said they approached the finance committee to see only if it were possible. At the time, the proposal hadn't even been run before the motels yet.

Motel representatives learned of the proposal Tuesday. According to J.J. Womack, city alderman, the group gave their okay to an increase. Womack said the increase is needed for increases in salaries, rent and a desire to expand advertising.

A three per cent lodging tax, compared to the two per cent tax instituted in 1984 is being proposed. The amendment may be considered by the Thief River Falls city council at its next meeting, scheduled for December 17. The last time the lodging tax was amended was in 1986.

Currently, the tax raises about

School program makes it easier to volunteer

"Preschool Volunteer Friends" allows more freedom for involvement

More parents with pre-school children can become involved with the volunteer program in the Thief River Falls public schools as a result of the "Preschool Volunteer Friends" program initiated this year, according to Carol Ihle, school volunteer coordinator.

"While parents volunteer," Mrs. Ihle explained, "their pre-school children age three and older participate in the Preschool Resource and Enrichment Program (PREP) which serves preschoolers with special needs at Knox elementary school."

Donna Nelson is classroom teacher in the PREP program with Ardello Offerdahl as educational assistant. PREP provides its students with a number of educational activities, free play and other assistance.

"Children of the school volunteers not only get to have the fun of participating in this program but they also serve as good role models for the students involved in the PREP program," Mrs. Ihle added.

"There are currently 16 preschoolers enrolled in the Preschool Volunteer Friends program. They participate in the program for one-half day one to two times a week. While the preschoolers are busy learning and growing together in the PREP room, their parents are involved in volunteer activities at all the District 564 schools."

There are many areas for volunteerism in the schools and many hours are spent by many people in volunteer service. Ihle said that some of the areas for volunteer service include clerical (photocopying, typing, laminating and mailings), classroom help (reading, mathematics, spelling and writing), libraries, school stores, helping students with homework, chaperoning, resource speakers and special projects (art, parties, field trips, Christmas programs, vision and hearing screening, Junior Great Books program and others).

Preschool Volunteer Friends provide their volunteer service on a weekly basis. Other volunteers in the program do their volunteer work in accordance with their own schedules, some working more than a day a week and some less. Options can vary from several days a week to only once or twice a year.

"This is what makes the volunteer program in the local schools so successful," Mrs. Ihle said of the flexibility of scheduling. "Some volunteers work in different schools, with different age levels of students, and some choose to work at home. The variety of needs from clerical to hands-on activities with children also offers many areas of service.

"We are really happy that the Preschool Volunteer Friends program is working out so well," she added. " The children really enjoy the PREP program and the parents enjoy having the time available to volunteer and help out in our schools."

There are still some openings in the new program. Anyone with a preschooler age three or older, who would like to volunteer in the schools and is interested in having the child participate in the Preschool Volunteer Friends program, may contact Carol Ihle at 681-8358 for details on the program.

She may also be contacted by anyone interested in volunteer service in the schools for information on the many areas of service available.

Garbage/sewer rate increases approved in TRF

Residents can expect to pay more for sewer and garbage in the new year. Thief River Falls city council adopted ordinances increasing the rates for sewer and garbage Tuesday night.

The sewer rate increase adopted by the council Tuesday night is expected to raise about $40,000 for the sewer department. The rate increase is expected to add about 50 cents to the residential service charge. Increases will be more substantial for heavier users.

The rate increase is necessary to offset a projected budget deficit in the sewer department of $22,000, and allow the department to begin setting aside funds for repairs or modifications to the wastewater ponds. The repairs and modifications are expected to be necessary within the next three to four years.

Sewer rate increases since 1980 include a usage rate increase in 1980 and 1985, and service charge increases in 1984, 1985 and 1987.

■ The city council has approved a $1 increase in garbage collection rates.

Tuesday night, the council also approved an increase in the garbage collection rate. The ordinance will increase rates from $10 to $11 per residential customer and will take effect January 1.

In an interview later, Bob Jablinske, sanitation department supervisor, explained that the rate increase was needed to offset a projected budget deficit. It is also needed for reserves which have been drawn down the past few

Christmas Ornaments

Do you have your Christmas tree up yet? Young children enjoy "helping" with this activity, and parents want to have the tree be something that children can enjoy and become a part of the activity. One way to accomplish this is to help them make ornaments to hang on the tree.

To do this you will need Christmas cookie cutters, colored paper, scissors, glue and glitter. Simply trace around the cutter, cut out and decorate with glitter, markers, stickers or anything else that seems pretty and creative. Use a paper punch to put a hole in the decoration, put a little piece of string through it and you now have a new Christmas tree ornament.

SCAVENGER HUNT

For next week's Activities feature, you will need colored paper, scissors, a paper punch and yarn.

BOOK OF THE WEEK

Christmas books recommended by the Thief River Falls public library:

Bright, Robert. Georgie's Christmas Carol. Back home in New England, Georgie, the little ghost, helps make Christmas a little merrier for everyone.

Brown, Michael. Santa Mouse. Santa gives a nameless mouse a special gift for Christmas.

Cazet, Denys. Christmas Moon. Patrick misses Grandpa, especially at Christmas, but his mother helps him to remember happy times with Grandpa and to use what Grandpa taught him to make Christmas happy for himself and his friends.

Cazet, Denys. December 24th. Young robbits Emily and Louie have a special reason for giving their grandfather a present on December 24, but first he must guess why it's a special day.

PARENTING TIPS

Giving Gifts

Many of you are struggling with the problems of a materialistic society at a time when gift giving is not only appropriate but expected! We expect to give to our children. We give food, shelter, clothing and love all year as best we can. We also expect to give to them at Christmas. But what does all this giving teach children? If children are always on the receiving end, will they think that only big people give and only little people receive?

All children start out as selfish, self-centered individuals; as they grow so does their ability to give and share. The holiday season is an ideal time to reinforce a child's developing spirit of generosity. According to Parents magazine, December 1991, children as young as two or three don't yet have a real understanding of giving but are aware of the good feelings associated with it. So even though you'll have to pick out the gifts they give, you can involve a toddler in the act of giving the gift. By giving gifts with you, your child will share your good feelings and will also begin to learn the joys that are associated with giving.

Even though each child's generosity develops at a different pace, you should try to keep him/her involved in the entire process of giving as much as possible. The ability to give as well as receive is a life long process which begins at birth.

(Contributed by the Early Childhood Family Education department of School District 564.)

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

When your child gives you something such as a bug or a "drawing" be sure to show and express your appreciation.

CHRISTMAS COOKIE BOOK

Here are some more of my tested tried and true Christmas cookie recipes for you.

These cookies can be made ahead and refrigerated for simple baking, and they look just like Christmas:

Ribbon Cookies
1 cup butter
1 1/2 cups sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 1/2 cups flour
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup chopped candied cherries (red)
1/4 cup chopped candied cherries (green)
1/3 cup chocolate chips, melted
1/4 cup chopped pecans
Red and green food coloring

Cream butter, eggs, sugar and vanilla. Blend in flour, baking powder and salt. Divide dough into three parts.

Mix red cherries and food coloring in one portion of dough.

Mix green cherries and food coloring in another.

Mix chocolate and pecans in third portion.

Line bottom and sides of 9x5x3 inch loaf pan with foil. Pat red dough into pan, then chocolate, then green. Press each layer down firmly and smooth.

Cover with foil and refrigerate until firm or overnight. Let stand a half hour or so at room temperature before slicing.

Slice in half lengthwise in pan and then into 1/8 inch slices. Bake at 350 degrees for 10-12 minutes. Sprinkle with sugar before baking, if you like.

These rich little goodies are spiced just right.

Cinnamon Sticks
3/4 cup butter
1/4 cup shortening
3 tablespoons sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 teaspoon rum extract
2 cups flour

Cream butter, shortening, sugar, salt and flavorings. Blend in flour.

Roll out about 1/2 inch thick and cut into strips. Bake at 350 degrees until lightly browned. While hot, roll in mixture of cinnamon and sugar to suit taste. Recipe makes about 5 dozen cookies.

These little goodies will melt in your mouth:

Peanut Butter Cups
1 cup peanut butter
2 cups powdered sugar
1/2 cup melted butter
2 1/2 pounds milk chocolate candy coating little paper candy cups

Mix peanut butter, powdered sugar and melted butter. Make small balls and chill.

Melt chocolate according to directions on package and put a small amount into each paper cup. Pop in peanut butter ball and then cover with chocolate.

Christmas isn't right without these cookies on the plate:

Mexican Wedding Cakes
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup shortening
1/2 cup powdered sugar
1 3/4 cups flour
2/3 cup walnuts, chopped fine

Mix butter, shortening, powdered sugar well. Add flour and walnuts.

Roll into small balls and place on cookie sheet. Bake at 350 degrees about 10 minutes, until lightly browned. Keep an eye on these, as they burn easily.

Dip warm cookies in powdered sugar, let cool, then roll in more powdered sugar.

Orange Christmas cookies—I found this recipe in the Grand Forks Herald a few years ago. It is from Mrs. Elden Rudie of McIntosh:

Orange Buttermilk Cookies
3/4 cup butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
1 egg
2 1/2 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon soda
1/2 cup buttermilk
3 tablespoons orange juice
2 teaspoon grated orange rind

Cream butter and sugar well. Beat in egg. Sift flour, salt and soda and add alternately with buttermilk. Stir in juice and rind.

Drop on ungreased cookie sheets and bake at 375 degrees for 10 minutes. Cool

Orange Frosting
1 1/2 cups powdered sugar
2 tablespoons melted butter
3 tablespoons orange juice
1 teaspoon orange rind

Mix together and frost cooled cookies.

These soft, fruit-filled Christmas cookies are another favorite:

Christmas Fruit Cookies
1/2 cup shortening
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg
1 3/4 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon soda
1/4 cup thick sour cream
3/4 cup chopped pecans
1 cup candied red and green cherries, halved
1 cup chopped dates

Cream shortening, sugar and egg. Add flour, salt and soda and mix well. Stir in sour cream pecans, cherries and dates.

Drop by teaspoonfuls on lightly greased cookie sheet. Put pecans on top and press into dough. Bake at 350-375 degrees for 10-13 minutes.

Here is something yummy for the chocolate lovers in your house, and they are easy, too:

Chocolate Nut Meringues
6 ounces semisweet chocolate chips
2 egg whites (room temperature)
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon vinegar
1/8 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
3/4 cup chopped walnuts

Melt chocolate and let cool slightly.

Beat egg whites until foamy. Gradually add sugar, 2 tablespoons at a time, beating until stiff peaks form. Add vinegar, salt and vanilla, beating well. Fold in chocolate and walnuts.

Drop mixture by teaspoonfuls two inches apart on well-greased cookie sheets. Bake at 300 degrees for about 20 minutes. Cool well and store in airtight container.

Christmas Eve dinner sponsors need volunteers

Volunteers available to deliver meals to homebound, serve the community Christmas Eve dinner at Lon's Restaurant or assist with clean-up are encouraged to call the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce office and have their names placed on the list.

Co-chairmen Pat Gaffaney and Jim Efteland said about eight drivers and vehicles are needed to deliver the meals starting at 5 p.m. The sit-down dinner at Lon's, which is open to anyone in the community who will not have family to share with on Christmas Eve, will also be served starting at 5 p.m. Bus pick-up of persons who do not have their own transportation and who call 681-3720 to make arrangements to be picked up will begin about 4 p.m.

Child-sitting service with movies to be shown will be available at Lon's. Preparations are being made to serve 300 meals at Lon's and by home delivery. Peggy Bruzek is in charge of arranging special treats which will be distributed to everyone during a visit by Santa Claus.

Turkey and other food will be prepared at Lon's for the dinner. Someone to prepare the lutefisk is being sought and any experienced volunteers are invited to contact Gaffaney or Efteland.

Persons interested in making cash donations to purchase food for the dinner may send them to the chamber of commerce office or to John Sherack, financial chairman, at 319 Knight Avenue South in Thief River Falls.

Cookies, bars, lefse and similar items are also needed and may be donated by bringing them to Lon's Restaurant prior to December 24.

Old-fashioned sleigh ride party planned

Middle River — The Middle River merchants will sponsor an old-fashioned horse drawn sleigh ride for the community December 22 beginning at 4:30 p.m. at the First Lutheran church in Middle River. Plan to dress warmly, bring a flashlight and maybe an old blanket, as the community joins to sing Christmas carols and ride in the sleigh. Refreshments will be provided by the senior community youth at the church following the sleigh ride. (New River Record)

Airport staff help toy effort for ill youngsters

Baudette — The Baudette international airport will serve as a drop-off point for a "Tree of Hope" program that will bring presents to terminally ill children later this month. Tom Nelson at the airport is local coordinator of the program and airport manager Bud Hansen has donated the use of a plane to fly gifts to a party site at Nary, south of Bemidji. The gifts will be delivered to children in hospitals and homes throughout the region. For more information, call Nelson at the airport at 634-1923. (Baudette Region)

Bird counters welcome for Christmas Bird Count

Fertile — Anyone interested in helping record bird sightings in Fertile is welcome to participate in the First Annual Fertile Christmas Bird County this Saturday. Helpers should meet at the Recreation cafe in Fertile at 7 a.m. where maps of the coverage area will be handed out. The coverage area will include the Fertile Sand Hills, areas along the Sand Hill river and northeast including most of Maple lake and Union lake, a 15-mile diameter circle in total. (Fertile Journal)

Plans for MCC high school rebuilding being made

Newfolden — Rebuilding plans are in full swing for MCC high school in Newfolden. A committee of school board members, teachers and administrators have been busy touring school buildings to get ideas for the new facility and to view the work of various architects. The architect for the new school should be chosen by Christmas. In the present building which was damaged by fire recently, temporary heat will soon be installed in the gymnasium area and about one-fourth of the 61,000 square foot high school will be usable after clean-up. (New River Record)

New national wildlife refuge proposed in Polk county

Erskine/Mentor — The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has announced the proposed establishment of a 2,120-acre national wildlife refuge near the communities of Erskine and Mentor in central Polk county, according to Howard Lipke, manager of the Service's Detroit Lakes wetland management district. He said the refuge area is currently owned by one individual who is willing to sell and a tentative agreement has been worked out with a private foundation to purchase the property. If approved, the land would be donated to the Service in January 1992. In addition to its wetland and wildlife values, the proposed refuge would serve as a regional wildlife and fish management demonstration area. (Thirteen Towns)

Dancers to perform in Nutcracker

Crookston — Sugar plums will be dancing, not in children's heads, but on stage in the Kiehle auditorium this weekend, when 70 students of the Mary Noel's School of Dance perform the "Nutcracker" with the help of some local high school boys. The show will be held December 15 at 1 p.m. with children as young as preschool performing. (Crookston Daily Times)

Argyle senior receives Outstanding Performance award

Argyle — Laura LaBine, a senior at Argyle high school, was named "outstanding performer" at the instrumental music contest held November 19 at Warroad. She is the daughter of Noel and Julie LaBine of Argyle. Laura was one of the top five performers named from a group of approximately 175 music students. She performed a flute solo, titled "Concerto in G Major." (Messenger)

Paul Bunyan sled dog races cancelled

Bemidji — Two years after losing its major sponsor, a 20-year-old Bemidji winter event will become history. The Paul Bunyan Sled Dog Races, an annual Lake Bemidji affair, have been cancelled. According to Carol Olson of the Bemidji chamber of commerce, there aren't enough volunteers to help raise the purse of $15,000 necessary to hold the event. The sled dog races bring about 150 mushers into the region, with some staying for two to three weeks because of ideal trail conditions for training. Estimates of the economic loss to the community are in the range of $180,000. (Bemidji Pioneer)

Pete & Colleen Kappes named MN Outstanding Young Farmers

Ada — Pete and Colleen Kappes were named the Minnesota Jaycee's Outstanding Young Farmers for 1991 at the state convention. This is the third time in four years the honor has gone to a selection from the Ada Jaycee chapter. The couple will now represent Minnesota at the national competition in February in Moline, IL. They farm 1,040 acres north of Ada with wheat, soybeans and barley the principal crops. (Norman County Index)

Warroad Summer (?) theatre gives Christmas program Dec. 14

Warroad — Warroad Summer theatre invites everyone to "Christmas Heartwarmers - Stories for Your Family," a collection of family Christmas stories and poems featuring "Ramona and the Three Wise Persons." The performance will be held December 14 at 4 p.m. at the Warroad library. Refreshments will be served and admission is free. (Warroad Pioneer)

Fishermen catch bad break on Lake of the Woods

Lake of the Woods — Ice fishermen at Long Point on Lake of the Woods had a hair raising experience November 30 when they concentrated a little too hard on their fishing. Within an hour a gap in the ice had spread 50 to 150 feet in different places between them and the shore, leaving them stranded. Long Point Resort owner Joyce Bergman said her sons quickly went out by boat to rescue the six people who were fishing, one of whom was her grandson. Everyone made it back to shore safely, but the ice houses and a three-wheeler were left on the loose ice until December 4 when the open ice had frozen enough to run a snowmobile over it to pull the equipment back. (Roseau Times-Region)

Drains Run Slow?

You'll never have a slow running, or clogged drain again! The secret? Clean drains don't run slow.

Slow drains, or periodic clogs, are SIGNALS that a thick layer of GOOK is choking your pipes. Grease, hair, and other waste stick to your pipes, with every use. This gook deposits along the entire length of the pipe. It chokes your pipes gradually, as it gets thicker and thicker.

Conventional drain openers can't fix slow drains. They react chemically on the surface of the gook. To be effective, they must remain in contact with the waste. Even a small tunnel through the gook lets them flow out to the sewer, leaving the gook behind.

In the past, the only way to remove this build up was to root-er your pipes. An expensive, temporary measure.

Now, with just a few minutes each month, you can easily clean out your pipes... and KEEP them clean with Plumb Clean. Its totally unique formula clings, and penetrates deep into the gook. That is what allows it to liquefy even years of build-up. Plumb Clean will clean the entire length of your pipes. It will make your drains run like new, when used as directed. This penetrating action is so revolutionary, we stand behind Plumb Clean with a money-back guarantee!

Saves Money. A 1 lb container of Plumb Clean holds up to 41 drain treatments. Even if drain openers could fix slow drains, it would take over 10 quart bottles to get the same number of treatments. Plumb Clean costs about 35¢ per treatment. We don't know of anything that cleans drains for less.

Safe Too. Conventional drain openers are dangerous chemicals. They can injure eyes on contact. They can release deadly vapors, in some situations. Some may damage your fixtures. Plumb Clean will not burn skin or eyes. It will not release harmful fumes. When used as directed, it is 100% safe for people, and of course, all plumbing.

So, if your drains are giving you a SIGNAL, act now. Get safe, guaranteed Plumb Clean today!

Commissioner Repeats What Fans Have Been Saying For Years

Baseball commissioner Fay Vincent told major league baseball team owners last week that money being paid to players has gotten out of control. It's time someone in the hierarchy of major league baseball woke up and smelled the hotdogs. Fans of America's pastime have been contending for some years that players are being paid far in excess of their actual value.

Major league owners really have no one to blame but themselves for the mess they have gotten themselves and their business into. They have cow-towed to the prima donnas of the game to the extent that even mediocre performance commands seven figure annual salaries and eight-figure multi-year contracts. And the multi-year contract holders who are unique enough to perform well are prone to demand renegotiation of already lucrative agreements.

Total major league performance has declined to the extent that a player who hits for an average of .250 and belts one home run for every 10 strike-outs is considered valuable even if he is so shaky in the field he causes earth tremors. And self-infatuation by players is so commonplace that many are actually genuinely insulted if they are offered less than a totally exorbitant contract.

Pitchers whose ERAs are larger than their hat sizes bemoan being unappreciated and at least one catcher with a World Series championship team thinks he is worth a couple million bucks a year although runners build careers out of stealing bases against him. Amazingly, management of that team is eager to come to terms on his contract.

Let's get real!

Much of the fun of baseball is in seeing the rookies make their place in the game. Kirby Puckett wasn't a star until he was allowed to play on the major league level. He is a factor in the Minnesota Twins' success and deserves the popularity he has enjoyed. He plays hard and presents himself as a good citizen. But he isn't worth the millions that some team—probably the Twins—will pay him when his contract time comes around again. And who is to say Jarvis Brown or some other minor leaguer couldn't display adequate abilities in a Twins outfield role if given the opportunity to play every day.

Reason won't return to baseball until owners allow their discontented players to take a hike and other owners refuse to lust after the resulting available free agents. And fans have to be a part of that by agreeing that too much is too much and it's time to let somebody else play the game in the "established" player's position. They have to be willing to "let go" of their idols and accept new players to cheer.

There is little long term loyalty by players to their teams any more, and with the dangling dollars hung in front of them who can blame them for being mercenary?

But Vincent is right—things have gotten out of control and a crash is impending. That will be bad for the owners, their players and the fans, but it is inevitable if the major league game is allowed to self-destruct as it has in the past decade.

Keep Those Cards and Letters Coming

Throughout the many years we have been associated with community newspapering, one of the things we have enjoyed continuously is the receipt of letters to the editor. We call them "public opinion," as opposed to the personal opinion of the editorial writer, although they are really the personal opinions of the individual letter writers themselves.

We have always encouraged writing of letters to the editor and we continue to do so. We don't mind at all if the content of the letters is contrary to our expressed editorial opinion. The public opinion area of the paper is intended to be a forum for varying viewpoints. And, within reason, we don't even mind if the thoughts expressed are a little "off the wall" on occasion. People need to get some of that stuff off their chests at times, too.

We rather liked the thoughts expressed by Jack Graves, editor of the East Hampton Star in New York state, regarding the many letters to the editor run in that publication:

"The Star's letters pages deservedly are praised for providing an open forum for ideas," he writes, "albeit these ideas run the gamut from well-reasoned to half-baked to stillborn cries of the id. Yet since one person's piece of grit may be another's pearl of wisdom, and since by nature democracy is free-wheeling and often messy, heedless at times—as we are witnessing on the national stage—of reputation or sensitivity, a wide berth is given, based on the presumption that the citizenry is capable of winnowing the wheat from the chaff, and that unfettered discussion is to be preferred to a homogenized variety that is heavily edited.

"Whenever society's right to free speech bumps up against tenuous claims to privacy, it is well, by and large, that free speech rules, even through sometimes on these pages it appears in the form of slavering slurs, utopian visions and dubious prosody.

"Admittedly, as Senator Biden said during the judicial hearings....the system is mess, yet messiness is often the price paid for a free, as opposed to a repressed/oppressed, society.

"It is ironic in this regard that some of those self-described lovers of freedom who bemoan The Star's open letters policy make excellent cases for it as they vaunt themselves as the sole founts of wisdom, political correctness and good taste. One can hear in their pleas the strains of 'Lot repression ring.'

"Not to worry. Among the radical propositions advanced by the country's founders was the idea that a democracy thrives on a free flow of ideas, on differing points of view, and that the citizenry, provided it does not fall victim to apathy—the bete noire of democracies—will be able to make up its own mind.

"Our society, within and outside the borders of East Hampton, is large enough to include a broad range of debate among reasonable people, as well as the inevitable bully pulpits, pens dipped in bile, and hobby horses ridden into the sunset. Keep those cards and letters coming."

Northern Watch Policies

Letters To The Editor: The staff of the Northern Watch encourages written responses to editorial comment or letters with original thoughts or ideas of general interest. Letters should be intended for publication in Northern Watch exclusively; letters sent to multiple publications will generally not be accepted. Right is reserved to edit letters for length and clarity and to reject letters deemed to be promotional in nature or in poor taste.

Letters Must Be Signed: All letters must be signed and contain an address or phone number of the writer so authenticity can be verified. Signatures must appear on letters published. The staff believes that there is greater credibility in letters signed in print and will not withhold names of writers from publication.

Responses Invited: Letters critical of individuals or other entities may be shown to those individuals or representatives of those entities in advance of publication with an invitation by newspaper staff for response in the same issue as the original letter.

Corrections: If an error is made in news or advertising publication, the staff encourages readers to call it to our immediate attention by calling 681-4450. We will attempt to correct the error or clarify the misunderstanding in the next issue.

A warm holiday invitation to revisit America's past from Terry Redlin

With "The Pleasures of Winter," Terry Redlin begins a beautiful new series of limited edition holiday prints. This piece recreates for us a special era from America's past. We are reminded of a seemingly more innocent time when the countryside was at peace with itself and traditional family values reigned.

Rhonda Rothschadl poured in 41 points Tuesday to lead Northland past Itasca 83-53 in a match-up of Minnesota Community College Conference women's basketball teams at Grand Rapids.

Alice Dunning and Nanette Berg both scored 11 points for the winners, with Dunning also grabbing 17 rebounds.

The Pionoers led 37-24 at halftimo and pulled away over the final 20 minutes to improve their record to 2-2.

Northland shot 50 percent from the field (31-for-62) and was 15-for-24 at the free throw line, where Itasca was 8-for-16.

The Pioneers lost the services of Susio Bengston, a freshman from Hallock, to a knee injury in the first half.

Defensive effort by Thief River Falls' Nathan Egge couldn't keep Crookston's Scott Magsam from getting off this shot during Thursday's basketball game in the Lincoln High School gym. Crookston won the game 64-42.

Pirates down Prowlers

Both teams had turnover trouble, but when either side did manage to hold on to the ball, the edge definitely went to Crookston as the Pirates shot down Thief River Falls 64-42 in a rare Thursday night boys high school basketball match-up.

Crookston's pressure defense forced Thief River Falls into 20 turnovers – 10 each half – but the Pirates coughed up the ball 21 times themselves – even without full court harassment.

However, when the visiting Pirates weren't throwing the ball away, they were hitting 21 of 42 field goal attempts, including six 3-point shots. And while the Pirates were hitting at a 50 percent clip, the Prowlers were struggling through a 33 percent showing as they connected on just 18 of 55 attempts.

"We can't put the ball in the hoop," sighed first-year Thief River Falls coach Scott Brekke, who watched the Prowlers fall to 0-3. "If you can't shoot, you can't win."

The Prowlers found themselves in a hole right at the start when they turned the ball over on four of their first five possessions and promptly fell behind 13-2.

A 3-point basket by Tom Upham ignited a 9-2 Thief River Falls first quarter finish as the Prowlers pulled within 15-11, but a 3-pointer by Matt Proulx began an 8-2 Crookston run that opened the second quarter and the 23-13 spread was never really threatened the rest of the night.

A press-breaking lay-up by Josh Balmer with 2:04 in the first half remaining kept the Prowlers in striking range at 29-21. But with an opportunity to make it a seven-point game, they missed two lay-up opportunities on a fast break, and the Pirates' Mitch Peterson made it a back-breaking five-point swing by hitting a 3-point basket from the side. A fast break lay-up by Proulx finished a 34-21 first half.

It was 46-27 through three quarters and the Prowlers were never closer than 16 points through the final eight minutes.

"We didn't come ready to play," said Brekke. "We just weren't mentally in the game. It was our third game in five nights and we were a little tired; a little flat. That's inexperience. We're young and we're inexperienced. Hopefully we'll learn from it."

Proulx led all scorers with 14 points, while Ted Hasz and Shawn Siwek both came off the bench to add 12 and 10 points, respectively, to the Pirates' attack. Brekke used all 13 players on the Prowlers' bench in an effort to find an offense, but the lone Thief River Falls double figure scorer was Tom Upham with 10 points.

The Pirates cashed in on 16 of 23 free throw opportunities, while the Prowlers went 4-for-7 at the line. Crookston finished with a 29-19 rebound advantage.

Thief River Falls will be idle until Friday, Dec. 20, when the Prowlers will host Warren.

Scoring

Warroad skates by Prowlers 6-3

A Warroad line cambination of Derek Ewald, Scott Moyer and Chuck Meeker had a 12-point night Tuesday to spark the Warriors past visiting Thief River Falls 6-3 in Soctian 8 high school hockey.

Ewald scored two goals and picked up three assists, Moyer had a goal and three assists while Meeker also wound up with three assists as the Warriors improved their record to 2-0 and dropped the Prowlers to 1-1.

Thief River Falls opened the 1991-92 season with a sharp performance in a 4-1 home ice win over Bemidji, but the Prowlers did not come close to matching that effort on the road.

"We just did not play well from start to finish," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Glenn Chiodo. "It was one of those nights as coaches where you try to find the right button, but every time we pushed ono we would short-circuit."

Although it wasn't top-notch hockey, Thief River Falls did come out of the first period with a 2-0 lead when Jason Svir was able to lift a rebaund up and over sprawling Warroad goalie Mitch Nash at 8:13 and saphomore Marc Seaversan picked up his first varsity goal on a power play tap-in at 11:46.

"We got a couple of breaks and capitalized in the first period," noted Chiodo, "but we didn't pick it up after that. Warroad took tha gamo away from us. They came at us. We just didn't have anybody step forward and get it done."

Warroad took over with a four-goal second period outburst, scoring the first two in a quick 15-second span – Moyer at 5:14 when the Prowlers had trouble getting their hands on the puck in their zone, and Frank Staydahar on a rebound at 5:29.

Ewald slipped a soft backhand past Thief River Falls goalie Barry Dowers at 7:42 to go ahead 3-2, but a gamble by Nash produced a 3-3 tie at 8:36 when he lost a race for the puck. A lead pass by Carter Rogalla allowed Svir to split the defense, and he finished the play by poking the puck past a diving Nash at the top of the face-off circle before leaping aver the netminder to hit an open net.

But Lee Kofstad slipped in a centering pass on a power play at 11:23 to put the Warriors back on top 4-3.

And if Thief River Falls had any ideas about coming back in the third period, those thaughts were quickly dashed when Ewald scored on a

Royals win rematch, 113-99

UND-Lake Region broke away from Northland Community College in the second half Wednesday as the Royals beat the Pioneers 113-99 in a men's basketball game played at Devils Lake, ND.

It was tied 50-50 at intermission and deadlocked at 71-71 midway through the second half before the Royals gained control with a run of 14 straight points, including four 3-point shots by Marty Henderson.

The outcome produced a measure of revenge for the Royals, who lost a 97-94 decision to the Pioneers in a first round match-up at tha Northland Invitational the previous Friday.

A big second half comeback highlighted the Narthland win in the first meeting. This time the Pioneers got off to a 29-19 start, but fell victim to faul trouble. The Royals were 34-for-51 at the line for the night, getting 31 of those attempts in the first half.

"We were concerned about getting off to a good start," mentioned Northland head coach Chet Engelman, whose team has shown an early-season penchant for slow starts. "We did start well this time, but we had a little bit of foul trouble."

Northland's Larone Greer led all scorers with 34 points, while teammates Travis Brown and Paul Lofberg joined him in double figures with 14 and 10 points, respectively. Brown also had 14 rebounds and Lofberg grabbed nine. Five UND-Lake Region scorers reached double figures, led by Henderson with 22 points.

Nordics lose to Warren boys 56-39 at NCC...

MCC has turnover trouble

Turnovers – 31 of them – created major problems for Marshall County Central Tuesday as the Nordics lost a 56-39 boys high school basketball decision to Warren in Thief River Falls' Northland Community College gym.

Marshall County Central got by with 25 turnovers in a season-opening 67-60 overtime win at Red Lake County Central, but those same mistakes spelled defeat at the hands of the Ponies in the Nordics' 1991-92 'home' opener.

"Those (turnover) figures will improve dramatically over the next couple of games," promised Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "We're being aggressive, which is a plus, but we've got to make better decisions."

Early Marshall County misses on the offensive end, coupled with Warren three-point baskets at the other end, produced a 14-5 first quarter lead for the Ponies. It was 31-13 at halftime and 46-22 through three quarters.

Chad Kujava of Warren and Tim Olson of Marshall County Central shared game-high scoring honors with 14 points apiece, while the Ponies' Aaron Molacek and the Nordics' Robbie Anderson both had 11.

Marshall County Central shot just 30 percent from the field on a 13-

Lumberjacks beat Prowlers 68-55 in boys basketball...

Bemidji size tops TRF

Bemidji used its size advantage to work the ball inside, resulting in 65 percent shooting from the field for the night, as the Lumberjacks defeated host Thief River Falls 68-55 in boys North Sub-Section 8AA high school basketball.

"They were so much bigger than we were," pointed out Thief River Falls head coach Scott Brekke. "We played really hard, but we just couldn't stop them from getting inside."

It was the 1991-92 home opener for the Prowlers, and their second loss in as many starts.

Thief River Falls began with a 14-12 first quarter lead, but ran into second quarter turnover trouble and fell behind 35-21 at halftime.

However, only seven of the Prowlers' 23 turnovers came in the second half as they pulled within 44-37 at the end of the third quarter and had it down to a four-point difference midway through the final quarter before Bemidji sealed it with free throws.

Sophomore Jake Hancock led the Lumberjacks with 19 points, while teammate Joe Burgess netted 17. Tom Upham and Darin Wald were Thief River Falls double figure scorers with 14 and 11 points, respectively.

"I was fairly pleased with the effort," mentioned Brekke. "We're still experimenting with the line-up."

Thief River Falls was 20-for-45 from the field (44 percent) and 14-for-22 at the free throw line. Bemidji's inside game produced 30-for-46 shooting. The Lumberjacks were 7-for-13 at the line. Bemidji finished with a 31-28 rebound advantage, but also topped the turnover charts 24-23.

RLCC boys lose to Falcons

Red Lake County Central shot only 29 percent from the field, and the Mustangs were out-rebounded 37-23 – resulting in a 59-46 boys high school basketball loss at Fertile-Beltrami Tuesday.

The Mustangs trailed at the quarter stops 18-10, 35-23 and 45-28 before a final period rally tied it with 3 1/2 minutes left. But the Falcons never fell behind, handing Red Lake County Central its second loss in two season-opening starts.

"I was fairly pleased with our performance," said Red Lake County Central coach Todd Fore, "but we had some mental lapses. We made some errors that hurt us."

Red Lake County Central junior Ryan Melby, who started the year with a 24-point effort against Marshall County Central, followed up with a game-high 18-point outing against Fertile-Beltrami. But none of his teammates had more than eight points. The Falcons' balanced attack included Peter Moland with 12 points, Ross Engelstad 11 and Brad Norland 10.

Red Lake County Central was 16-for-55 from the field and 11-for-20 at the free throw line. Fertile-Beltrami shot 46 percent from the field on a 27-for-59 night, but was just 4-for-13 at the line. A 37-23 Fertile-Beltrami rebound advantage included 15 offensive boards. The Mustangs topped the turnover charts 14-13.

The Mustangs were scheduled to play at Win-E-Mac tonight (Friday). Red Lake County Central will be part of the first Northland Community College Invitational high school basketball tournament Dec. 19-21.

Middle River came back from an 18-13 first quarter deficit to catch Sacred Heart at 20-20 early in the second quarter, but the Eagles' switch from a man to man to zone defense sparked a 17-4 half-ended run, and the Skippers never recovered. Early foul trouble also hurt Middle River as the 37-24 halftime spread became 48-30 through three quarters.

Krissi Super of Middle River and Nichole Fontaine of Sacred Heart shared game-high scoring honors with 24 points each.

The Skippers were 18-for-56 from the field (32 percent) and 9-for-17 at the free throw line. Eagles went 9-for-21 at the line.

TRF wrestlers take two in double-dual

Thief River Falls came up with a pair of wins Tuesday in a double-dual meet format at Warren, where the Prowlers handled the host Ponies 67-6 and also defeated Roseau 46-30.

The wins put the Prowlers at 2-1 for the year heading into the Sertoma Club Invitational dual meet tournament in Grand Forks today (Friday) and Saturday.

"We wrestled pretty well," said Thief River Falls head coach John Anderson after the two Tuesday wins. "We made mistakes, but they were aggressive mistakes – mistakes you can fix."

Roseau rally tops MCC

Roseau out-scored Marshall County Central 22-6 in the fourth quarter Thursday to complete a game-long comeback that produced a 53-43 girls high school basketball win for the host Rams.

Marshall County Central started with a 15-4 first quarter lead, held a 26-20 halftime edge and maintained a 37-31 third quarter advantage.

"We played well for 3 1/2 quarters," reported Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde. But then came foul trouble, turnovers and rebounding woes.

The 2-2 Nordics wound up with 34 turnovers and surrendered 27 offensive rebounds to the Rams. The fourth quarter collapse picked up steam when 5-9 Sandi Gustafson, the Nordics' tallest player, went to the bench following her fifth foul with 6 1/2 minutes left.

Sara Lokstad had an outstanding 23-point, 16-rebound outing for the Nordics, but none of the other Marshall County Central scorers have more than seven points.

"Sara had a great game," noted Mjeldo, "but we need more balanced scoring if we're going to be successful."

Sue Roadfeldt led the Rams with 21 points.

Marshall County Central was 14-for-47 from the field (29 percent) and a busy 15-for-27 at the free throw line. Roseau was 21-for-75 from the field (28 percent) and 11-for-20 at the line. Despite the problems on the Rams' offensive boards, the Nordics still finished with a 51-42 rebound edge. But those 34 turnovers were 25 more than Roseau's total.

Marshall County Central will be at the Argyle Invitational Monday and Tuesday.

Climax, Valley North win

Climax and Valley North were first round winners Thursday night in the Red Lake County Central Invitational girls high school basketball tournament at Plummer.

The Vikings handled Grygla-Goodridge 46-24 in the tournament opener, while the Raiders held off host Red Lake County Central 48-44 in the doubleheader nightcap.

Climax turned a 14-10 first quarter edge into a 29-14 halftime cushion as the Vikings rolled to a 46-24 win over Grygla-Goodridge.

RLCC Invitational

• Finals Saturday - (third place) Grygla-Goodridge vs. Red Lake County Central, 2 p.m.; (championship) Climax vs. Valley North 3:45 p.m.

Marsha Nichols led the winners with 12 points. The Grygla-Goodridge offense did not have a scorer with more than six points.

Combination of poor shooting and turnovers led to the Wolverines' fourth straight loss. "We're not a real good shooting team, anyway, and when we turn the ball over like we did, we're in real trouble," pointed out Grygla-Goodridge coach Mike Gast. "We tried to force the ball inside too much. We made very poor pass selections."

Both teams shot just 30 percent from the field, with the Wolverines going 11-for-37 and the Vikings hitting 20 of 67. Grygla-Goodridge was 2-for-5 at the free throw line, where Climax wound up 5-for-12. Climax had a 37-20 rebound advantage.

Although they combined for only eight points, Gast did single out the efforts of Lisa Verbout and Jacki

Nordics will enter Argyle tournament

Four-team girls high school basketball tournament scheduled for Marshall County Central Dec. 16-17 has been moved to Argyle because of the November fire damage at the Newfolden school. The tournament rotates annually among the four participating schools.

First round games Monday will find Marshall County Central playing Stephen at 7 p.m. and Tri-County vs. Argyle at 8:30. Tuesday's third place game starts at 6:30 p.m., with the championship game to follow.

Marshall County Central opened its 1991-92 'home' schedule Monday with a late-reported 48-46 win over Warroad at Northland Community College in Thief River Falls.

The close contest produced an 11-8 first quarter Marshall County Central lead, a 23-18 Warroad halftime advantage and a 31-30 Marshall County Central third quarter edge.

A free throw by the Nordics' Dawn Sustad with 17 seconds left was the final point of the night. The Warriors' game-tying attempt was off the mark, and a Marshall County Central rebound sealed it.

"It was a big win for us," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde. "We're playing a lot of young kids, and it's a great confidence boost to be able to win a close game like that. They played well when they had to."

The Nordics' Sarah Lokstad netted a game-high 19 points, while the Warriors' Holly Carlson finished with 16 and teammate Sarah Vickerman had 12.

Winning for the second time in three starts, the Nordics went 17-for-42 from the field (40 percent) and 14-for-23 at the free throw line. The Warriors were 19-for-57 from the field (33 percent) and 5-for-8 at the line. Warroad had a 31-29 rebound edge and the Nordics topped the turnovers charts, 22-14.

Underdog Red Lake County Central gave it a shot, but the Mustangs came up short in a 48-44 loss to Valley North.

Valley North had quarter leads of 12-9, 23-20 and 38-32.

Sarah Hammerlund and Ronda Olson both scored 15 points to lead the Raiders. The Mustangs' scoring included 12 points from Dawn Bachand and 10 points each from Jenny Walter and Jill Radnlecki.

From the field, Red Lake County Central was 21-for-46 (46 percent) and Valley North went 23-for-54 (43 percent). Clerical work and classroom tutoring are volunteer areas where Celeste Leach can work in the Thief River Falls schools, thanks to a new program called Preschool Volunteer Friends. Under the program she can leave her daughter Cassandra at the Knox school Preschool Resource and Enrichment Program for a half day one day a week while she volunteers.

Gymnasium activities are directed by Sally Wiltse (left) and Ardelle Offerdahl at Knox elementary school for participants in the Preschool Resource and Enrichment Program (PREP) and the newly-formed Preschool Volunteer Friends program. Preschool children three years of age and older may take part in the PREP class while their parents serve as school volunteers. Youngsters (left to right) are Tyla Pream, Ashley Leister, Aaron Anderson, Cassandra Leech, Natalie Olson, Kelley Stock and Matthew Moisted.

Knox elementary school library volunteer Robyn Pream is able to do volunteer service in the schools as a result of a new program called Preschool Volunteer Friends. She is able to leave her daughter Tyla at Knox school half a day a week where Tyla takes part in activities with the Preschool Resource and Enrichment class taught by Donna Nelson. Information on the program is available by calling Carol Ihle, school volunteer coordinator, at 681-8358.

Sharon Leister is able to work as a volunteer in Knox and Mark Twain elementary schools because of the new Preschool Volunteer Friends program initiated this year. It allows her to leave her daughter Ashley in the Preschool Resource and Enrichment (PREP) program at Knox for a half-day while she volunteers in the classrooms and libraries. Here she is shown with Knox third grader Desire Aehlert.

Turkey farming is big business

When millions of families gather for a traditional turkey dinner this holiday season they may be dining on a bird that was raised in Minnesota.

The state ranks second in turkey farming, producing 46 million turkeys annually, or 16 per cent of the national total.

Turkey farming adds $300 million to the state's farm economy each year, not including spinoff benefits. For example, crop farmers gain because Minnesota's turkeys eat 28 million bushels of corn and 16 million bushels of soybeans annually. When turkey processing and other related industries are factored in, the overall benefit of the turkey industry to Minnesota Turkey Growers association.

Minnesota's high ranking as a turkey-producing state didn't just happen, according to Paul Waibel, a poultry scientist who's spent most of his 38 years at the University of Minnesota College of Agriculture studying the care and feeding of turkeys.

Waibel said the proximity of rich farmland for corn and soybeans to sandy areas that were better suited for the range-rearing of turkeys helped nurture the fledgling industry in the 1940s. Minnesota farmers had easy and inexpensive access to the grains used in turkey feed. In addition, sandy land was plentiful, cheap and less likely to harbor diseases that could devastate turkey populations.

Another factor, Waibel recalled, was a unique group of agricultural students who studied on the university's St. Paul campus in the 1940s. Taking a special interest in turkeys, they helped establish the state's industry after they left college.

Although domestic turkeys originally were range fed, 82 per cent today are grown in pole-type barns, according to Waibel.

The turkeys that inhabit those barns are far different from their cousins of 35 years ago. In 1955 it took 24 weeks to produce a male turkey weighing 25 pounds; today it takes 17 weeks to produce a bird of the same size. The 1955 tom turkey consumed 3.5 pounds of feed for every pound he gained. Today's tom needs to eat only 2.6 pounds of feed to gain a pound.

The transformation of the modern turkey is due primarily to genetics. Private companies developed new strains of turkeys that were more efficient in utilizing feed.

The University of Minnesota's role in the industry includes developing more nutritious feeds and methods for controlling diseases and studying the best environments for raising turkeys. This research is conducted by Waibel and other scientists for the university's agricultural experiment station. Cooperation between St. Paul campus-based departments has helped advance the research over the years, and the researchers get strong support from the Minnesota Turkey Growers association and others in the industry.

Animal scientists with the university's extension service then share the findings of the research with turkey farmers. Sally Noll, an extension animal scientist who specializes in turkeys, said the agencies sponsor a number of educational programs, including turkey grower meetings, poultry service workshops and a turkey research review conference.

Waibel became interested in poultry while working on his grandfather's chicken farm in New Jersey as a boy. He later earned a bachelor's degree in agriculture at Rutgers University. He attended the University of Wisconsin -Madison in the 1950s, earning master's and doctorate degrees in poultry nutrition and biochemistry.

Lodging tax hike discussed

$27,000 per year for the Convention and Visitors Bureau, after city administration costs are taken out. Jerry Wigness, city clerk, said the city receives only five per cent of the total tax collected. That's for administration costs. The remainder goes to the Chamber of Commerce Visitors and Convention Bureau.

There are roughly 50 communities in the state of Minnesota that impose a lodging tax. Those taxes range from a low of one per cent to a high of six per cent. Three per cent appears to be the norm. There are four cities that impose a six per cent lodging tax, two that impose a five per cent lodging tax, 36 that impose a three per cent lodging tax, one at two and one-half per cent, five at two per cent, and two at one per cent. By law, ninety-five per cent of the receipts must be used to fund Convention and Visitor Bureaus to advertise and promote the area as a visitor and/or convention area.

What this will allow the Convention and Visitors Bureau to do is provide dollars for a more balanced approach to promoting tourism, said Olson. Most of the promotion dollars spent now are spent during the early spring and summer. Olson said she would like to spend promotion dollars during the fall and winter, which will provide more balanced coverage and impact.

years to cover budget deficits and the cost of a new truck.

■ The city council has approved an increase in the rate given for hardship cases.

The council also discussed and approved a rate increase in the reduced monthly refuse collection charges for hardship cases. Residents who qualify, can receive reduced collection charges.

To qualify, a city residents must be one of the following: 65 years or older, handicapped or physically disabled. If the resident qualifies for one of the above, they must be living on a fixed income and meeting the following levels of income: an annual income of less than $6,620 and a total net worth not exceeding $16,440, excluding the value of home; two persons with an annual income of less than $8,880 and total net worth not exceeding $22,200, excluding the value of home; three persons with an annual income of less than $11,140 and a total net worth not exceeding $25,065, excluding the value of home. If the resident or resident qualify, their monthly fee would be $6 per month instead of $11.

Applications for the reduced rate can be obtained at the city clerk's office.

■ An ordinance change that would allow the sale of 3.2 beer on Sundays is being considered by the council.

Another ordinance change is being considered by the city council. The ordinance would allow the sale of 3.2 beer between noon and 1 a.m. on Sundays in Thief River Falls. The ordinance would eliminate a city ordinance that allows alcohol to be served only at restaurants that serve food and under strict guidelines.

Police Chief Froschheiser said there is some confusion as to how to enforce the current ordinance. The confusion lies in how much food has to be served and whether food has to be served to every customer. The ordinance change would also conform to changes in state law.

The city council will consider the proposed ordinance change at its next meeting December 17.

■ The 1992 levy and budget was approved by the city council Tuesday night.

Total budgeted expenditures for 1992 of $15,482,327 was approved at the city council meeting Tuesday night. After holding a meeting required by Truth in Taxation legislation last week, the council gave its approval to the budget and levy. The levy, an increase of just over 4 per cent from last year, was approved as well. The levy is expected to raise $1,551,722.

In other business, the council: approved a lease-purchase agreement for a Cannon Copier; approved a progression raise for James Anderson; approved a bid of $68,487 from Sanitation Products Inc. on a New Elgin Street Sweeper; approved changes in the building code to conform with state requirements; approved liquor license renewals for on-sale liquor establishments, including clubs in Thief River Falls.

Racism taints casino proposal

no. She asked who I represented. I told her I had a part in organizing the advisory vote and said that in view of the advisory vote results that showed a majority against the casino, we had been misrepresented by our elected officials. I reminded her of the results of the advisory vote and that Mr. Brun had made the statement that if any opposition was received they would pull out. I also stated that we wanted to continue as good neighbors and felt it would be best to locate in an area that was more receptive to this form of gambling. She replied that I meant good neighbors at a distance. I said I would welcome the tribe in starting any other business, but a gambling casino will hurt a lot of people here.

"She also asked what form this opposition would take. I replied that some had approached me with the idea of picketing. I said that I was not in favor of this nor would I promote it. I said the method we would follow would be to appeal to the higher levels of State government — something that we had publicly stated before.

> "... many people promoting the casino have used this popular tactic of charging racism or discrimination to those who oppose them, either to frighten those opposed into keeping quiet or to cast doubt on their reputation."
> — David Grothe

"At this point her tone changed and she stated that I used nice-sounding words but that I really was racist. I replied that racism was no doubt a factor for some but that for us it would not matter if an all-white group was bringing this in. We were opposed to this because it would hurt a lot of people, something that statistics clearly show.

"The above then is the general content of what was said.

"In these past months, many people promoting the casino have used this popular tactic of charging racism or discrimination to those who oppose them, either to frighten those opposed into keeping quiet or to cast doubt on their reputation. Making such sweeping accusations by anyone is neither responsible or true.

"Minnesota leads the nation in gambling spending. Our state has more Indian casinos than any other state in the nation. Minnesotans spend more on gambling in one year than they do on clothing and the figure is rising every year. We agree with state leaders, that it has to be stopped.

"In summary of these events, we need to see that lasting quality of life in a community or state, simply cannot be achieved by promoting more vice. Areas built of stable families, honest hardworking people, areas that are relatively free of vice are attractive, quality areas. All the aspects associated with vice, whether it is gambling losses, drunkenness, crime or whatever — all these things make for an undesirable place to live.

"For this reason, the policies of our city in past years that have allowed the travesties of charitable gambling here such as pull tabs, an attractive liquor store on a main street and now an attempt for a gambling casino are not good.

"It is my hope that we as a city, both leaders and citizens, will reject those things that are ruining people, families and children and instead pursue those things that truly make for a better tomorrow."

Following the announcement from the tribal council Tuesday night at the city council meeting, many others echoed Stewart's sentiment of frustration.

> "Charges of racism blacken the whole community."
> — Mayor Bob Carlson

Mayor Bob Carlson, who had received numerous phone calls from people blaming him for the loss of the casino, said it disturbed him to no end that people "could get that low". (Carlson was referring to the individuals who called the tribal council.) All seemed to be in agreement with Carlson when he added that charges of racism in this community "blacken the whole community."

At the council meeting, Stewart asked the council to authorize him or his office to provide assistance to Red Lake Falls in obtaining the casino. Stewart said Thief River Falls should continue to look to the future. He said the community should be proud of the accomplishments of Newfolden in getting permission to rebuild its high school, and Red Lake Falls in getting the casino.

Stewart said it was his understanding that Red Lake Falls is the primary site being considered and that East Grand Forks will be a future site. But before the casino is even built in Red Lake Falls, the community will need support to overcome the many obstacles.

The council gave Stewart and his office authority to provide any assistance Red Lake Falls may need.

Council approves Highway 32 plans

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Preliminary plans for the Highway 32 project in Thief River Falls were approved by the city council Tuesday afternoon.

Bids on the Highway 32 project will probably be let in May or June and awarded in July, said Mn/DOT district engineer Roger Hille. Hille said he doesn't anticipate any funding problems for the project at this time. If all goes as planned then, he expects the project to be awarded and construction to begin in July.

It will certainly be a learning experience for businessmen who haven't had to go through this sort of project, said Mayor Bob Carlson. Carlson warned other council members to expect some harsh words from businessmen because of the effects it will have on business.

Hille echoed Mayor Carlson's sentiment. He said he heard a lot of harsh words from businessmen in East Grand Forks during a major project there. He suggested that meetings with downtown businessmen be scheduled.

Hille said the best thing we can do is restrict construction. He suggested that the project be broken down into three "quadrants". The first quadrant would be from the south end of the project to First street. The second quadrant would be from First street to Fourth street, with special instructions for the intersection of Main and Third street. The third and final quadrant would be from Fourth street to 14th street. Although Hille suggested breaking the project down into quadrants or phases, he said he was not saying that each must be completed before another started. Such a proposal would increase the cost of the project substantially and make it more inconvenient to the contractor.

Hille said the project won't be completed until the end of 1993. That means residents of Thief River Falls and visitors to the community will be inconvenienced for two summers.

Hille announced Tuesday that Todd Broadwell has been named as the project engineer.

A section of the city code has been amended to conform to state law. The section pertains to the sale of 3.2 on-sale beer. The changes allow the sale of 3.2 beer on Sundays in Thief River Falls. The sale of wine requires another license and must be sold in conjunction with food.

In other business, the council: charged off to bad debt expense $211.83 from the liquor store; approved the sale of city licenses to several business selling a variety of products; awarded the city's checking account to Northern State Bank on a bid from the bank; approved a 3.2 off-sale beer license and cigarette license to Pennington Square; and instructed the engineer to proceed with the airport improvement project for 1992.

Two-year-old Haven Lundaan, daughter of Perry and Rita Lundaan, wasn't persuaded that Santa Claus had her best interests at heart, but she accepted her box of treats from him anyway. Haven was taken to visit Santa following the Discovery Place Christmas program Wednesday evening at the Lincoln high school auditorium.

Volunteers needed for TRF dinner

Response to a request for volunteers to serve and assist with the annual community Christmas Eve dinner at Lon's has been very good, according to Julie Olson of the Chamber of Commerce.

Last week The Times reported that volunteers were needed for the community dinner to serve or assist in delivering the meal. Olson said the response has been good, but they could still use some more volunteers.

Anyone interested in volunteering their time for the annual community Christmas Eve dinner should contact the Chamber of Commerce at 681-3720.

Drivers will begin delivering meals at around 5 p.m. Christmas Eve. That's also the time the sit-down dinner is expected to begin. The sit-down dinner at Lon's is open to anyone in the community who will not have family to share with on Christmas Eve.

Bus pick-up of persons who do not have their own transportation will be available. To make arrangements to be picked up contact the Chamber of Commerce office.

Child-sitting service with movies to be shown will be available at Lon's. Preparations are being made to serve 300 meals at Lon's and by home delivery.

Parents of Discovery Place youngsters had as much fun as their children at the day care center's annual Christmas program Wednesday evening in the Lincoln high school auditorium. Sharyl Mann obviously enjoyed the group which included her son Noah. Photos of some of the youngsters participating will be included in the Christmas Eve edition of the Thief River Falls Times next Tuesday, December 24.

School board authorizes technical college district

Approval of a resolution authorizing the formation of a post-secondary technical college district was given by the School District 564 board of education at its meeting Monday, December 16, in the school district service center.

The six-school district will include the Thief River Falls technical college and technical colleges at East Grand Forks, Bemidji, Detroit Lakes, Moorhead and Wadena. Its formation is mandated by the state legislature.

Approval was also given by the board to a request by the Thief River Falls Choir Boosters club to proceed with fund raising for a senior choir trip in 1993.

Supt. Robert Duncan advised the board that he would be meeting in January with the parent who had expressed concern with not allowing certain music to be played in the school as well as the teacher involved and the principal of that elementary school.

Recognition was given to several organizations for their donations to school activities. They included the Holiday Fair for $400 to the Little Brother/Little Sister program; Eagles club for $750 to the Little Brother/Little Sister program and $1,000 for the purchase of a computer for the Blind and Visually Impaired program; American Legion Post 117 for $600 to support the Washington, DC, Close-Up trip; and Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 2793 for $200 to support the Close-Up trip.

Resignation was accepted from Marian Stark, educational assistant at Washington elementary school, and a medical leave of absence granted for Darcy Reese, music instructor at Lincoln effective December 18-February 18. Bonnie Dehlin was hired as a vocal music long-term substitute at Lincoln.

Contract for Marie Hvidsten as part-time curriculum specialist was approved. Other employment approved was Gloria Johnson, part-time SLD instructor at Washington elementary; Cynthia Kilen, temporary part-time curriculum/instruction/ staff development secretary; Lisa Wilson, temporary part-time clerical aide in the central office; Lynell Wayne, temporary pupil/program support assistant at Mark Twain; Steven Dahl, cleaner at Washington; Beverly Swanson, kitchen helper at Lincoln; Betty Carlson, Roseau Clinic practical nursing instructor; James Bitzegaio, technical college avionics instructor; and Gay Voytilla, aviation secretary long-term substitute.

Lisa Semanko's co-curricular assignment as high school yearbook advisor was approved for the 1991-92 school year. Approval was given to establish and post for a part-time tech prep program secretary and a part-time Title V Indian education coordinator.

Bids were accepted in the amount of $20,380 for seven computers from N.W. Computers; $17,953 for door replacement at Lincoln from Nelson Window of Fargo, ND; $124,008 for the mechanical portion of energy conservation measures at Lincoln, Mark Twain-Franklin and Washington schools from Johnson Controls of Fargo, ND; and $93,705 for a 1992 Thomas activities bus from Hoglund Bus company.

NCC students given a special "Taste of Mexico"

Students, staff members and guests were given a "Taste of Mexico" Wednesday noon in room D-62 at Northland Community college in Thief River Falls when Spanish language students served authentic Mexican food.

Items from Mexico were also on display and recorded music of the country played in the background. The event was part of the observance of Hispanic Month at NCC.

Among the special items served were horchata, a rice drink that has the appearance of milk; chicken wings prepared with a sauce containing saffron, the most expensive spice in the world; and a salsa provided by student Jose Rubaclava which contained a difficult to obtain spice called cilantro.

Involved in the serving and preparation were the 18 second year Spanish students while about 35 first year students brought food and helped with decorations. Yolanda Martinez, counselor at Northland, helped Spanish instructor Mary Dyrud with obtaining ingredients and food preparation.

Also planned to emphasize cultural diversity on campus are Black History Month in February, Women's History Month in March and Indian Images Month in April.

Second year nursing student Jill LaBine of Argyle was among those getting a taste of hot food from Mexico...oh!...oh!....OH!

Soupçon

By Sherry LaCoursiere

Wondering what to have for Christmas Eve supper? If you don't make your big meal that night, this may be a problem. Here are some meal ideas you might want to try this year.

This one-dish meal can be prepared early in the day, refrigerated and then baked before serving time. The recipe was a Pillsbury Bake-off winner.

Strips-of-Beef Casserole

1 pound round steak, cut into 1/2 inch strips
1/4 cup shortening
1 1/2 cups chopped onion
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup canned tomatoes
1 cup water
1 can (6 ounce) tomato paste
1 tablespoon sugar
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/2 teaspoon worcestershire sauce
3/4-1 1/2 cups cut mushrooms, fresh or canned
3/4 cup sour cream

Brown steak in shortening in large skillet, stirring occasionally. Add onion and flour, cooking until onions are tender.

Add tomatoes, water, paste, sugar, salt, pepper and worcestershire. Cover and simmer about 1 1/2 hours, until meat is tender, stirring occasionally.

Add mushrooms and sour cream and cook about 5 minutes more. Place in 2-quart casserole. Top with:

Sour Cream Puffs

1 1/4 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup shortening
3/4 cup sour cream

Sift flour, baking powder and salt. Cut in shortening until particles are fine. Add sour cream and stir with fork until dough clings together in a ball.

Pat out on floured surface to 1/2 inch thickness. Cut six to eight 2 1/2 inch biscuits and top each biscuit with a 1 inch "hat."

Place biscuits over meat mixture in casserole. Brush with cream and sprinkle with sesame seeds, if desired.

Bake, uncovered, at 425 degrees for 20-25 minutes, until biscuits are golden brown.

Recipes serves 6-8.

Everyone will think this dish is something special:

Meatballs in Wine Sauce

1 pound lean ground beef
1 small onion, chopped
1/2 cup dry bread crumbs
1/4 cup water chestnuts, finely chopped
1/4 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon worcestershire sauce
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1 egg

Heat oven to 400 degrees. Mix all ingredients and shape into 1-inch meat balls. Place in ungreased jelly roll pan and bake, uncovered, about 10 minutes (until no longer pink in middle).

While meatballs are cooking, prepare:

Wine Sauce

1/4 cup cold water
3 tablespoons cornstarch
1/2 cup dry red wine
1 can (10 1/2 ounce) condensed beef broth
1 clove garlic, crushed

Mix water and cornstarch in 3-quart saucepan. Gradually stir in remaining ingredients. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Boil and stir for 1 minute.

Gently stir meatballs into sauce. Garnish with parsley, if desired. Serve on noodles or rice.

How about this soup for your Christmas Eve buffet:

Creamy Broccoli Leek Soup

6 cups chicken broth
1 1/2 pounds fresh broccoli, cut into florets and 1/2 inch stem pieces
3 leeks
1/4 cup butter
1/4 cup flour
1/4 teaspoon mace or nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 1/2 cups half and half
4 ounces (1 cup) shredded Jarlsberg cheese

In large pot, bring broth to a boil. Add broccoli and simmer, uncovered, about 15 minutes or until tender/crisp

Cut green tops off leeks and discard. Cut in half lengthwise, and then into thin slices.

Remove broccoli from broth. Reserve 1 cup of hot broth.

In blender, puree half of cooked broccoli and 1/2 cup of reserved broth until very smooth. Reserve 2 cups of puree and set aside. Puree remaining broccoli and broth.

Place all puree in pot.

Saute leeks in butter for about 5 minutes, until tender. Stir in flour, mace and pepper and cook 1 minute, stirring constantly. Stir in the reserved broccoli puree and blend well.

Place mixture in pot and blend well. Bring to a boil over medium heat and cook 3-4 minutes, until thickened, stirring constantly.

Reduce heat to low and add half and half and cheese. Cook until cheese is melted, but DO NOT BOIL. Recipe makes six 1 1/2 cup servings.

This layered lettuce salad that you make ahead is a little different from the one you've made before. It's just a bit more festive:

Layered Lettuce Salad

8 cups torn lettuce
3 cups coarsely chopped cauliflower
1 cup thinly sliced carrots
1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
1/2 cup chopped sweet red onion
1 1/2 cups mayonnaise
2 to 3 tablespoons mustard
4 ounces (1 cup) shredded cheddar cheese
12 slices bacon, cooked crisp and crumbled

In 9x13 dish, layer lettuce, cauliflower, carrots, mushrooms and onion. Combine mayonnaise and mustard; spread evenly over onion layer.

Layer cheese and bacon over mayonnaise; cover and refrigerate overnight. Recipe serves 12.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

I would like to clarify a statement published in the Northern Watch on Friday, December 13, 1991. The Pennington County Township Officers Association did not at any time take a position one way or the other on the casino issue. All I did was report the results of a survey conducted by the association on 200 rural residents in Pennington county.

Sincerely,
Mark Hanson
Thief River Falls

To The Editor:

I draw your attention to recall a letter in the Northern Watch of November 15, a letter in which Connie Perpich refers to herself as "Director of Public Affairs." What she neglected to add was "of Planned Parenthood"—she is in fact the chief lobbyist for Planned Parenthood.

Please consider a few more facts she didn't give you:

(1) Planned Parenthood's nationwide chain of abortion clinics, the largest in the country, performed 122,191 abortions in 1989 and referred an additional 100,000 women for abortions. During that year only 4,732 women got prenatal care at Planned Parenthood clinics and a mere 494 received infertility treatment.

(2) In Minnesota's Planned Parenthood's Highland Park clinic in St.Paul, Planned Parenthood performed 2,272 abortions in 1989 and their other clinics referred hundreds for abortions.

(3) At least 70 per cent of women who test positive for pregnancy at Planned Parenthood clinics get abortions.

(4) Note this one! Planned Parenthood grossed $23.7 million from performing abortions each year.

It's no surprise Connie Perpich would blast Congressman Collin Peterson and Sen. Dave Durenberger for not supporting the federally-funded Title X human services bill and I see why—Planned Parenthood is angry in that they no longer can discuss abortion.

In 1989 Planned Parenthood of Minnesota spent $5-6 million on a series of newspaper ads against Congressmen Tim Penney, Vin Weber, Arlan Stangeland and Jim Oberstar in their home districts, attacking them for voting to limit abortions.

PPM spent $300,000 last year for its "Choice Attitude Survey" aimed at amassing mailing lists of abortion rights supporters to be used against pro-life candidates. In October, 1989, an article in the St. Paul Pioneer Press, PPM executive director Tom Webber said the survey would be paid for initially with funds from PPM's "corporate reserve," yet PPM continues to maintain the claim that it can't afford to fund its family planning programs!

(Here is an update: Once again PPM was a big spender at the state legislature. From July 1, 1990 through June 30, 1991 Planned Parenthood of Minnesota spent $52,631 to influence legislators and government officials, according to the Sept. 27, 1991 report by the state ethical practices board.

(Yet PPM complained in recent newspaper ads across the state that unless taxpayers are forced to fund abortion as a family planning method through Title X, it will have to close its doors and deprive Minnesotans of medical services like breast exams and pap tests. Why are they spending so much money in all the wrong places? Taxpayers, get mad and don't allow it!)

A new approach is needed. Government and corporate America need to wake up and send a very unified message to Planned Parenthood: Killing babies already conceived is a terrible way to plan a family, and organizations which insist that abortion must be a "reproductive rights option" can no longer depend on tax dollars or a foundation for support.

Thanks go to many major corporations that have discontinued their support for Planned Parenthood. In addition, many government agencies have withdrawn their support. Planned Parenthood is spending huge amounts of money in an effort to unseat pro-life elected officials.

I ask you, America, do you want your tax dollars paying for abortion? What an awful way to plan a family when the market is swamped with the contraceptives of your choice. We have a very misguided America and we need to wake up and be willing to fight for life.

Sincerely,
Dorothy Pederson, Chairperson
Central Marshall County Chapter
Minnesota Citizens Concerned for Life

To The Editor:

The news media has been reporting for at least a year that this country is in a recession. Only in the last six months has George Bush's Administration conceded to this dilemma. Let's objectively review some of the last 11 years' activities of the Reagan/Bush team.

This country went from a trade surplus to a huge trade deficit. Starting with Reagan's Presidency, we have witnessed the effective dismantling of labor unions in America (although Reagan supported Poland unionizing). We have seen the onslaught of few full-time to mostly part-time, no benefits jobs.

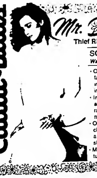
We have witnessed the unemployed become homeless with both administrations refusing to include them in unemployment figures. We have seen many U.S. corporations go south or to Third World countries where $1 an hour or less are typical salaries, while these CEOs receive six to seven-digit salaries, and where there are no pollution laws.

We have also witnessed Bush carry out every veto he promised on legislation that might help this country's middle class and poor, yet there is always money for cold war military "defense" (pork) programs to survive. We witnessed Bush's nuclear weapon disarmament initiative (sought by the Soviets years ago) only eliminate six per cent of U.S. stockpiles, yet the Research and Development budget (Star Wars) grows.

History has recorded Reagan's deregulation of banks and savings and loan associations resulting in bankrupteies and the destruction of our economic foundation and, get this, we taxpayers have been told we will pay for it. We have further witnessed these two administrations cleverly rearrange the wealth of this country into the hands of the few wealthy who now pay less than what middle class is left to pay.

College graduates are unable to find jobs other than gas station or minimum wage. Taxes on all levels are increasing and we receive fewer services. Bush engaged this country in a war in the Persian Gulf because of oil (a finite resource), yet in February he vetoed a bill that called for safe, non-polluting energy research and alternatives. The only way our ozone layer and pollution problems in this country will be cured is if corporations see they can make a profit.

There are some questions all of us must ask ourselves: (1) Am I truly better off now than 11 years ago? (2) Will George Bush please tell our youth what they can look forward to in their future both economically and environmentally? (3) Is there a Republican, Democrat or third party candidate who carries a clean slate and cannot be bought out that is willing to fight to clean up this mess? (4) Will the U.S. have to file bankruptcy and start all over? It seems to me we are in a depression.



Sincerely,
Connie Omdahl

ACTIVITIES

Christmas Stockings

Is it time to hang up the traditional Christmas stockings? It may be fun to let your child make his Christmas stocking.

You will need colored paper, scissors, a paper punch and yarn. Cut out two identical stockings. Be sure they are large enough so that something can be put in them. Punch holes all around the stockings. Use the yarn to lace the two stockings together, and you have a paper stocking that will actually hold things.

Children should be encouraged to complete the various tasks it takes to complete this stocking.

SCAVENGER HUNT

For next week's Activities feature, you will need Christmas leftovers such as ribbons, gift wrapping, boxes and cards.

BOOK OF THE WEEK

The Thief River Falls public library suggests these good "Christmas reads" for the holiday:

Christian, Mary Blount. Anna and the Strangers. A Bethlehem innkeeper's daughter gives her most precious possession to the child born in her father's stable.

Davidson, Amanda. Teddy's First Christmas. Teddy climbs out of a big red box under the tree to enjoy some Christmas Eve adventures.

Day, Alexandra. Carl's Christmas. While his mistress is out, Carl, a large dog, and the baby in his care have a wonderful time.

DePaola, Tomie. Baby's First Christmas. This board book features simple texts and illustrations to introduce some of the familiar sights and experiences of Christmas.

VIDEO VARIETY

The Littlest Angel. Johnny Whitaker stars in this version of the Charles Tazewell classic of an angel who gives his most precious possession to the Christ Child.

PARENTING TIPS

When a Child Says, "No!"

TIMES FOR TODDLERS

One of the most frustrating things for a parent is when a young child learns to say "No," and then he uses it loudly and almost constantly. We wonder what has happened to the "sweet, cooperative" child we used to have. Now the question is why is this child suddenly refusing to cooperate and what should parents do about it?

First, parents need to realize this is normal behavior and in fact indicates intellectual growth. Your child has now developed the ability to realize that he has a choice and can use a very powerful word. Previously when it was time to eat he ate, when it was time to get dressed you dressed him. Now your child is exercising his power to make a choice.

Secondly, he is experimenting with this powerful word. After saying it your child will watch to see your reaction. This will tell him just how powerful it is. Try to avoid a power struggle. It may be necessary to ignore resistance and proceed gently, but firmly along the path you have chosen.

Finally, avoid asking questions that require a yes/no answer. Especially if you are not willing to allow a no answer. Instead of saying "Do you want some carrots?" say "Here are some carrots." If you think your child may still be resistant to the carrots, give him a choice (and some power) by asking "Would you like two or four?"

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Give your child choices of two things that you are willing to allow. Instead of saying "Do you want to go to bed?" say "It's time to go to bed. Do you want to walk or hop like a bunny?"

Gary & Twin Valley work toward pairing agreement

Gary/Twin Valley — The Twin Valley and Gary school districts are working toward a pairing agreement which could take effect between the two schools for the 1992-93 school year. Under the terms of the tentative agreement, both schools would operate separate K-4 grade programs. Gary's fifth and sixth grade students would attend school in Twin Valley and students in grades seven to nine from both school districts would attend school in Gary. High school students from both communities would attend school in Twin Valley. (Norman County Index)

Mylen Rude appointed VFW aide-de-camp

Bejou — Mylen L. Rude of the VFW Post 1226 in Bejou has been appointed by VFW National Commander-in-Chief Robert E. Wallace, to serve as a national aide-de-camp for 1991-92. The appointment recognizes outstanding service to the organization. The aide-de-camp assists the department (state) commander in promoting VFW programs, especially in the area of membership. (Mahnomen Pioneer)

New school is ahead of schedule

Williams — The new school project at Lake of the Woods is up to one month ahead of schedule. Interior painting is scheduled to begin in January and equipment should be moved in as soon as school is out in the spring. The only current delay involves the sprinkler system. The project being ahead of schedule now is good news after bad weather conditions hampered building in the summer. (Northern Light)

Flu bug keeps many students at home

Ada — The flu bug hit the Ada school district last week with large numbers of students missing from both schools due to illness. The high school reported more than 40 students absent Monday and that number was about the average for the entire week. At the elementary school, the largest number absent was 20. Surrounding school districts have reported that the flu hasn't been a big problem so far. (Norman County Index)

New snow cruisers club organized at Fertile

Fertile — The Sand Hill Snowcruisers club of Fertile has been reorganized with new officers and a goal of making the group more family-oriented. At this time there are 24 families signed out as members and the group is working on a trail on the old railroad line from Marcoux corner to Fertile. Brush and trees have been removed to make the area safe for snowmobiling. (Fertile Journal)

Train-Truck collision clean-up continues

Greenbush — Clean-up continues on the railroad tracks by Greenbush where a train-truck collision took place December 5. Burlington Northern-employees have been working steadily to dig out the debris left by the accident and remove the ground (approximately 6,000 cubic yards) around the tracks where oil and gasoline had leaked during the accident. The clean-up is a joint cooperative effort by Burlington-Northern and the Minnesota Pollution Control agency. A total of 800 feet of track will be replaced. (Greenbush Tribune)

Teachers apply for grant to develop portion of Pine Tree park

Blackduck — Not only would hiking and cross country ski trails be developed, but three small interpretive buildings would be installed at Pine Tree park if a $30,000 grant is approved. A group of teachers from Blackduck prepared the grant proposal to the state for the money which would be used at the park at Blackduck lake. The three interpretive centers would cover Indian Culture, Alternative Energy and Wildlife. Trees planted along the trails would be marked in English and Ojibwe and a variety of feeders for birds and deer would be maintained. The project, if funded, will involve the entire school. (American)

Rehearsals set for annual oratorio

Crookston — The Crookston Civic Music league's oratorio will be "The Messiah" by Handel, to celebrate the 250th anniversary of the first performance of the piece in 1742 in Ireland. The oratorio will be presented Feb. 20 at 8 p.m. in the Central high school auditorium in Crookston and on February 19 at Thief River Falls. A combined choir of 200 voices will feature members from both Crookston and Thief River Falls. The program will be directed by Jere Lantz, accompanied by the Minneapolis Chamber symphony. Weekly rehearsals will begin January 9. (Crookston Daily Times)

Nativity pageant

Nativity pageant at the Donald and Margaret Rupprecht farm three miles east, five miles north and one mile east of Thief River Falls will take place Saturday, December 21, at 7 p.m. A large lighted star marks the Rupprecht farmstead.

Public attendance is encouraged for the nativity program which includes live animals, use of costumes, vocal soloists and instrumental accompaniment. "Come to the Star—Christmas Life" is the title of the half-hour program.

Persons attending are reminded that the pageant takes place in an unheated pole building with straw bales for seating and they are advised to dress accordingly.

This year's pageant involves the coming of the Christ Child as seen through the eyes of Deborah (played by Bev Rupprecht), an orphaned serving girl working at her uncle's Bethlehem inn.

Rev. Eugene Floistad of Holt will be narrator and soloists include Grace Hammer, Kari DeLap, Jan Peterson, Cecily Johnson and Don Lunke.

Christmas bird count

Persons interested in a bird count within a 15-mile radius of a point on highway 310 just north of the Roseau county fairgrounds on Saturday, December 28, are invited to contact Naomi Jackson at 463-2216 or Bud or Betty Johnson at 463-2181.

Due to its geographic and vegetative diversity, the area for the count provides habitat for a large variety of bird species.

Counters will meet at 7 a.m. at Brandt's Restaurant on the west edge of Roseau. There will be a $5 participant's fee, half of which will be paid by the Agassiz Audubon society. Participants will regroup at the restaurant for lunch and after sundown will gather at the Bud and Betty Johnson home two miles north of the fairgrounds for a potluck supper and compilation of the bird species and number sighted.

Nothing Succeeds Like Success....

One of the success stories of the Thief River Falls public schools is the Alternative Learning Center—the "school after school" which offers to students having or having had difficulty with the traditional educational system another opportunity to learn and to earn a high school diploma.

By "school after school" we mean that many of the participants in the alternative program had put formal education behind them, either by dropping out entirely or cutting enough classes to not have a realistic chance for successful completion. Alternative education can be tailored to their needs and schedules and they can proceed at the pace they set for themselves.

Recently three of the staff members received a letter from one of the early graduates of the program, Veronica Engstrom. The Times ran a photo and story about her when she graduated from the program in March of 1990. Most of the time people in "helping" fields of endeavor get little feed-back from those who have been helped. Veronica helped brighten the day of Roberta Weigand, Vaugho Thorfinnson and Peter Solem with a recent letter.

"I see that the school has improved by 100 times since I graduated," she wrote. "I will never forget how much I got from your instruction. I am currently enrolled at the University of Alaska. They told me that anyone who could improve so much from 11th to 12th grade is one who should be a top priority to get enrolled. I told them that I had wonderful instructors my senior year. I really believe you are the ones who really helped me see the light."

Veronica completed four and one-half credits in the alternative learning program, just half o credit short of the normal five-credit load carried by senior students. She completed her credits in March of 1990 and planned to enter the U.S. Air Force. She has now been in the air force for 18 months and states, "I love it and probably will stay for awhile."

Her letter to "Bobbie, Vaughn and Pete" continues:

"At times I wish I was still in my senior year. Things have changed a lot. I have hardly any time to sit and write to family and friends. I have two jobs, school, and my health club up here. I have completed one full year of college and am a sophomore now. It takes a little longer taking only a couple classes at a time.

"From what my supervisors tell me, I guess I am doing very well at work. The reason I tell you this is because I feel I couldn't have done it without you or the support of family and friends. I just want to say thank you for giving me the chance to prove myself.

"I will never forget what you people did for me. You are doiog a special job that the normal high school would never do—that is take the so-called 'troublemakers' and turn them into productive adults. You will never koow how much we really appreciate it.

"Anyway, what I really want to say is have a wonderful holiday season and keep up the excellent work. There are lots of teens counting on you!"

Presently there are 161 students enrolled in the Alteroative Learoiog Center, about half in Thief River Falls and the remainder at satellite centers in Roseau and Warroad. The number of participants indicates the need. Not all will complete their programs and not all who earn their diplomas will find a successful future. But they all have a second chance and they all are being given an opportunity to succeed.

And oothing succeeds like success......

North Dakota An Urban State?

People who have considered North Dakota "a barren strip of land that lies between Minnesota and Montana" may be surprised to know that our neighbor to the west is now an urbao state. Accordiog to the Census Bureau of the U.S. Department of Commerce, North Dakota and North Carolina both became urban states duriog the 1980s.

By Bureau of Ceosus standards, a state becomes urban if more than half of its population lives in "densely populated areas and in places of 2,500 or more outside urbanized areas." Everyone living outside urbanized areas and places of less than 2,500 or in the open countryside is classified as rural.

Urban proportion of the population is highest in California at 92.6 per cent and rural proportion is highest in Vermont at 67.8 per cent. The United States is 75.2 per cent urban. North Dakota during the period from 1981 to 1990 went from 51.2 per cent rural to 53.3 per cent urban. Minnesota is the most urban of the seven West North Central states at 69.9 per ceot, edging out Kansas with 69.1 per cent. The other states are Missouri, 68.7 per cent; Nebraska, 66.1 per cent; Iowa, 60.6 per cent; North Dakota, 53.3 per cent; and South Dakota, 50.0 per cent.

There are oow 187.1 million people living in urban areas of the United States—20 million more than 10 years ago. There are 61.7 millioo living in rural areas—2.2 million more than o year ago—although the number of rural residents increased in 32 states during the 1980-1990 decade. Since 1980, however, the rural percentage increased in only 11 states—Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, New York, Pennsylvania, Michigan, West Virginia, Mississippi, Louisiana and Montana. Forty-seven states registered gains in rural population during the previous 1970-1980 decade and 19 had percentage gains in rural population.

All of which brings to mind what seems to be an unlikely circumstance: To escape the urban clutter of North Dakota, one would have to seek the rural solitude of Vermont. Now, won't that make driving across North Dakota seem a lot less lonely?

Holiday shopping tips are given by Attorney General

The holiday season means shopping. Following are some quick consumer tips from the Minnesota Attorney General's office about return policies, shopping by mail, and buying that "big ticket" item.

Return Policies

With long holiday shopping lists, it's hard to get the perfect gift every time. If you have to return something, it pays to know the return policies at the store where you shop.

The law doesn't tell stores what their return policies should be. But Minnesota law does require stores to inform customers of limited return policies.

If no policy is posted in the store, the store must take returns and offer a cash refund, or credit the customer's account.

A store must take returns that are in good condition, but shoppers should be sure to return items within a reasonable period of time.

Keep your receipts just in case. Merchants have the right to ask for proof of purchase before offering you a refund.

Mail Order

Millions of Americans regularly shop by mail. If you're one of them, keep a few tips in mind when placing your next order.

First, if the company is new to you, check it out before you order.

Second, if you place an order through a toll-free number, get the operator's name and verification number. If you mail in your order, keep a copy of the order form for your records.

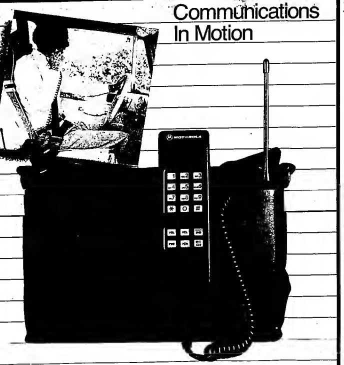
And know that if you shop by mail, the law protects you from fraud. For instance, a mail order purchase must be shipped when the company promises, or you may cancel for a full refund. Also, you may refuse delivery of items that are damaged.

And if you receive merchandise that you didn't order, consider it a gift. You don't have to pay for it or return it.

If you suspect mail order fraud, contact the U.S. Postal Inspection Service.

Smart Shopping for Major Purchases

If you decide to splurge on a "big ticket" item, such as electronic equipment or furniture, making a wise buying decision takes some time and effort.



To be a smart shopper, first define what you need and want, then gather information that will help you make your decision. Some of the steps you may want to take include:

- Compare the quality and price of various brands and models.
- Compare warranty protections. Find out what you have to do and what the company promises to do if the product needs repair.
- Compare stores that carry the brands and models you are considering. Compare prices, convenience of the stores' location, and return policies.
- Compare contract terms. Read the entire contract and make sure you understand all terms. Check for additional or hidden charges, such as delivery or service costs. Make sure all promises the salesperson has made are written into the contract.

For more information, or to file a consumer complaint, contact the Attorney General's Consumer Division: 124 Ford Building, 117 University Avenue, St. Paul, MN 55155; (612) 296-3353, or, toll-free, 1-800-652-9747.

NCC Invitational first round interrupted by weather...

Huskies, Bears post wins

Opening round of the first Northland Community College Invitational boys high school basketball tournament was interrupted by icy weather Thursday as officials called off the evening portion of the two quarterfinal sessions.

Goodridge defeated Badger-Greenbush 63-57 and Lake of the Woods downed East Grand Farks Sacred Heart 57-41 in the afternoon match-ups, but games featuring Kittson County North vs. Red Lake County Central and Grygla vs. Red Lake Falls were rescheduled for tonight (Friday) at their original starting times – 6:30 and 8:15 p.m., respectively.

That will mean the consolation and championship semifinals will be played Saturday and the final round will be moved back to Monday. The tournament had been set for a Thursday-Friday-Saturday run.

Northland Invitational

■ Quarterfinals Thursday - (Upper Bracket) Goodridge 63, Badger-Greenbush 57, Lake of the Woods 57, East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 41

■ Quarterfinals Friday - (Lower Bracket) Kittson County North vs. Red Lake County Central, 6:30 p.m.; Grygla vs. Red Lake Falls, 8:15 p.m.

■ Semifinals Saturday - (consolation round) Badger-Greenbush vs. East Grand Forks Sacred Heart, 2 p.m.; Kittson County North or Red Lake County Central vs. Grygla or Red Lake Falls, 3:45 p.m.; (championship round) Goodridge vs. Lake of the Woods, 6:30 p.m.; Kittson County North or Red Lake County Central vs. Grygla or Red Lake Falls, 8:15 p.m.

■ Finals Monday - seventh place game, 1 p.m.; consolation championship, 2:45 p.m.; third place game, 5:15 p.m.; championship game 7 p.m.

Goodridge 63
Badger-Greenbush 57

If they plan to keep tournament scoring records, Donovan Quam set an early standard with a 31-point performance in the first game of the first Northland Community College Invitational to lead Goodridge past Badger-Greenbush 63-57.

Quam, a 6-4 senior who handles the ball well, battles inside and shows a soft shooting touch from the outside, started with a bang – scoring 10 quick points to stake the Huskies to a 14-0 lead five minutes into the tournament.

But the late start to the basketball season because of the lengthened Grygla-Goodridge state runner-up football season might have been reflected in the Huskies' performance the rest of the way – described as "inconsistent" by head coach John Rahn.

Badger-Greenbush did not pick up a point for the first 5:16 of the game and trailed 20-9 at the end of the first quarter in which the Bulldogs went 4-for-14 from the field (29 percent) and the Huskies finished 9-for-17 (53 percent).

However, those figures were turned around in the second quarter when Badger-Greenbush made a game of it by going 6-for-10 from the floor (60 percent) while Goodridge stumbled through a 5-for-15 swoon (33 percent).

Trailing 22-11, the Bulldogs went on a 10-0 run to pull within 22-21 when freshman center Matt Kuznia scored from underway with 4:49 remaining.

But the Huskies never relinquished the lead. Quam scored on back-to-back possessions with two free throws and a move to the inside to open up a five-point spread, and after the Bulldogs ate up most of the final minute, they blew the one-shot thing with a turnover that led to a Travis Kotrba basket and a 32-25 Goodridge lead at the half.

It stayed close until Goodridge went on a 17-1 tear that turned a shaky 34-31 lead into a 51-32 cushion with 7:23 left in the game.

But Badger-Greenbush made it interesting down the stretch by connecting on four three-point shots in the final 4:02 in trimming the difference to 61-55 with 1:10 still to play.

Junior forward Ryan Rislov had three of the four three-point baskets, including No. 4 with 70 seconds to go in a suddenly-interesting six-point game. However, Rislov missed the chance to make it even closer when he let an opportunity to complete a rare five-point play slip away by missing two free throws after being fouled on the three-point shot.

The Huskies' Shane Wilkens made it 63-55 with 48.5 seconds showing, and the winners let the clock run out after Shane Gronhovd put in a rebound basket for the Bulldogs.

Brandon Blaine joined Quam in double figures for the 3-0 Huskies with 12 points. Rislov scored 19 to lead Badger-Greenbush, while guard Trent Wahl had 11 and Kuznia finished with 10.

Rahn, who looks for a good year out of his team, wasn't surprised by Huskies' inconsistent play. "We got the early lead and then relaxed," he said. "We're not getting it done right now, but I guess you have to remember we've only had eight complete practices so far with the late start because of football. "Donovan, Brandon and Shane (Wilkens) are all excellent ball players, but we haven't jelled yet. You don't see the fire in their eyes yet."

Goodridge wound up shooting 46 percent from the field for the game on a 26-for-57 showing, while Badger-Greenbush shot 35 percent on a 19-for-54 outing. The Huskies were 10-for-16 at the free throw line, where the Bulldogs were 13-for-17. Goodridge finished with a 32-28 rebound edge, and Badger-Greenbush topped the turnover charts 19-18.

Lake of the Wood out-scored East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 20-8 in the fourth quarter to break open a close game as the Bears joined Goodridge in the championship round semifinals with a 57-41 win.

Brody Willis scored 17 points, Ken Tetu had 12 and Dan Dahlgren added 10 as the Bears posted quarter leads of 13-8, 26-22 and 37-33 before pulling away over the final eight minutes.

Sacred Heart did not have a double figure scorer, although Marc Demers, Kent Wavra, Dan Zavoral and Brad Beauchamp all had eight points.

Three Blue Devils on all-state team

Three players from state runner-up Grygla-Goodridge were named to the 1991 Minnesota Nine-Man all-state high school football team, it was announced this week.

Blue Devils earning all-state honors were defensive end Mitch Bernstein, linebacker Justin Lunsetter and offensive guard Jeremy Rychlock.

All three seniors also played key roles on the other side of the ball for the Section 8 champion Blue Devils – Bernstein at quarterback, Lunsetter at runningback and Rychlock in the defensive line.

They were joined on the all-state squad by two other Top of the State Conference players – East Grand Forks Sacred Heart runningback Jim Langer and Stephen defensive lineman David Borowicz.

North Tri-County Conference all-state representatives were Win-E-Mac defensive lineman Ryan Tangen and Fisher-Climax linebacker Darin Vettern.

Area players picking up all-state honorable mention honors were Kittson County North runningback Erik Finney, Tri-County kick returner Marcus Britten and Argyle offensive lineman Rick Kroll.

Pioneers out-score Air Base

Five Northland Community College scorers hit double figures Tuesday night as the Pioneers picked up a 103-82 win over the Grand Forks Air Force Base basketball team.

Fred Sculfield led the Northland scoring parade with 23 points, while Joe Comstock netted 21, Larone Greer 18, John Clark 12 and Travis Brown 12.

Vernon Calvin scored a game-high 34 points for the visitors, who led 38-35 at halftime, but were out-scored 68-44 in the second half.

"It was a very poor exhibition on our part in the first half," said Northland coach Chet Engelman. "We did not play with any intensity at the start. But we came out in the second half and got after it pretty good."

Sculfield got the Pioneers going when he came up with two free throws, a pair of two-point baskets and two three-point buckets during a six-minute spell near the midway mark of the second half that broke open what had been a close game.

"Fred got us going, and then the rest of them picked it up a notch, too," said Engelman.

Northland was 38-for-91 from the field (42 percent) and 20-for-27 at the free throw line. The Air Base went 35-for-77 from the field (45 percent) and had a 10-for-18 night at the line. Brown had 12 rebounds (along with five blocked shots), but the Pioneers were out-rebounded 53-51. The Air Base rebound edge was negated, however, by the Warriors' 33 turnovers – 11 more than the Pioneers.

The win put Northland over .500 at 3-2.

Scoring

	1	2	T
Grand Forks Air Base	38	44	82
Northland	35	68	103

GFAFB - Pat Moody 16, Gene Siegel 3, Carey Baldwin 4, Ryan Tatum 3, Vernon Calvin 34, Barry Hartlaion 14, Charlee Wakefield 8.

Northland - Larone Greer 18, Donald Hardaway 8, Chip Carter 1, Joe Comstock 21, John Clark 12, Travis Brown 12, Kelly Dahl 2, Fred Sculfield 23, Nate Carlin 1, Derrick Thomas 7.

Jason Svir picks up hat trick in TRF hockey win...

Prowlers get by EGF 3-2

A third party decided the outcome of a goaltending duel between Thief River Falls' Barry Dowers and East Grand Forks' Jeremy Beck Tuesday as the Prowlers' Jason Svir stepped in with a three-goal hat trick to lead his team past the host Green Wave 3-2 in Section 8 high school hockey.

The decision snapped a three-game losing streak for the 2-3 Prowlers, and left the Green Wave 0-3.

"Tonight was a critical game for us," said Thief River Falls coach Glenn Chiodo. "We've had some lapses in our games so far where we haven't played real well. Tonight we still made mistakes, but I thought we played a pretty consistent hockey game. We really didn't have any letdowns."

The two teams played to a 1-1 first period draw, and it stayed that way until the final period when Svir muscled his way past an East Grand Forks defender at the blue line and beat Beck cleanly from 20 feet with just 1:56 elapsed.

Scoring off a face-off to Dowers' left, East Grand Forks' Jeff Geddes tied it again at 6:24, but the Prowlers answered in similar fashion just 70 seconds later when Rick Ostby won a draw to Beck's left and Svir promptly finished off the hat trick effort with the game-winner.

"That was probably one of the best games we've had with East Side where both teams played well," noted Chiodo. "I thought both teams played well. I thought both goaltenders played spectacularly."

Beck finished with 29 saves and Dowers had 19. Both came up with big-time saves on several occasions.

Nick Bowen of the Green Wave opened the scoring at 5:57 of the first period with a neat bit of stick-handling, but just moments after Beck made a great stop on a 2-on-1 tip off the stick of Jeff Twomey, the Prowlers were on the board as Svir finished a scramble around the East Grand Forks net at 11:28.

The Green Wave put pressure on the Prowlers at the end when a penalty gave East Grand Forks a power play apportunity for the final 1:53 and an extra attacker was brought in for a 6-on-4 advantage over the last 37 seconds.

Thief River Falls hosts Hibbing Saturday at 3 p.m. A short holiday break will be followed by an appearance the the Granite City Classic in St. Cloud Dec. 26-28.

Skippers win 55-37

Eighth grader Krissi Super scored 23 points and grabbed 10 rebounds, while senior Holly Gram had a 13-point, 13-rebound game as Middle River beat Badger-Greenbush 55-37 Thursday in a girls high school basketball game played in Badger.

The Skippers led at each quarter stop, but by only 12-9, 23-19 and 32-30 margins, before breaking it open with a 23-7 fourth quarter run.

Foul trouble, a re-occurring problem for the 4-3 Skippers, forced Middle River to play a zone defense, and the Bulldogs' Jessica Reese and Stacy Dallager capitalized with 15 and 13-point scoring efforts, respectively.

But a fourth quarter switch to a man-to-man defense shut out the Badger-Greenbush scoring tandem, thanks to the defensive efforts of Gram and junior Sherie Melby, pointed out Middle River coach Tom Neibauer.

"We always have a hard time playing in Badger," noted Neibauer. "Sherie and Holly really did a nice job for us on defense in the fourth quarter."

Middle River shot 51 percent from the field (19-for-37), but the Skippers also had 31 turnovers.

Mustangs edge RLF at buzzer

Jody Martell's basket in the final moments broke a tie and gave Red Lake County Central a 63-61 boys high school basketball win over Red Lake Falls Tuesday.

The rescheduled game, played at Plummer, provided the Mustangs with their first win of the 1991-92 season after three season-opening losses.

"We didn't play all that bad," said Red Lake County Central coach Todd Fore.

It was close throughout. Red Lake County Central had a 17-16 first quarter edge. It was tied 34-34 at halftime and the Mustangs went back on top 48-43 by the end of the third quarter.

Red Lake Falls came up with a game-tying basket with 10 seconds left, but Red Lake County Central won it as Ryan Melby went the length of the court with the inbounds dribble, drove the lane and put up the shot as time ran down.

The Eagles apparently came up with a partial block on the shot, but the ball wound up in the hands of Martell under the basket and he threw it in at the buzzer for the dramatic finish.

Melby turned in a 21-point, 8-rebound game. Brian Remick led Red Lake Falls with 15 points.

Red Lake County Central shot 42 percent from the field (23-for-55), while Red Lake Falls shot 46 percent (25-for-54). The Mustangs were 11-for-17 at the free throw line, where the Eagles were 4-for-7. Red Lake Falls had a 33-29 rebound advantage, but also topped the turnover charts 17-16.

Wrestlers lose to weatherman

Thursday's icy weather forced officials to postpone Thief River Falls' 1991-92 high school wrestling home opener against Greenbush.

The John Anderson-coached Prowlers will be idle until the Jan. 4 Warren Invitational.

RLCC game at RLF called off

A scheduled Red Lake County Central girls high school basketball game at Red Lake Falls was postponed Thursday because of the icy weather conditions.

The Mustangs will be idle until a Thursday, Jan. 2, game at Climax.

Billy Hollum of Badger-Greenbush blocked this shot by Shana Vattleson of Goodridge during Thursday's opening game in the Northland Community College invitational boys high school basketball tournament. Matt Kuznia of the Bulldogs was also involved in the play, while Shane Wilkens of the Huskies looked on. Goodridge won 63-57.

Skippers struggle, but win

Middle River made hard work of it Tuesday before coming up with a 65-55 boys high school basketball win at Warroad.

Early foul trouble created most of the problems as the Skippers struggled to 17-16 and 32-30 leads at the first two quarter stops.

But a defensive switch ignited a third quarter turnaround as Middle River shut down Warroad's Chris Bergstrom inside to open up a 46-35 scoreboard gap.

Bergstrom scored 14 first half points, but did not pick up a second half field goal in finishing with 17.

The win put Middle River at 2-0 for the year. They will be idle until the Thief River Falls Invitational Dec. 26-28.

Middle River fouls set up a busy 23-for-35 night at the free throw line for Warroad, and it wasn't poor officiating that put the Skippers in a hole. "It was a lot of poor defense," explained Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "It was a lot of silly fouls. We were out of position and did a lot of slapping and grabbing."

Offensively the Skippers showed a balanced attack as Jarrett Walton scored 16 points, John Sparby 14, David Blazek 11 and Gilbert Olson 10.

However, it was just a 31 percent shooting night for the winners, who connected on 22 of 70 field goal attempts. They were 16-for-22 at the free throw line.

Warroad had an even tougher time of it on a 28 percent 15-for-53 shooting performance.

The Skippers out-rebounded the Warriors 37-26, including a 17-6 edge on the offensive boards.

Scoring

Prowlers beaten by Pirates 49-37

Crookston's combination inside-outside game was too much for Thief River Falls Tuesday as the Pirates beat the host Prowlers 49-37 in girls high school basketball.

First, the winners went inside to Molly Duckworth (12 points) and Janna Knutson (10 points). When the Prowlers tried to close down the middle, the Pirates called on the outside shooting of Gina Wardner (13 points).

The result was the first loss in three season-opening starts for the Prowlers and first-year head coach Sally Wiltse.

"Defensively, we couldn't control them," explained Wiltse. "The kids worked really hard; they gave it a 100 percent effort. We just couldn't stop them."

Thief River Falls' offense was concentrated in an 18-point outing by Jodi Kruta as the Prowlers faced quarter deficits of 12-8, 26-19 and 37-32.

A 28 percent shooting night (17-for-60) didn't help the Prowlers' cause, nor did a 35-27 beating on the boards.

"We didn't shoot very well, and we had a hard time with the rebounds," admitted Wiltse."

Crookston shot 41 percent from the field by making 20 of 49 field goal attempts and had a 7-for-12 night at the free throw line, compared to a 1-for-2 free throw outing for the Prowlers.

First North Sub-Section 8AA test for the Prowlers Saturday will be a 7:30 p.m. match-up with Fergus Falls in the Lincoln High School gym. The Prowlers will then follow a holiday break with an appearance at the Brainerd Invitational Dec. 26-28.

Pioneers fall 79-78

Trailing 32-26 at halftime, the Grand Forks Air Force Base offense took flight in the second half Tuesday en route to a 79-78 women's basketball win over host Northland Community College.

Sonia McCormick and Debbie Bunch sparked the second half outburst for the winners as McCormick netted 15 of her game-high 27 points and Bunch hit 16 of of 22 points after intermission.

"We didn't play very well defensively, especially in the second half," admitted Northland coach Sue Barnd, who watched her team fall behind with about eight minutes remaining after the Pioneers surrendered eight straight points.

The combined 49-point scoring by McCormick and Bunch offset Northland's 1-2 punch supplied by Rhonda Rothschadl and Alice Dunning. The two Thief River Falls sophomores also produced a combined 49 points as Rothschadl netted 25 and Dunning had 24. They had big numbers on the boards, too, as Rothschadl grabbed 18 rebounds and Dunning collected 16.

Hitting one of two free throw attempts with 17 seconds left provided the Air Base with a 79-75 lead. Dunning sliced it to 79-78 on a three-point basket with four seconds remaining, but the Pioneers were unable to get their hands on the ball again before the clock expired.

Both teams shot 36 percent from the field – Northland going 29-for-80 while the Air Base went 31-for-87. Northland was 18-for-28 at the free throw line, where the winners were 17-for-26. The Pioneers had a slight 51-50 rebound edge. The turnovers were even at 23-apiece.

The 4-3 Pioneers will be idle until Jan. 14 when Northland has a home court rematch with the Air Base.

Argyle Invitational..

MCC girls wind up in third place

Marshall County Central shot 68 percent from the field in the second half Tuesday en route to a 42-41 win over the host Eagles in the third place game at the Argyle Invitational girls high school basketball tournament.

Stephen beat Tri-County 48-36 in the championship game of the two-day, four-team tournament.

Tournament Results

■ Semifinals Monday - Stephen 64, Marshall County Central 47, Tri-County 38, Argyle 35.

All-Tournament Team

Marshall County Central - Sara Lokstad; Argyle - Judilyn Timm, Tri-County - Cherity Sjodin; Stephen - Darcy Kuznia, Rachael Kazmierczak.

Marshall County Central, after trailing 26-18 at halftime, hit 11 of 16 second half shots as the Nordics evened their record at 3-3. They pulled within 32-31 at halftime and managed to hold on for a one-point win by grabbing the rebound when an Argyle shot for a win was off the mark with five seconds remaining.

"This was a big win for us," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde. "We're young and we're inexperienced, but to come back and win a close game like that has to be a confidence boost."

It was the second narrow victory of the still-young 1991-92 season for the Nordics, who edged Warroad 48-46 earlier.

Marshall County Central's Sara Lokstad was the game's lone double figure scorer, finishing with 19 points.

For the game the Nordics were 20-for-43 from the field (46 percent) and 2-for-4 at the free throw line. The Eagles went 18-for-50 from the field (36 percent) and finished 5-for-12 at the line. Marshall County Central had a 26-20 rebound advantage, but also had twice as many turnovers, 22-11.

The Nordics will be idle until a Jan. 6 trip to Stephen.

Lisa Swanson scored four points to lead the 1-3 Franklin team, coached by Robert Wayne.

Quam scored 31 points to lead the Huskies past the Bulldogs 63-57.

Quam lifts Huskies past Cougars 50-46

Donovan Quam scored 25 points, grabbed 16 rebounds and blocked nine shots Tuesday to lead Goodridge past visiting Kittson County North 50-46 in boys high school basketball.

It was the second win in two starts for the Huskies, but Goodridge coach John Rahn was not pleased with the performance. "It was a very, very poor outing for us," he said. "We've got a long ways to go."

Goodridge had a 14-12 first quarter lead, a 25-24 halftime edge and a 36-33 third quarter advantage.

Shane Wilkens had a 12-point, 8-rebound game for the winners to share post-game recognition with Quam. "Donovan and Shane had nice games," acknowledged Rahn.

Michael Steen led Kittson County North with 17 points and Steve Sjostrand had 14.

Goodridge shot 47 percent from the field (23-for-49) and went 4-for-7 at the free throw line. Kittson County North shot only 39 percent from the floor (20-for-51) and had a quiet 3-for-6 night at the line. The Huskies doubled the Cougars on the boards, 42-21.

Northland Community College men's basketball team advanced to the semifinal round of the Northern Conference Invitational at International Falls with a 102-92 tournament-opening win over Vermilion Thursday afternoon.

Hibbing edged United Tribes 98-95, University of Minnesota-Crookston defeated Mesabi 93-81 and host Rainy River out-scored NDSU-Bottineau 111-97 to complete the quarterfinals.

Fred Sculfield scored 22 points and had seven loose ball recoveries to lead the Pioneers' first-game win.

Sculfield had a solid supporting cast, too, as Larone Greer finished with 19 points, seven recoveries and five assists; Nate Carlin turned in a 10-point, 7-rebound game; and Travis Brown grabbed 12 rebounds to go along with eight points.

Troy Degroot scored a game-high 31 points for Vermilion.

Northland had a 46-45 halftime edge, and a basket by Degroot tied the game at 77-77 with 6:20 remaining before the Pioneers went on an 11-0 scoring run over a 1:20 span to take control. Donald Hardaway hit a three-point basket to start the outburst, with Sculfield coming up with a steal and a basket, Carlin sank two free throws, Sculfield did the steal-and-basket thing again and Greer connected from the field to make it 88-77.

DNR News

Poachers Will Pay

Price of poaching just went up.

Under a new law, people convicted of illegally taking fish and game must make restitution. This payment is used to compensate or replace wildlife that has been taken from all Minnesotans.

"The goal of the law is to deter poaching," said Debbie Dommen, executive director of Turn In Poachers (TIP). "Restitution will have the effect of hitting poachers in the pocketbook while providing funds for replacing fish and wildlife."

Restitution is a financial penalty in addition to the normal criminal penalty that does not compensate for the loss of natural resources.

Restitution is nothing new. The concept is older than Anglo-American law. In fact, judges routinely order restitution when sentencing people convicted of crimes. However, until recently, judges had no standardized method of imposing a penalty that would replace fish, ducks, deer or other wildlife owned by all Minnesotans.

Recently, Minnesota judges received a set of restitution guidelines from the Department of Natural Resources (DNR). Restitution penalties range from less than $1 for minnows to $4,000 for an endangered species. Most game fish species are valued from $5 to $30. All ducks, except canvasbacks, are valued at $50. The black bear is valued at $400. A deer is valued at $500.

Restitution values were recommended by Daniel R. Talheim, a noted natural resource economist from Michigan. The recommendations were then evaluated by the DNR and the values established.

Under restitution guidelines, a person found guilty of shooting five ducks over the limit would receive the standard penalty plus restitution of $250 ($50 per duck).

Judge James R. Clifford of the 10th Judicial District said the restitution law is grounded in logic and will be a valuable tool for the judiciary.

"I think this is an excellent method of capturing restitution that is definitely due from an offender, but can't be claimed by an individual," said Clifford. "The value of a restitution schedule is not to the DNR but to the people of Minnesota, who now have a collective right just as an individual victim does."

Judge Clinton Wyant of the 9th Judicial District agrees. "Those who violate game and fish laws are stealing from the rest of us," said Wyant. "It is an appropriate disposition to impose restitution for game and fish violations just as restitution is standard in sentences for such crimes as burglary and destruction of property."

Under the law, restitution fines will be forwarded to the DNR's Game and Fish Fund. Roger Holmes, DNR director of Fish and Wildlife, said most restitution funds will be invested in habitat projects.

Wheat Growers elect officers at annual meeting

Noel Kjesbo, a farmer from Wendell, was named president of the Minnesota Association of Wheat Growers for 1992 at the group's annual convention held recently in Detroit Lakes.

Other 1992 MAWG officers are Warren Affeldt, Fosston, first vice president; Jerry Norick, Rothsay, second vice president; and Tim Dufault, Crookston, secretary/treasurer.

Past president David Hougo, Waubun, will continue to serve on the MAWG board of directors. Other directors are Jorgen Knutson, Plummer; Bruce Hamnes, Stephen; Gary Rudningen, Murdock; and Pete Kappes, Ada.

At the Detroit Lakes convention, MAWG members approved a list of resolutions concerning farm policies in 1992. Following are some of the resolutions which MAWG supports:

•That 10 per cent or more of base acres for any program crop be convertible to other program crop bases each year at the owner's discretion.

•That a targeted options program be part of the 1992 federal wheat program.

•The continuation of summerfallow practices on set-aside acres, but with a September 1 planting date. In addition, the set-aside program should be based on planted acres rather than base acres.

•Encouraging all countries with surplus trade accounts to purchase excess stocks at target price levels for humanitarian relief and economic development in Third World countries.

•That the regionalization of farm programs be investigated so deficiency payments are distributed in a more equitable manner.

•Increased government funding of the Foreign Agricultural Service.

•Granting Most Favored Nation status to the Soviet Union and maintaining MFN status to China.

•That USDA treat all wheat classes equally when granting EEP.

•Working with Canada to look for ways to improve grain prices.

•That the DNR, Fish and Wildlife Service, and Nature Conservatory be required to pay property taxes on an equal basis to that of private landowners.

•The diversion of CCC surplus grain stocks into ethanol production.

•Federal Crop Insurance over disaster payments, but no mandatory plan requiring producers to carry Federal Crop Insurance in order to participate in the farm program.

•Efforts to lift the fast-track authority of Congress for a GATT agreement.

•Restricting the use of U.S. ports for shipping foreign grain and establishing end-use certificates for foreign grain imports.

•A profitable wheat marketing loan. Also, the administration of export programs in a timely manner to sell all U.S. Wheat production.

Future Fuel pellets tested at incinerator

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Successful testing of Future Fuel pellets were completed at the Fosston incinerator last week.

Historically, the garbage stream becomes smaller in the winter months, said Bill Wilson, manager at the Polk County Solid Waste facility. "When deliveries drop off during the winter months we end up using a boiler to produce steam and the boiler uses propane," Wilson said. Wilson said they are looking at pellets as an alternate fuel.

"They burned real good," said Wilson. Wilson said he planned to give Polk county commissioners the same message. They encountered a few problems but were able to make adjustments, he added.

Getting used to a better burning fuel was one of the adjustments they had to make. Only 450 pounds of pellets are needed to produce the same amount of steam that it takes 750 pounds of raw garbage.

Emissions were not part of the test or a concern. Wilson said the incinerator has its own emissions monitoring equipment, and no problems were noted.

Future Fuel manager Rick Nordhagen said he was encouraged by the test burn; but, he's used to disappointment and refuses to get real excited anymore. People are still a little reluctant to use the fuel because of the way the Minnesota Pollution Agency looks at it, Nordhagen said.

A new law on the books may help others take a second or even third look at the fuel. Nordhagen said the state legislature passed a law that now allows 30 per cent of the fuel to be fuel pellets, such as the pellets manufactured at Future Fuel in Thief River Falls.

While the test burn was successful, it doesn't necessarily mean the Fosston incinerator will be burning more of the pellets. Wilson said their fuel stream is steady now, steadier than it has been historically. If the raw garbage is there to be burned, they won't have a need for the pellets.

Nordhagen said the pellets were provided on a test basis and no further negotiations were conducted. But even if no more fuel is sold to the Fosston incinerator, Nordhagen said he is still negotiating with others who are interested in using the pellets.

Legislators find answers to DWI problem elusive

by David Hill

Representatives of the Thief River Falls Chemical Task Force met with Sen. LeRoy Stumpf and Rep. Wally Sparby in Thief River Falls Thursday to discuss a variety of chemical and drug related issues.

Despite recent publicity regarding some driving while intoxicated violations, the problem is much better than it was 10 years ago, said Sen. Stumpf. Stumpf said if you ask an officer to compare the number of arrests he will make on New Year's eve to the arrests he made 10 years ago, and he will say he made a lot more 10 years ago. Stumpf credits much of the decline in arrests to efforts to educate the public.

But Stumpf agrees there's a small number who will drink and drive no matter how many times they've been caught. "It's a real problem in rural areas," he added. Some people who live in rural areas have to depend upon driving to and from the home to work or the nearest town.

Rep. Sparby believes something should be done to allow for spot checks, especially for insurance. He also anticipates that the level of intoxication will drop from .10 to .08, a much stricter standard. Sparby said it seems to be a national trend.

Sparby and Stumpf appear to agree that throwing money after the problem will not solve it. Although education is an important goal to both, they believe many of the problems begin in the home.

Stumpf said the cause of the problem is really the family and lack of support and networking available to children. "We must do something to rejuvenate the family fabric," he said. Providing more counselors earlier in the school system may help identify the problems.

Sparby said education will not solve the problem entirely. There are street wise kids out there who are de-sensitized to violence, primarily from television programs, he added.

Despite the fact that many more dollars are spent on enforcement than on education, the dollars still need to be spent. Stumpf explained that spending dollars on educational efforts is where you get the biggest bang, but it will not eliminate the need to put people in prison or the need to at least attempt to rehabilitate them.

Nor will the problem be legislated out of existence. New ways of handling drug and alcohol abuse as well as domestic abuse need to be developed.

Stumpf and Sparby, like many others, aren't sure what the answers are but believe more people need to get involved.

TRF school board approves technical college district

Authorization was given for the administration to obtain quotations and proceed in awarding contracts for the electrical package of energy conservation measures at Lincoln, Mark Twain-Franklin and Washington schools and to call for bids on re-roofing portions of Mark Twain school.

Approval was also given to employing Evenson Dodge as bond consultants and proceed with the issuance of tax anticipation certificates.

Review was given to policies on travel, district public transportation and lost or stolen meal tickets. Further discussion and action on these policies will be taken at a later meeting.

Organizational meeting of the board will take place Monday, January 6, when the board meets at 5 p.m. in the school district service center. A special meeting will be held at 5:30 p.m. that day to hear a report from the School District 564 facilities committee.

Four LHS choir students perform

Four members of the Lincoln high school Concert Choir have been selected to perform in Decorah, Iowa, for the 42nd annual Dorian Vocal Festival. They will be performing seven pieces along with 1,000 other select high school singers.

Lars Dyrud, Thane Espe, Gayle Rhineberger and Vanessa Anderson will be practicing from January 12-13th with a massive concert on January 13 at Luther College. Their director will be Weston Noble from Luther College.

Seaman Bernier ends training

Navy Seaman Recruit Morgan L. Bernier, son of Fred and Suellen Bernier of St. Hilaire and a 1991 graduate of Lincoln high school, recently completed training at the recruit training center at Great Lakes, Il.

During the training cycle recruits are taught general military subjects designed to prepare them for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the navy's 85 occupational fields. Studies included seamanship, close-order drill, naval history and first aid.

Despite icy roads only 2 accidents reported serious

Minnesota state patrol reported dozens of vehicles in the ditch following the ice storm Thursday. Despite all of the vehicles in the ditch there were only two serious accidents in the nearby area.

On Thursday at about 2:30 p.m. the state patrol received a report of an accident near Highway 59 and the railroad tracks near Thief River Falls. According to the report, Mary Lea Rud, Newfolden, was driving south on Highway 59 in a 1987 Ford Aerostar van when she lost control on the slippery road. The vehicle went into the east ditch where it rolled. Rud was treated for some bruises and released from the hospital. She was wearing a seat belt at the time of the accident. There were only moderate damages to the vehicle.

At about 4:30 p.m. Thursday, the state patrol received a report of an accident two miles west of Gonvick. According to the report, Jeffrey Bakken, Thief River Falls, was driving a 1988 Ford Bronco west on Highway 92 when he lost control. The vehicle left the road and went into the ditch. Bakken and his wife Deonne were wearing seat belts at the time of the accident and reported having only minor cuts and bruises. Their Ford Bronco was considered a total loss.

TRF Lottery sales hit the $1 million mark

Total lottery sales in Thief River Falls nearly reached $1 million during fiscal year 1991, according to information from the Minnesota State Lottery. A little more than half of that was returned as prize redemptions.

Pennington county recorded over $1 million in instant lottery ticket sales during fiscal year 1991. The county had the third highest total in combined lottery sales among area counties, which include Marshall, Kittson, Roseau and Polk. Polk county recorded the highest dollar sales. Combined sales in that county totaled over $3.5 million.

Of the cities located in those counties, Thief River Falls ranked second highest in combined sales with $999,410. East Grand Forks topped all the cities in sales by a substantial margin. Total combined sales in East Grand Forks totaled $2,321,306.

While Thief River Falls didn't rank number one in sales, it appears to be the luckiest city among the cities ranked. Redemptions by percentage put Thief River Falls in the lead with 51 per cent.

The accompanying chart provides some interesting figures. The on-line sales include the Daily 3, Lotto Minnesota and Gopher 5 sales. Instant games over Minnesota in fiscal 1991 totaled 77 per cent, or $248.8 million, while on-line sales reached $72.5 million, for total sales of $321.5 million.

Higher-than-expected sales with a reduced operating budget allowed the Minnesota Lottery to contribute over $66.9 million to beneficiaries. The Environment and Natural Resources Trust Fund received $26.8 million, Infrastructure Development Fund got $4.3 million, Greater Minnesota Corporation received $7.7 million and the state General Fund received the remaining $28.1 million. The state General Fund also received an additional $19.3 million, or 5 per cent of sales, in lieu of sales taxes.

In fiscal 1991, lottery players won a total of $179.4 million in prizes, or 56 per cent of sales. Statewide lottery dealers collected a combined total of $16.5 million in sales commissions and $1.7 million in retailer incentives.

Information used in this article was collected by the Warren Sheaf from the Minnesota State Lottery.

Colleges agree to requirements

Students now can use an Associate in Arts degree from a community college as the major component of a four-year degree from the University of Minnesota's College of Liberal Arts (CLA).

Officials of the University of Minnesota and the Minnesota Community College System have signed an agreement spelling out approval for the A.A. degree to satisfy the first two years of requirements for a baccalaureate degree from CLA.

This means that courses in math, humanities, English and other departments which make up the two-year A.A. degree will be accepted as a package, said Dr. Ronald A. Williams, vice chancellor for instruction and students services in the Community College System.

Other graduation requirements of the university, such as a second language and junior- and senior-level work, are not included in the agreement.

The agreement is important because about half of all community college students plan to transfer to four-year colleges and universities. About 60 per cent of those transferring to the University of Minnesota go into the College of Liberal Arts.

"A student with an Associate in Arts degree will be assured that he or she has completed both the general education and the freshman English requirements in CLA," Williams said.

The term "general education" includes communications, humanities, social sciences, mathematics and natural sciences.

Up to now, the University of Minnesota has accepted most cred-

Extension cuts won't affect Pennington Co.

Pennington county extension service will not be affected by cuts which will affect 32 county extension agents in offices throughout Minnesota and result in more than 26 full-time positions being eliminated. Some cuts will trim full-time positions to part-time.

In the Northern Lites cluster (Cluster 5) of District 1, which includes the counties of Kittson, Roseau, Lake of the Woods, Marshall, Pennington and Red Lake, only Marshall county is affected. The position of extension agent in home economics has been eliminated at the county office in Warren.

In the Big Valley cluster (Cluster 6) of District 1, which includes the counties of Polk, Norman, Mahnomen, Clearwater, Beltrami and Hubbard, two positions will be eliminated. East Polk office in McIntosh will lose an extension agent in home economics and West Polk office in Crookston will lose an extension agent in 4-H.

In the Pine to Prairie cluster (Cluster 7) of District 1, which includes the counties of Clay, Becker, Wilkin and Otter Tail, the office in Detroit Lakes will lose one extension agent in agriculture and the Perham office will have the part-time position of extension agent in home economies eliminated.

Minnesota Extension Service of the University of Minnesota was faced with a $2.3 million budget shortfall, according to Pat Borich, extension service director and dean at the university. He said the cuts represent about a 10 per cent staff reduction of the 266 extension faculty serving in the state's 87 counties.

In six weeks an additional 40 layoffs from among St. Paul campus-based MES faculty and support staff will be announced, reducing that work force by 10 per cent.

Borich says the layoffs are necessary because of a shortfall in federal funding to cover benefits for staff, a reduction in state money appropriated to MES by the state legislature, and an anticipated lack of new funding for salary increases in 1992-93. Along with other University of Minnesota employees, MES staff received no salary increases in 1991.

The cuts in county agent positions are divided evenly across the three major program areas—agriculture, home economics and 4-H. Each program will lose about nine agent positions, Borich said.

He added that staff cuts of this size will have program repercussions for all counties. "These will further shrink MES' ability to serve"

Several projects set for '92 Construction

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Construction projects in Thief River Falls may give some people reason to rejoice and others to complain. All in all, it will be a profitable year for construction workers — at least if they are working on a public project.

A long list of public projects are anticipated for the summer of 1992: continuing construction on the $5.2 million water treatment plant, start of the $3.3 million downtown Highway 32 project, start of a $1.2 million airport resurfacing project, start of a $2.4 million TC hangar project, additional sidewalk projects, a golf course expansion project, a riverbank stabilization project in Centennial park, and possibly some other street projects.

"It will definitely have an impact on the (local) economy," said Ron Lindberg, technical services and engineering department director. Restaurants, hotels-motels, building equipment providers, service stations and others will likely benefit from the construction.

The total cost of construction projects requesting building permits in 1991 were estimated by City Building Inspector Bob Bregier at $7.3 million. Bregier is anticipating a similar amount next year. Both are substantially higher than previous years.

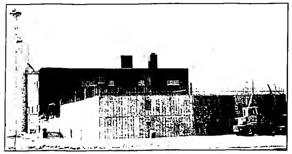
While individual construction projects can, and often do, affect the total construction costs recorded by his office, Bregier noted that there were more building permits issued last year than the year before.

Prior to the end of the year, the number of permits issued was around 190. That compares to 157 recorded during the previous year. The building permits that were issued included public as well as private construction projects.

Water Treatment Plant—

Construction on the city's $5.2 million water treatment plant began last summer, and it will continue through the next summer. Arlo Rude, superintendent of utilities, said the water treatment plant project is about 20 per cent complete. "It is progressing at about the right pace," he said.

Last week, the second floor of one section was poured and this will allow crews to enclose the area and continue work through the winter. Rude said the best guess for completion is January of 1993.



There may be some other utility projects scheduled for the summer, but right now the only project on the books is completion of the Highway 59 street lighting project. Rude said the Highway 1 east lighting project was completed a week ago.

Highway 32 project—

Preliminary plans for the $3.3 million downtown Highway 32 project were recently approved by the city council. If the bid letting takes place as anticipated in May or June, construction could begin in July.

Construction will block off major sections of the downtown area and is guaranteed to cause a few headaches. It will be a learning experience for some of the Construction at the water treatment plant in Thief River Falls is well underway. Construction will continue into the summer and hopefully be completed in January of 1993. According to Arlo Rude, superintendent of utilities, it is just about on schedule.

ACTIVITIES

Scavenger Hunt

Christmas is over, and for some children and adults, it is a letdown feeling. If this happens in your household, maybe an old fashioned scavenger hunt would be fun.

Let each person have a list or name some items in our home that they have to find. It is fun to use the "leftovers" of Christmas such as ribbons, gift wrappings, boxes and cards. If children can read, just making the list is good enough, but if the children are not able to read yet, a hand drawn picture list is appropriate. Each person should have their own container or bag to put the items in. Then set a timer and everyone start hunting. When the timer goes off, everyone has to gather again and see how well each person did!

Happy Hunting!

PARENTING TIPS

Reading Stories to Pre-Schoolers

To have a really successful experience when reading to a young child, forget about reading the words and read the child instead. Watch to see what interests your child, what does she understand or not understand. The first time through the book may consist almost entirely of conversations about the pictures.

The most useful questions and answers are those that invite the child to participate actively and give you clues about what he wants and needs to find out. Move through the book as rapidly as your child desires. As much as possible use his own vocabulary to introduce new ideas.

Speak and read with expression. Use your finger to point out and demonstrate what is happening. Animation makes the reading more interesting and provides clues to the meaning of pictures and words.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk about the pictures in the book. Be aware of your child's level of understanding.

SHOP AND SAVE IN THIEF RIVER FALLS

Here are some after-holiday recipes that you might like to try.

How about a soup—this one is very Minnesota.

Wild Rice Turkey Soup

3 (10 3/4 ounce) cans condensed chicken broth (or five cups of your own chicken stock, salted to taste)
2 cups water
1/2 cup wild rice
1/3 cup finely chopped green onions
1/2 cup margarine or butter
3/4 cup flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon poultry seasoning
1/8 teaspoon pepper
2 cups half and half
1 1/2 cups cubed, cooked turkey
8 slices bacon, fried crisp and crumbled
1 tablespoon chopped pimento
2-3 tablespoons cooking sherry, if desired

In large saucepan, combine broth and water. Add wild rice and onion and simmer 35-40 minutes, or until rice is tender.

Lightly spoon flour into measuring cup and level off.

Melt margarine in medium saucepan; stir in flour, salt, poultry seasoning and pepper. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture is smooth and bubbly.

Add half and half and cook two minutes, until mixture thickens slightly, stirring constantly.

Slowly add half and half mixture to rice mixture, stirring constantly. Add remaining ingredients and heat through. Recipe makes eight 1 1/2 cup servings.

Now that you have some time, make these to go with your soup:

Golden Onion Rolls

2 packages dry yeast
1/2 cup warm water
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup shortening
1 tablespoon salt
3/4 cup hot scalded milk
2 eggs
5 to 5 1/2 cups flour

Soften yeast in water.

In large bowl, combine sugar, shortening, salt and milk. Cool to lukewarm. Blend in eggs and yeast mixture.

Gradually add flour to form a stiff dough. Knead on floured surface until smooth and satiny, 3 to 5 minutes. Place in greased bowl and cover.

Let rise in 85 to 90 degree place until light and doubled in size, about 1 hour. Prepare:

Soupçon by Sherry LaCoursiere

Onion Filling

2 cups chopped onion
1/4 cup butter
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons cream, mixed with
2 tablespoons slightly beaten egg (reserve remaining egg).

Saute onions in butter. Add salt and cream/egg mixture. Cool.

Shape dough into 2-inch balls. Place on ungreased cookie sheets.

Flatten each ball and press fingers into center to form a hole. Place 1 tablespoon onion filling in each hollow. Brush rolls with remaining egg and poppy or sesame seed.

Let rise until light and doubled, about 45 minutes.

Bake at 400 degrees for 12-16 minutes, until golden.

Wouldn't this punch taste good one of these cold winter nights? Why not try it for New Year's Eve:

Spiced Punch

6 ounce can frozen orange juice concentrate 6 ounce can frozen lemonade concentrate
6 ounce can frozen pineapple juice concentrate
10 cups water
6 whole cloves
2 cinnamon sticks

In four-quart saucepan, combine all ingredients. Simmer over low heat for 30 minutes. Remove cloves and cinnamon and serve hot. Recipe serves 24 with 1/2 cup servings.

Use up your holiday leftovers in this tasty casserole dish:

Ham and Chicken Casserole

1/4 cup margarine or butter
1/4 cup flour
1/2 teaspoon thyme
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1 1/4 cups (10 3/4 ounce can) condensed chicken broth
13 ounce can evaporated milk
3 cups cooked rice
1 1/2 cups cubed, cooked ham
1 1/2 cups cubed, cooked chicken or turkey
4 1/2 ounce jar sliced mushrooms, drained
1/2 cup chopped green pepper
1/4 cup chopped pimento
1/2 cup slivered almonds, toasted

Heat oven to 350 degrees.

In large saucepan, melt margarine. Stir in flour, thyme, salt and pepper. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture is smooth and bubbly.

Add broth and evaporated milk. Cook until mixture boils and thickens, stirring constantly.

Stir in remaining ingredients except almonds.

Pour into ungreased 9x13 inch baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 25-30 minutes.

Sprinkle dish with toasted almonds before serving. Recipe serves 8.

One more recipe, this one for holiday entertaining. Serve with your hot punch:

French Onion Quiche Appetizers

15 ounce package ready made pie crusts
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1 1/2 cups finely chopped onions
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup half and half
3 eggs, slightly beaten
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
5 tablespoons grated parmesan cheese

Heat oven to 350 degrees.

Remove pie crusts from box and let them stand at room temperature for 15-20 minutes while preparing filling.

In saucepan, melt margarine and saute onion until golden. Remove from heat. Stir in flour and then add half and half, eggs, salt and pepper, blending well.

Unfold pie crusts and press out. Cut 15 (2 1/2 inch) circles from each crust sheet. Press into ungreased miniature muffin cups.

Spoon about 1 tablespoon filling into each crust. Sprinkle each with 1/2 teaspoon cheese.

Bake at 350 degrees for 25-35 minutes, or until centers are set and crusts are golden.

Cool slightly and remove from muffin cups. Serve warm. Recipe makes 20 quiche.

(If filling becomes too brown, cover with foil for last 10 minutes.)

Edmonds will be speaker for Woodcrafters

Members of Northland Woodcrafters will hear about growing and marketing of trees at the monthly meeting Monday, December 30, at 7 p.m. in the Occupational Development Center on highway 32 south, Thief River Falls.

Guest speaker for the meeting will be Jeff Edmonds, utilization and marketing forester for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources at the ONR regional office in Bemidji.

Edmonds works with the growing and sale of timber and has experience in southern Minnesota where some of the popular hardwoods used by woodworkers are grown. He will also be available to answer questions from members and guests.

Members of the Woodcrafters club are encouraged to make note of the meeting date and plan to attend. No meeting notices are being mailed for this meeting. Guests are always welcome.

"We appreciate the effort of our speaker to travel here from Bemidji for our meeting," stated president Marvin Lundin. "We hope our members make a special effort to attend and learn more about the source of the wood with which they like to work."

Drains Run Slow?

You'll never have a slow running, or clogged drain again! The secret? Clean drains don't run slow.

Slow drains, or periodic clogs, are SIGNALS that a thick layer of GOOK is choking your pipes. Grease, hair, and other waste stick to your pipes, with every use. This gook deposits along the entire length of the pipe. It chokes your pipes gradually, as it gets thicker and thicker.

Conventional drain openers can't fix slow drains. They react chemically on the surface of the gook. To be effective, they must remain in contact with the waste. Even a small tunnel through the gook lets them flow out to the sewer, leaving the gook behind.

In the past, the only way to remove this build-up was to rooter your pipes. An expensive, temporary measure.

Now, with just a few minutes each month, you can easily clean out your pipes... and KEEP them clean with Plumb Clean. Its totally unique formula clings, and penetrates deep into the gook. That is what allows it to liquefy even years of build-up. Plumb Clean will clean the entire length of your pipes. It will make your drains run like new, when used as directed. This penetrating action is so revolutionary, we stand behind Plumb Clean with a money-back guarantee!

Saves Money. A 1 lb. container of Plumb Clean holds up to 41 drain treatments. Even if drain openers could fix slow drains, it would take over 10 quart bottles to get the same number of treatments. Plumb Clean costs about 35¢ per treatment. We don't know of anything that cleans drains for less.

Safe Too. Conventional drain openers are dangerous chemicals. They can injure eyes on contact. They can release deadly vapors, in some situations. Some may damage your fixtures. Plumb Clean will not burn skin, or eyes. It will not release harmful fumes. When used as directed, it is 100% safe for people, and of course, all plumbing.

So, if your drains are giving you a SIGNAL, act now. Get safe, guaranteed Plumb Clean today!

Opinions

Marvin Lundin
Editor

Editorial opinion published on this page, whether locally written or re-printed from other sources is intended to stimulate thinking and discussion among our readers. Opinions expressed by the editor are his own and not necessarily those of other staff members. Opinions expressed in items from other publications may be contradictory to the editor's own views but are offered for their general interest.

We Agree...Optimum School Size Is A Myth

"The argument isn't really district size, but high school offerings," states Sen. Steve Morse of District 34, an apple grower and processor in extreme southeastern Minnesota. "The belief that there is a single optimum size for a school is a myth."

In a Point and Counterpoint pair of articles in "The Voice," a publication of the Minnesota Rural Education association, Sen. Morse says that "We need to challenge the basic proposition that....we cannot have adequate quality education in small school districts."

Providing the Point article was Sen. Fritz Knaak of District 53. Sen. Knaack is a lawyer in private general practice and lives in White Bear Lake.

Sen. Knaak says that "we have fallen short of (providing)...equal access to public education...particularly to those who want to go on to higher education after graduation. ....(It's) primarily a problem of smaller school districts in rural Minnesota.

"The level of frustration in suburban districts is great. In 1987, $300 million was taken from suburban districts and sent to the great void of greater Minnesota. The argument that special quality of life is destroyed when districts merge was faced and put behind suburban districts during consolidation in the '70s. Nationally recognized schools of excellence resulted.

"The solution to the constitutionally guaranteed access to education is consolidation."

Sen. Knaak's plan is to merge the current districts of the state into 141 districts with a minimum of 2,000 students and a 25-mile radius. Administration would be centralized with one administrator for each 800 students; one principal for each 500 students; one K-3 teacher for each 15 students and one grades 4-6 teacher for each 22 students. Education throughout the state would be "standardized."

"This student population is believed to be necessary to provide four years of English, history, social and political science, two foreign languages, physical education, health, vocal and instrumental music, vocational education, art and business and technical education," Sen. Knaak said.

"The availability to students...of certain courses...in any part of the state of Minnesota....make it possible to got to any institution of higher learning without the handicap of a public school system that didn't offer all the kinds of things they need...for success."

Sen. Knack said that the threat of consolidation is the only thing that will get individual districts looking at consolidation. Rural educators, he said, don't believe consolidation is a reality, but there is a willingness present in St. Paul to consolidate.

Sen. Morse says that the 141-district proposal assumes "Big Brother knows best" and doesn't look at local issues. He says there are advantages provided to students in small schools, including a more orderly, supportive and disciplined environment, higher attendance and graduation rates and greater participation in activities.

"There is no conclusive evidence that greater achievement is tied to school size," Sen. Morse notes. "In fact, some research indicates that smaller districts achieve greater success, with the highest achievement by students in districts with 494 to 1,279 students.

"The issue is one of state-mandated versus local decisions," he adds. "There are going to be changes in education in Minnesota and the nation. Decisions and solutions must come from local school districts working from the bottom up."

We see no magic in the numbers projected by Sen. Knaak of school districts with a minimum of 2,000 students or Commissioner of Education Gene Mammenga's proposal for districts with 100 students in each grade—1,300 students in kindergarten through 12th grade. To coin a phrase, it isn't the students you put into a school, it's what the school puts into its students.

Attempting to deal with people and geography in a mathematical fashion always invites trouble. People don't live in uniform age groups of 100 in demographic segments of 2,000 students in a 25-mile radius. And when you begin making exceptions to the roles, as would certainly have to be done, the system begins to sag.

We believe in providing the best basic education it is possible to provide within the scope of practicality. We think it is improper emphasis, for instance, to require two foreign languages when so many students are graduating unable to read with comprehension and capably write in our English language.

Consolidations have occurred in the past and would continue to take place under the present system in the future as economics dictate. But like it or not, education is intertwined with the economies of community survival in many areas of the state. It may not be education's choice to be community savior, but it has been cast in that role and will play the part 'til the final curtain.

"If the goal of Sen. Knaak's consolidation plan is to destroy some of the rural communities, that will be successful," Sen. Morse says. We fear his assessment is entirely accurate.

The chapter will be conducting a raffle in early February to raise scholarship funds and money to assist chapter members with FAA testing. It also plans a field trip this spring and a fly-in at the regional airport in May. Purpose of the association is to promote a high degree of professionalism among aviation maintenance personnel and foster and improve methods, skills, learning and achievement in the field of aviation maintenance.

Pilot enjoys brief visit to T.R. Falls

In a letter to Orville Ellingson of Thief River Falls, Capt. Steve Baker—who flew the Boeing 727 carrying Thief River Falls Technical college passengers and Northwest Airlines personnel into the regional airport here on Thursday, December 13—comments on his impressions of the community.

Ellingson had sent Baker several photographs he had taken of the plane and crew and of aviation maintenance students gathered around the plane.

"On our trip back to the Twin Cities," Capt. Baker wrote, "our crew had time to reflect on the warm and sincere hospitality we received from the people in Thief River Falls. As you know, we fly all over the world and have the chance to meet folks from almost everywhere. I can honestly say that I have never met a nicer group of aviation enthusiasts in all my travels. I speak for all the crew members when I say thank you for the hospitality we received during our visit.

I was pleased to see that the school's new aircraft completed her last leg on December 13th. I wish she had made it on the 12th so I could have seen it. The important thing is that she got there." (Editor's Note: The 727 donated to the technical college was to arrive on December 12 but was delayed until the next morning due to mechanical problems.)

"The aircraft that Thief River Falls received from Northwest Airlines that day was a hard worker throughout her career," Capt. Baker added. "I have had the honor of flying her myself many times. During the course of her thousands of hours of service she always repaid the trust that her crew and passengers put in her.

"It is fitting that such a distinguished aircraft should come to rest in the capable hands of the students and faculty of Thief River Falls VoTech. At Northwest, we are all happy that she will not be retiring from aviation, but rather continuing to serve in a different capacity."

Profit-sharing at Marvin Windows

Decreased sales of $21 million for 1991 and increased lumber prices of 60 to 70 per cent resulted in profit-sharing of only $3,050,816 for the 3,022 employees of Marvin Windows and Doors in Warroad this year. Announcement was made at its annual Christmas meeting Saturday, December 21.

The distribution averaged $1,009 and was based on $3.37 for each month of seniority and $3.78 for each $100 of covered payroll. Last year the company distributed $7.8 million.

Company vice chairman Jake Marvin said increased lumber prices added $12 million to the company's costs and a lagging U.S. economy reduced sales by $21 million from 1990.

Chairman Bill Marvin said that no lay-offs had taken place despite the drop in sales and that none are anticipated. Lay-offs have been avoided by storing extra parts manufactured but not sold. It may also be necessary to go to a four-day work week in February or March as an alternative to lay-offs, he said.

Susan Marvin, vice president of sales and marketing, said housing sector starts were the lowest since 1943 in 1990, the country is in a credit crunch and consumer confidence is at an all-time low. Several of the company's good customers went out of business during the year and that meant hustling to replace their business.

Company officials say sales improved during the second half of 1990 and they expect 1992 to be a better, although not great, year.

Kids visit nursing center residents

Mahnomen — Students from Mahnomen school entertained residents of the Mahnomen Nursing center recently with sixth grade students performing Christmas program pieces from "Tis the Season" for the residents of the center. Students from the Mahube Head Start program also visited the center and were treated to a story-telling session and the children performed a Christmas program for the seniors. (Mahnomen Pioneer)

Ada-Borup band to perform at White House

Ada-Borup — Washington D. C. is the destination of the Ada-Borup band this spring when 88 band members and eight chaperones leave on the six-day trip, April 2-7. A high school band trip is organized every four years, to allow all children to participate. While in Washington, the band will perform on the White House lawn, the lawn of the Capitol and at Washington's Old Post Office. Cost of the trip will be in excess of $32,000. (Norman County Index)

Marshall County Central school board hires contractor

Newfolden — Kraus-Anderson construction firm of Minneapolis has been hired by the Marshall County Central school board as construction manager/contractor for the rebuilding of the high school. The firm received the go-ahead at a recent school board meeting. The company will also assume the job of demolishing the east end of the building which received the brunt of the fire damage. Temporary heating for the west end of the building is completed. (New River Record)

Blackduck district has new ranger

Blackduck — Pete Tennis, 48, has been hired as a new district ranger at the Blackduck office of the U.S. forest service. He has been an assistant forest engineer and ranger at the Petersburg, AK, office for the past 11 years. He was also previously a project manager for the Valdez vessel traffic system. A major part of his job now will be a revision of the forest plan over the next five years. (American)

Snowmobiles stolen from LePier's, but recovered

Fosston — Three snowmobiles were stolen from a storage garage of LePier's, Inc. early Saturday morning, according to Fosston Chief of Police Jim Berg, who added that one used machine and two new ones were taken from the building and driven away. One, however, was recovered east of Fosston on Saturday and the other two early Sunday morning near Pine Bend. No arrests have been made at this time. (Thirteen Towns)

Third bus for Kennedy school approved

Kennedy — Overcrowded conditions on the two District 2359 buses that transport students to the Kennedy middle school should be remedied by adding a third bus for the winter. Superintendent Jerry Scott told the board that drivers were concerned about the safety of carrying 43 students each bus in the winter months, since the students take snowmobile suits, extra clothing and, in general, more space. The board decided to consider the purchase of a new bus. (Kittson County Enterprise)

Lewis named director

Jeff Lewis has been appointed director of the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (MPCA) Northwest regional office in Detroit Lakes, according to Charles Williams, MPCA commissioner.

One of five regional offices, the office in Detroit Lakes serves the counties of Becker, Beltrami, Clay, Clearwater, Douglas, Grant, Hubbard, Kittson, Lake of the Woods, Mahnomen, Marshall, Norman, Otter Tail, Pennington, Polk, Pope, Red Lake, Roseau, Stevens, Traverse and Wilkin.

Before the appointment as regional director, Lewis had worked since 1977 for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR), serving as area hydrologist for the DNR's area office in Marshall since 1979. He has been active in civic organizations in southwestern Minnesota, including serving on the Marshall city council.

A 1976 graduate of the University of Minnesota's forest hydrology program, Lewis originally is from New Hope. As regional director he is responsible for local and regional management of the MPCA's programs throughout the 21-county northwest region, including inspections and pollution prevention programs in the areas of solid and hazardous wastes, air quality, ground and surface waters and environmental review.

Lewis said the MPCA invites people with questions about the agency or pollution issues to call the northwest regional office at 847-1519 or the agency's St. Paul office at (612) 296-6300 or toll-free at 1-800-652-9747.

Five-day stop smoking plan

Five-day stop smoking clinic will begin January 5 and continue through January 9 at the Riverside meeting room in Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls with sessions at 7 p.m. each day.

The clinic is sponsored by Northwest Medical Center and the Falls Clinic Division of Dakota Clinic, Ltd., and is conducted by the Seventh-day Adventist church with Rev. Leo Herber as program director. Cost will be $15 for individuals, $25 for two persons from one family and $30 for three persons from one family. Class size is limited and pre-registration is required by calling 681-4747, extension 205.

Dr. Herber said "the best way to help a person break free from the tobacco habit is to educate him or her in dealing with stresses and difficult situations. This plan is oriented toward teaching people how to live, not just how to give up smoking."

Each day of the clinic has a special emphasis—support, health awareness, substitution strategies, personal growth and development and motivation along with spiritual growth and development.

Thief River Falls Area Food Shelf will get a boost this Christmas season as a result of the generosity of employees of Norwest Bank in Thief River Falls. Instead of exchanging gifts with one another, the employees make a cash contribution to the area food shelf. Elinor Henson (left), customer service representative at Norwest, presented a check for $115 to Arlene Swenson, director of the food shelf.

1992 construction projects listed

downtown businesses that haven't experienced construction projects of such a scale, said Mayor Carlson at a recent meeting.

The streets will be widened, to 59 feet in some places, and water and sewer lines replaced. Sidewalks will also be replaced along the project.

Sidewalks —

City Engineering and Technical Services director Ron Lindberg, also explained that there will also be a sidewalk project this summer. Sidewalks slated for replacement or improvement include Arnold from First street to 11th street, Duluth from 9th to 11th, Red Lake Boulevard and Dewey from Third to Eighth street and some cross connect routes around Washington elementary school.

Airport —

Thief River Falls city council instructed Lindberg to proceed with plans and specifications on a proposed $1.2 million resurfacing project at the airport. If everything goes according to plan, Lindberg said, 90 per cent of the project cost will be refunded to the city and will be completed by the fall. The project will include resurfacing of the runway, taxiway, and apron. A new master plan will also be completed.

TC Hangar —

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the start of a $2.8 million hangar facility for the Thief River Falls Technical College were held early in November. The 153x160 hangar will have 25-foot sidewalls and a height at center of 46 feet. It will be located northwest of the existing school and directly north of the former Arctic Enterprises hangar.

Actual excavation will begin in February. Completion is expected sometime in September of 1992.

Golf Course —

Cost of adding an additional nine holes at the golf course is expected at around $650,000. Some actual work on the course may begin this winter, but the expansion project is expected to be well underway in 1992.

Riverbank stabilization —

Riverbank stabilization project in Centennial is a relatively small project. The project will involve roughly 600 feet of riverbank.

Kevin Adolfs, engineer for the Red Lake Watershed district, explained that the project will cost roughly $25,000. The riverbank along the project will be resloped and gabion baskets — baskets similar to the ones used below the dam — will be used on the project. Adolfs added that a project south of Thief River Falls along the riverbank is also being considered.

A large portion of the cost of construction will be coming from the state and federal government.

Some of the projects, like the golf course, utilize many private donations. Other projects will also utilize assessments to pay for the projects.

While the nation may be locked in a recession, residents of Thief River Falls will able to see a little light at the end of the long tunnel, especially if these projects have an effect on the local economy.

4-H project meetings set

Extension cuts won't affect county

as the main outreach component of the University of Minnesota," he said. "Staff cuts will affect all counties in the state because they diminish our ability to respond to major economic developments and environmental and quality of life issues important to Minnesotans, but the budget situation leaves us no other option but to reduce staffing."

He said that this "is a very painful time" for the organization and he greatly regret the loss of so many valued county staff members. "These people have made tremendous contributions to their communities, and their layoffs do not reflect on their abilities or their job performances," he added.

During the six months that these staff members have before their jobs end, a transition team will work with them to look at all employment options and to make career counseling available to those who want it.

Borich added that staffing decisions were based on program priorities for the extension service. "We had to make tough choices based on long-range planning about the educational program needs in the state. Every attempt was made to be as fair and even-handed as possible based on input from local officials, citizens who rely on our service and our own staff members."

Despite the cuts, Borich said the extension service will move ahead with plans for high quality educational programs in the traditional areas of agriculture, home economics and 4-H as well as in new priority topics. He says staff will continue to respond to the state's educational needs in such areas as water quality, youth and family at risk, sustainable agriculture, community economic development, natural resource and waste management, nutrition and health and leadership development.

University and Colleges sign agreement its transferred by students from community colleges. However, they were reviewed on a course-by-course basis to determine if they met university requirements.

Under the new agreement, the university has recognized the rigor and integrity of the community college Associate in Arts degree. Reasons for the acceptance include research showing that community college transfers earn grades comparable to students who both started and finished at the university.

Most community college faculty have earned master's and Ph.D. degrees from the university and many taught freshman and sophomore classes at the 'U' during graduate school.

Community colleges have had a similar transfer arrangement with Minnesota State Universities for several years. Research at those schools documented similar success for transfer students.

The agreement was signed by Anne Hopkins, University of Minnesota vice provost for arts, science and engineering; Julia Davis, dean of the College of Liberal Arts; Chancellor Gerald W. Christenson of the Community College System and Williams.

Crossroads gets grant

Crossroads Displaced Homemaker program of Thief River Falls has been named recipient of a $20,000 grant from the Otto Bremer Foundation of St. Paul, according to information received by The Times this week.

The grant is intended to expand the services of the program which helps empower women to become self-sufficient.

Crossroads' grant was one of 24 grants totaling $338,325 authorized by the foundation's board of trustees at its November meeting.

The foundation concentrates its giving on programs that benefit communities in Minnesota, North Dakota and northwestern Wisconsin served by affiliated Bremer First American banks, primarily in the areas of community affairs, human services, health and higher education.
